Message to State Department Shows Americans Shot Were in Regular Service.

INDEMNITY DEMAND SURE

Commander of Des Moines Reports Blockade by Insurgents Effective and Their Recognition May Follow.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The most important developments of the week in the Nicaraguan situation came to-day with the receipt by the State and Navy Departments of various telegrams from Central America. The delay that has retarded the State Department's inquiry into various phases of the situation which it wishes to clear up before proceeding to decisive action was also partly explained to-day by a statement made to the department by the Western Union Telegraph Company that transmission inland was very uncertain, and that neither delivery nor speed could be guaranteed.

It now seems certain that the recognition of the Estrada provisional government by the United States is a matter of days only. The commanding officer of the Des Moines reported to the Navy Department to-day that by means of two gunboats the insurgents were maintaining an effective blockade off Greytown (San Juan Del Norte.) That assurance was the only condition on which this Government was waiting before formally assenting to the blockade. The insurgents will now be able to proceed unimpeded with the investment of the Zelaya stronghold both by land and sea.

According to this report the revolution is gaining ground, and already the sway of the Provisional Government has extended far into the back country around Rama. This point was for many weeks the extreme inland point to which Estrada had advanced, and the winning of this section of the country, through which the fighting is expected to take place, will give Estrada a material advantage in that he will be fighting in his own territory, with convenient bases of supplies and on the shortest lines of communication.

On Nov. 23 the revolutionary gunboats fired on Greytown, but without effect.

Americans Acted as Outposts.

One item of the stream of unofficial information that has poured in on the State Department from unrecognized sources was a telegram received to-day from Senor Moreira, Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs under Gen. Estrada. The telegram merely recited that, under Article 742 of the Nicaraguan Military Code, President Zelaya had no right to shoot the "outposts." The significance of the telegram lies in the fact that it should be openly received by the State Department though the Estrada Government has not yet been recognized, and also in its practical confirmation of the prevailing belief here that Cannon and Groce were in reality acting as a regular part of the revolutionary forces when they were captured by Zelaya and ordered shot.

This is one of the important matters into which the State Department has been looking. As indicated in these dispatches last night the attitude of this Government regarding their execution would necessarily depend on the nature of their activities at the time of their arrest. If they were conducting regular military operations President Zelaya will be called to full account for their death. If they were acting as free lances engaged in blowing up Nicaraguan ships for personal ends their execution as pirates would be justified.

There is no doubt, however, that Senor Moreira's reference to outposts means the two Americans. This, combined with Gen. Estrada's telegrams of sympathy to the families of Cannon and Groce, also tends to establish the fact of their close connection with the organized forces of the revolution. That a demand for a heavy indemnity will soon be forwarded to Zelaya is certain.

Suspicious Delay in Messages.

The State Department is inclined to believe that its messages to its Consular representatives in Nicaragua have been tampered with, if not positively held up, by the orders of President Zelaya. All hope of getting replies from the Vice Consul at Managua has been abandoned, though it is expected that Bluefields, which is in the hands of the insurgents, will be heard from to-morrow. The fact that warships are off the coast with wireless outfits will make it easier for communication to be kept open in spite of Zelaya's efforts to retard the investigation.

At Greytown an officer from the Des Moines landed and discovered in the Zelaya stronghold only one American, who afterward came aboard. American property in the besieged town, said the report, was being protected. The downfall of the place seemed certain from the report, as the spread of the insurgent territory is inland behind the city, thus cutting it off more and more from hope of relief.

The inquiries of the State Department have been directed through the Consular officers at both Bluefields and Managua. The fact that the insurgent town of Bluefields should have information on the subject of the inquiry indicates clearly that this Government will take no assurances from Zelaya, however formally they may be made. Whatever points we are seeking to ascertain will be established by outside evidence, and this evidence the Consuls are relied on to obtain. As both Consuls have already sent messages of a violence almost unprecedented in diplomatic history, criticising the action of Zelaya, the nature of their report is scarcely in doubt and the opening of communications is all that is needed to bring on decisive action.

Castrillo Expects Recognition.

Mr. Castrillo, the agent of Gen. Estrada, and his Minister Designate to this country, is dividing his time between Washington and New York. He is keeping himself in close touch with the State Department officials, though, of course, even his presence here is not recognized by the department officially. Mr. Castrillo expects to be received as the accredited representative of Nicaragua in a short time. The department, however, is determined to observe the proprieties, and even the welcome dispatch from Under Secretary Moreira will not be answered.

It was reported from Bluefields to-day that the British cruiser Scylla had put in there and that its commander, Bertram S. Thesiger, had called on Senor Estrada, the Provisional President. Inquiry at the British Embassy to-night met with the statement that no advices of the war-

AMBASSADOR BRYCE TO GO?

London Hears That Sir Maurice De Bunsen Will Succeed Him.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A Madrid special to The Morning Telegraph says it is reported there that Sir Maurice De Bunsen, British Ambassador to Madrid, will soon replace Ambassador Bryce at Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Nothing has been heard here of any intention on the part of the British Government to recall Ambassador Bryce, though on account of his age little surprise would be felt if he should retire from active service in the near future. Such a recall would be no indication that Mr. Bryce had failed to make himself acceptable to the Administration, for the common impression is that he stands higher in Mr. Taft's regard than he did with Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Bryce succeeded Sir Henry Mortimer Durand as Ambassador to Washington in February, 1907. He had previously served for two years as Chief Secretary for Ireland. He took the place reluctantly, and only because the British Government wished to have a diplomat whose influence in America was such that he could offset the efforts of Baron Speck von Sternburg to turn sentiment toward Germany.

Sir Maurice De Bunsen, who may succeed Mr. Bryce, has been Ambassador to Spain since 1906. He had previously served as Minister Plenipotentiary to France from 1902 to 1905, and in the next year served as Mihister Plenipotentiary to Portugal for several months. He is 57 years old.

NEW POST FOR BERNSTORFF?

Reported That He Will Go to London as German Peacemaker.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Standard's Berlin correspondent, commenting on the recent speeches in the United States of the German Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, declares that they reflect the opinions of the Imperial German Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, and are approved by Emperor William, who intends to bestow on Count von Bernstorff the Order of the Black Eagle as a preliminary to appointing him Ambassador to London to play the role of peacemaker between Germany and Great Britain.

The correspondent adds that when this outcome of the new Chancellor's policy becomes known in Germany it is not unlikely that it will provoke a storm of opposition.

LOFTIN JOHNSON IN DANGER.

Physician Admits That the Mayor's Son Has Only a Fighting Chance.

Loftin Johnson, son of Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland, who underwent an operation for appendicitis on Wednesday night in Miss Alston's Sanitarium, 26 West Sixty-first Street, has "just a fighting chance" for recovery. Those were the words used last night by the physician who performed the operation.

The young man's mother and sister arrived here yesterday morning by special train; his father is expected to-day. Mrs. Johnson and her daughter could see the patient for only a moment. They had hoped to get here before the operation, but the physician, finding how desperate was young Johnson's condition, hurried him to the sanitarium, and half an hour later he was on the operating table.

He found the appendix in worse shape than he expected. It was perforated and gangrenous, and the patient also had peritonitis. The physician said last night:

"He is slightly better than twenty-four hours ago. He stood the operation well, but it was a most serious one. No one can definitely prophesy the outcome for a couple of days. His temperature now is 101, his pulse has dropped from 130, where it stood when I operated, to 110. He is critically ill.

Mrs. Johnson is staying at 660 West 116th Street with Mrs. Mariano, her daughter, formerly Bessie Johnson, the actress.

HOLY TRINITY OUT OF DEBT.

Final Mortgage Dropped In Plate at Thanksgiving Service.

Fifteen people of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Harlem, gave a Thanksgiving Day surprise to the rector, the Rev. Dr. Nichols, and all the rest of the congregation yesterday. It was in a paid-up mortgage for $35,500 which was put upon the offertory plate. The movement to pay off the mortgage was undertaken a fortnight ago. The mortgage was paid last Tuesday. It was kept secret until Thanksgiving to give special cause for rejoicing, as it was not expected the mortgage would be paid before Christmas, and possibly not till Easter.

Bishop Greer was telephoned to and sent his congratulations to rector and people. The rector exhibited the mortgage and said that that which had so long troubled him was banished forever. The congregation seemed ready for cheers.

Steps will now be taken to consecrate the church property, which is valued at $425,000.

Holy Trinity Church was founded in 1868, and stood many years at Fifth Avenue and 125th Street. Afterward it became Temple Israel of Harlem, which has since been torn down. It was built in Lenox Avenue and 122d Street, a little more than twenty years ago, and at one time had a debt of $225,000, so large that many predicted it could never be paid. In ten years it was reduced to $150,000. At that point the Rev. Dr. Nichols came as rector.

COOK RECORDS ABOARD SHIP.

Liner with Polar Data in Strong Room Has Sailed for Denmark.

On the steamship United States, which sailed yesterday for Copenhagen, went Walter Lonsdale, Secretary to Dr. Frederick A. Cook, taking with him the records and report by which the explorer hopes to substantiate his assertion that he reached the north pole. The secretary and the records will reach Copenhagen on Dec. 7, and the records will be immediately placed in the hands of the authorities of the University of Copenhagen, who are to pass upon them.

Dr. Cook's report, as has been declared, is a voluminous document containing some 30,000 words. Mr. Lonsdale said that the documents are in complete form and ready for the scientific scrutiny. The report and the records will be under lock and key in the strong room of the steamer while she is at sea. The secretary expects that the Copenhagen university authorities will make public their opinion of the records by the first of the new year.

EX-SECRETARY GAGE WEDS MRS. BALLOU

Septuagenarian Takes as Third Wife Woman Nearly Forty Years His Junior.

CEREMONY AT SAN DIEGO

New Mrs. Gage, Divorced from Robert L. Crane in 1902, Once on Stage, Is an Accomplished Horsewoman.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 25.—Ex-Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage and Mrs. Frances Ada Ballou, who is about 37 years his junior, were married at 8 o'clock to-night at the home of the bride's parents on Coronado Island.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Willard B. Thorpe of the First Congregational Church in this city. The bride wore a traveling suit of gray, particularly attractive in combination with her gorgeous mass of hair. The knot was tied in a great bay window which was shut off from public view by a thick curtain of green, sprinkled with roses and carnations. Only a few guests attended.

Among those present were Miss Helene Richards, a well-known singer, and Col. Wesley Brainerd, Mr. Gage's brother-in-law.

After the wedding supper Mr. and Mrs. Gage left for the East with the intention of going by way of Denver and Chicago to New York and Washington. They went from the house to the midnight train in an automobile.

Many splendid gifts have been received and scores of congratulatory telegrams have reached ex-Secretary Gage from all over the country. Mr. and Mrs. Gage expect to return here about Jan. 1, and will live in the big house which is now being completed on Point Loma.

Mrs. Gage, so lately Mrs. Ballou, is a daughter of George A. Ballou, a prominent merchant of San Diego. She was married to Robert Lupton Crane in 1902, but divorced him two years later. She entered the "Florodora" chorus, but later returned to California, where she taught music, and resumed her maiden name, by which she has been known since. About three years ago a capitalist from Kansas City named Moore spent the Summer in California, and soon after announced his engagement to Mrs. Ballou. He returned to his home to prepare for the wedding, and died before his bride-to-be could reach him. Mrs. Ballou contested his will, but failed to get a portion of the large estate.

She is an accomplished equestrienne and owns a Kentucky thoroughbred named Pastel, famous all over Southern California. Her father has been a coffee, tea, and spice merchant in this city for years. Her closest friends say they do not know how she happened to meet Mr. Gage or when the affection between them sprang up. The engagement, which was announced two weeks ago, came as a great surprise to all her acquaintances here.

Ex-Secretary Gage, although 73 years old, is still very vigorous, and is taking an active part in the preparations for San Diego's exposition in 1915, to mark the opening of the Panama Canal. He said the other day he expected to be in New York for several days, in the course of the honeymoon, but declined to say what friends would be his hosts. It is reported, however, that Mr. Gage will visit high Government officials while he is in Washington.

This is Mr. Gage's third matrimonial venture. His first marriage took place in 1864, when he married Miss Sarah Etheridge, the daughter of a physician of Hastings, Minn. She died in 1874, and three years later Mr. Gage married Miss Cornelia Washburn of Denver, who died in Washington while her husband was serving in President McKinley's Cabinet as Secretary of the Treasury.

After he had retired from the McKinley Cabinet, Mr. Gage moved to New York and became the head of the United States Trust Company. He resigned that post early in 1906 and in the Summer of that year it was found that he had gone to live at Point Loma, where he had purchased a building site six months before. His son, Eli Gage of Chicago; his sister, Mrs. Brainard of Denver, and his niece, Mrs. E. B. Millar of Los Angeles are said to have interested him in Mrs. Tingley's work. When he was asked at that time if he was a member of the Theosophical cult he denied it, saying:

> Having passed my seventieth birthday, I claim the privilege of withdrawal from the struggles of business life. I am trying this life at Point Loma because I have personal friends here; because the climate is most agreeable; because it is just outside the rush and roar of the world; because here one can lead the simple life. I have not yet been invited to join the Theosophists. I would consider it honorable to be associated with them.

Mr. Gage continued to live at Point Loma, and it was understood that much of his large fortune was being devoted to the Theosophical work. It has been asserted that he became interested in Theosophy as far back as 1892, and after the death of his second wife he took up the matter more seriously. A dream in which he was told to consult Mrs. Tingley is said to have decided his course. He visited the leader of the cult, and then suddenly gave up his $50,000 place in New York. He has traveled some since, but in general has remained close to his home, which overlooks the Pacific.

FALLS DEAD IN CHURCH.

Contractor's Heart Gives Out at Thanksgiving Mass.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Patrick Short, a contractor of Tuckahoe, dropped dead this morning at the celebration of the Thanksgiving mass in the Church of the Immaculate Conception at that place. The contractor walked two miles to attend the services, and after he got there, after fighting his way through the slush and blinding snowstorm, his heart gave out, and he was seen to fall in his pew.

Father McCormick stopped the mass and ushers hurried to his assistance and carried him out to the vestibule, but he was dead before a physician arrived. There was an automobile standing in front of the church and the body was taken home in it to his wife and six children, who had been waiting for his return to eat their Thanksgiving dinner. Coroner Iles was called and found that heart trouble was the cause of death.

SEVEN IN TAXICAB STRUCK BY AN AUTO

Both Machines Running Under High Speed Came Into Collision at Street Corner.

NARROW ESCAPE OF A FAMILY

Taxicab Swings Around and Crashes Into Hydrant, with Power On—Complaint Against Chauffeurs.

Edward Brummer of 127 East Eighty-sixth Street, a clerk on the New York Stock Exchange, together with his wife and their five children, the youngest but 1 year old, narrowly escaped serious injuries of possible death at Fifty-seventh Street and Park Avenue yesterday morning as the result of a collision between the taxicab in which they were riding and a large touring car belonging to Samuel H. Valentine, a lawyer, living at 44 East Fifty-seventh Street.

Mr. Brummer and his family were on their way to take Thanksgiving dinner with his father, John Brummer of 318 East Fifty-fifth Street, Secretary of the United Confectioners' Supply Company, in a taxicab owned by the Yorkville Taxicab Company and operated by a chauffeur named Joseph Formecker. It came down Park Avenue at a lively rate of speed, and at the corner of Fifty-seventh Street collided with Mr. Valentine's car, also driven at a smart pace, it was said, by Julian Van Gelder, the chauffeur. There was no other occupant in this car.

The collision swung the taxicab around, and with its machinery still going it crashed into a fire hydrant on the corner. The impact broke the wheels and the front part of the machine, smashed the glass into bits, and threw the seven occupants, packed as they were, in a heap. The touring car was uninjured.

Policeman Albert B. Hensler, attached to the East Fifty-first Street Station, who witnessed the accident, arrested both drivers and went to the assistance of Mr. Brummer and his family. All of the injured were taken to a near-by garage, and Dr. Schenkelberger of Flower Hospital was called to attend them. Mr. Brummer and Mrs. Brummer were severely cut in the face. Their children, Walter, 4 years old, and Edward, 12, were both cut about the face and had body contusions. Howard and Dorothy, aged 10 and 2 years, and John, the youngest, were badly cut in the face.

Mrs. Brummer was the first to be sent to her father's home, and Mr. Brummer went to the police station and entered a charge of reckless driving against both chauffeurs. He said that neither of them blew his horn at the corner. He said, too, that there were no chains on the wheels of the taxicab.

Both drivers were subsequently released from custody, bail having been furnished by Mr. Valentine and Max Ehrlich, one of the officers of the taxicab company.

FIVE IN AUTO KILLED.

Two More Dying—Car Carrying Bodies Has Collision, and Eight Are Hurt.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—Nicholas Jacobs, a real estate dealer, his two daughters and two of his sons are dead, and Mrs. Jacobs and her two months' old baby are dying as the result of a collision to-night between an automobile in which they were riding and a trolley car on the Los Angeles and Santa Anna, six miles from Los Angeles.

Two other sons of Jacobs, Peter and John, and Miss Josephine Solon, jumped from the automobile and escaped with slight injuries.

While an electric car in which the injured persons and the bodies of those killed had been placed was coming to Los Angeles it collided with a car on the Central Avenue line at Seventh and Central Avenues in Los Angeles and eight other persons were injured, some seriously.

KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

Driver of Car with Broken Steering Gear Dead, Another Man Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Orrin Watson was killed and Louis Boore, Jr., was badly injured to-day in an automobile accident. The steering gear broke and the machine plunged into a telephone pole while traveling at high speed.

Watson came here from Hawkinsville, Ga., four years ago, to work with a coach company. Recently he bought an automobile to drive visitors about town in, and it was this car that went wrong today. Boore was thrown fifty feet, and was severely cut and bruised, but will live. He is a son of Louis Boore, a hotel proprietor.

WOMAN'S CHARGE FAILS.

Magistrate Discharges Chauffeur Accused of a Midnight Attack.

The woman who went to the West Thirtieth Street police station on Wednesday night with a story of kidnapping and attack by chauffeurs, appeared in the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday morning aginst Thomas F. Ahearn, of 244 East Thirty-ninth Street, an automobile machinist, and repeated her tale to Magistrate Corrigan. She admitted that her real name was Mrs. Ada K. Daniels, and not Mrs. Mary Ada Penfield, as she first said, and that she had no particular home. She told a weird story of going at midnight to purchase an automobile for a well-known actor and of an attack upon her by Ahearn and five other chauffeurs in the machine shop of a garage in West Thirty-seventh Street.

Magistrate Corrigan discharged Ahearn and remarked that he had a mind to take a complaint for disorderly conduct against the woman and send her to the Workhouse. The woman wept, and Magistrate Corrigan did not carry out his threat.

NEW AUTOMOBILE BILL.

Highway Society Has a Measure Calling for Larger Number Plates.

The National Highway Protective Society will urge a new automobile bill during the coming session of the Legislature, which will provide that all motor vehicles except motor cycles shall display in a conspicuous place at the front and rear the registered number plates to be furnished by the Highway Commission.

The letters shall be not less than five inches in height and the stroke not less than five-eighths of an inch wide. At present letters three inches in height may be used. The plates will be furnished by the Highway Commission. The bill provides that the plates must be affixed so that they will not swing, and must be at all times unobscured, at night to be illuminated by lamps.

THOUSANDS GATHER TO SUPPORT BUDGET

Great Demonstration in Parliament Square Is Finally Dispersed by Police.

BISHOP FAVORS MEASURE

Speaks in House of Lords in Behalf of "Multitudinous Poor"—Unionist Leader Opposes Rejection.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—A great pro-budget demonstration took place to-night in Parliament Square and that locality. Six thousand persons gathered for the demonstration, and sang political songs and cheered for David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Police to the number of 1,500 were employed in keeping order, but finally the crowd became unmanageable, and they cleared the square. There were some slight scuffles and several arrests were made.

The demonstration is likely to be repeated on a larger scale Monday and Tuesday.

The continuation of the debate on the budget in the House of Lords to-day was marked by the utterance of a grave warning to the Peers by Lord Balfour of Burleigh, a Unionist free trader and a member of the former Unionist Cabinet, of the disastrous results likely to follow the rejection of the measure and a speech in favor of the bill by the Bishop of Hereford, despite the injunction of the Archbishop of Canterbury to ecclesiastical Lords to take no part in the fight.

Rumors are current to-night that the Conservative leaders, seeing the damaging effect that the speeches of Lord Cromer, Lord Rosebery and Lord Balfour of Burleigh is likely to have on the Conservative cause in an election, are reconsidering their position with regard to the budget, but the best information indicates that Lord Lansdowne's resolution against the adoption of the budget will go to a division and be carried by an enormous majority.

To Continue Debate Monday.

The debate was adjourned to-day until Monday, when Viscount Morley, Lord Curzon and Lord Rothschild are expected to address the House.

The extension of the time for debate will give opportunity for more of the lords to be heard, and many maiden speeches will be made. Lord Revelstoke, who has been a member of the Second Chamber for twelve years, made his first speech in the House of Lords this week.

Although this was the fourth day of the budget debate, and the absence of Lord Curzon, who, but for a sudden indisposition, was to have continued the Unionist attack on the bill, detracted somewhat from the popular interest, there was little falling off in the attendance. The benches were again crowded with peers, members of the House of Commons were gathered about the throne, and peeresses, diplomats, and other distinguished persons filled the galleries.

Lord Ashbourne, who has been a member of several Unionist Cabinets, took Lord Curzon's place in reopening the debate. He contended that there was no authority on constitutional history that disputed the right of the Lords to act according to their discretion in rejecting or accepting the budget. This year's budget, by presenting a variety of bills within its covers, sought for the first time in the history of budgets to go far beyond the scope of providing revenue to meet the annual expenditure, he said.

He declared that the Government had performed an unconstitutional act in tacking on the budget bill a measure for the taxation of undeveloped land. Again, the licensing clauses, which, after the rejection of the Licensing bill, appeared in a worse form in the budget measure, also furnished, he held, plain evidence of tacking. Everywhere, he said, were indications of the unrest caused by the budget. Consols had dropped, prices fallen, and untold millions of capital been driven abroad. Of what use, he asked, was the House of Lords if, when the time for action came, it could not act?

Balfour Upholds House of Commons.

Lord Balfour after attacking the budget warned the members that they were walking into a trap set by their opponents, and that the step advocated by Lord Lansdowne was false alike to the interests of the country and to those of the House of Lords. He admitted that while the peers had never in so many words surrendered their right of interference, usage had established that the House of Commons was supreme in matters of finance.

Lord Balfour said a referendum was impossible as a matter of practice, and that there never was a time in the history of the country when a strong and conservative second Chamber was more necessary, and he considered it impolitic to mix the question of the defense of that Chamber with the taxation of food.

"If you win a victory," he declared, "it will be only a temporary one; if you lose, you have prejudiced the position, power, prestige and usefulness of the House of Lords, which I believe every one of you honors and desires to serve as heartily as I do myself."

The Bishop of Hereford said that while he respected the Archbishop of Canterbury's desire that the Bishops abstain from voting on the measure, he claimed the right to exercise independent judgment. If the Bishops had any function to perform it was to speak for the multitudinous poor, he said; therefore, he supported the budget, which was a social welfare budget based on sound finance. He was convinced, he declared, that the country's answer to an appeal to the ballot would be in clear English that never again shall the fundamental liberties of the people be endangered by a privilged class. He wished that the budget might be passed as a protection against the rapidly growing spirit of revolt among the democracy, which might become dangerous.

Many others of the Peers spoke, but all of them along party lines.

BOY HUNTER KILLS FATHER.

Shoots at Bird, Not Seeing Parent Behind Shock of Corn.

WOOSTER, Ohio, Nov. 25.—Donald Geiselman, 17 years old, while out hunting near Orrville to-day shot and killed his father, Cyrenius Geiselman. The father was husking corn on the farm, standing back of a shock, when the son fired at a bird. The load struck the father.

GERMANY AGREES TO LOAN.

London Hears She Will Aid American Participation in China.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Foreign Office learned indirectly to-day that Germany had informed the State Department of the United States that she had agreed to the terms by which the British, French, and German groups of financiers were each to surrender a portion of their shares in the Chinese Railway loan in order to enable the Americans to participate.

Nothing has been heard by the Foreign Office directly from the German Government on this point, however.

ASTOR STILL AT SAN JUAN.

With Party Aboard Yacht, Which Suffered No Serious Damage in Hurricane

SAN JUAN, Nov. 25.—The American steam yacht Nourmahal, with Col. John Jacob Astor of New York and party on board, is still in the harbor here. Col Astor, his son Vincent, and their guests all are well.

The Nourmahal has been here since Nov. 14. She experienced rough weather in the Caribbean during the recent hurricane, but suffered no serious damage.

ROCKEFELLERS THANKFUL.

Father and Son Exchange Telegrams to Express This.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 25.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and his wife came to Tarrytown yesterday afternoon and spent Thanksgiving at their home on the hill. The children had a good time sledding on a small hill, and Mr. Rockefeller went out to enjoy the sport with them. Telegrams of thankfulness were exchanged between Mr. Rockefeller and his father, who for the first time in many years spent Thanksgiving in Cleveland.

PORTO RICO CABLE OPEN.

Ex-Postmaster Goes to Jail—Stock and Produce Exchange Inaugurated.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Nov. 25.—Cable communication with the outside world was resumed to-day after having been cut off for two weeks.

Antonio Gaudier, former Assistant Postmaster of Mayaguez, to-day pleaded guilty in the Federal Court to a charge of embezzling postal funds. He was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary and fined $1,500, the amount he embezzled.

The Stock and Produce Exchange, the first institution of its kind in Porto Rico, was inaugurated to-day. Gov. Colton made an address to the members. Senor Sosthenes is the President of the Exchange.

GUARD SLAYER FROM MOB.

Boy Who Killed Bank Cashier Is Taken to Court at Midnight.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Ind., Nov. 25.—Fearing an attack from a mob, the officials of the Common Pleas Court and of the Indiana State Reformatory at midnight last night brought to New Albany Thomas Hoal, the "boy bandit," and arraigned him on three indictments charging murder, assault to kill, and assault to rob.

Hoal is the boy who killed J. Garrey Fawcett, cashier of the Merchants' National Bank, and wounded President Woodward and his chauffeur, in New Albany on Nov. 11. He pleaded not guilty to the charges against him, and within three minutes was hurried back to the reformatory at Jeffersonville.

Hoay was awakened shortly before midnight and rushed here in an automobile. The fear of mob violence, owing to public feeling against Hoal was the reason why the trip was made at night.

THAWS PART IN ANGER.

Evelyn Thaw Visits Harry, and Says She Never Will Again.

Special to The New York Times.

MATTEAWAN, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, after the lapse of a year since her last visit to the Matteawan State Hospital, came to that institution to-day, and met her husband and his mother, Mrs. Mary C. Thaw.

Evelyn Thaw was accompanied by her brother, Howard Nesbit. Thaw was dumfounded at the sight of his wife. He exclaimed, as he entered the reception room, "You here, Evelyn!" "Yes, I'm here, Harry," she said.

Thaw and his wife were talking when Mrs. Mary Thaw arrived on her daily visit to the hospital. She was as much astonished as her son at the sight of Evelyn Thaw.

After a talk which lasted for half an hour, Evelyn Thaw arose from her chair and said angrily, "I shall never come to see you again."

Old Fireman's Savings Found Just When His Widow Was in Need.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 25.—The discovery of about $700 tucked behind a picture in the old Exempt Firemen's Headquarters here to-day has relieved the widow of Charles Aten of 20 Pennington Avenue from almost want.

Aten was a fireman and used to stay around the exempt house most of his time in his older days. One day he drew all of his savings from the bank, and must have hidden it behind one of a group of pictures on the wall.

It was the intention of the exempts to have their place redecorated, and the members took down the pictures themselves in order that none of them might be damaged. The roll of money dropped from the back of one of the pictures while the members were discussing ways and means for the relief of Mrs. Aten.

Aten committed suicide about five years ago.

THIRD MARRIAGE PREVENTED.

Would-Be Bride of Nineteen Balked by Court That Divorced Her.

DEFIANCE, Ohio, Nov. 25.—Too much publicity spoiled for the present the plans for the third marriage of Mrs. Bessie Speck-Williams-Larcum, aged 19, an intended Thanksgiving event. She was divorced Monday in Probate Court from her second husband, Edward Larcum, and through a newspaper confided to the public that she intended to be married at once to Benjamin Hill, who had been a boarder at her home, and had advanced money to pay for the divorce.

When Hill applied yesterday to the same court for a marriage license, it was refused, and he was informed that the formal decree of divorce would be withheld while the court looked further into the circumstances.

The girl was first married at the age of 16 to Percy Williams of Cincinnati, and after a divorce married Edward J. Larcum of Deshler in January last.

WHITE THANKSGIVING THE FIRST IN YEARS

Snow Squalls, Mingled with Rain and Sleet, Put New York in Its Goloshes.

MAURETANIA STORM-STAYED

Gale Smashes Windows and Plays Hob with Live Wires in Jersey City —Cold To-day.

It was a white Thanksgiving, the first in many years—ten at least—so folk with good memories said.

Maybe because people had been talking so much about old-fashioned Thanksgiving Days the weather showed itself off in about every role possible, but the Summer day role it has been fond of playing recently. The forces of rain, wind, snow and hail came down on the town in all sorts of combinations. Sometimes all four came at once; sometimes they alternated; sometimes all drew off except the wind which raked the city while the others formulated new and more telling tactics, or waited to tempt more victims into the open.

All day a nor'wester swept through the streets at any speed between twenty-five to thirty-two miles an hour. The mercury kept shifting back and forth between thirty-six and thirty degrees, and the chill dampness in the air, even when nothing was actually falling from the gray clouds, was so keen as to penetrate the thickest overcoat.

Out at sea the storm was even worse. The big Cunarder Mauretania, arriving at 4 P. M. off Fire Island, could not come up to her pier for the thickness of the weather and the violence of the wind off the Hook, but anchored in the storm all night, to make harbor this morning. The Friederich Wilhelm, from Bremen, made her pier safely in the morning, reporting rough weather all the way across, but particularly at the end of the voyage. The storm was not confined to this city and vicinity alone. It came up the coast from Florida. Virginia had her share, and yesterday the New England States and New Jersey were lashed by it as much as was New York.

But at the end of the day, with dry snow rustling at his windows and the wind howling, the weather man up in the lofty top of 100 Broadway asserted without reservation that this morning would be clear, dry, and cold.

Bundled up in mackintoshes and ulsters thousands crowded the surface cars, the elevated, and Subway trains from about the hour of the regular downtown rush up till 11 o'clock. The ferry line cars were all filled to overflowing. The streets, already in a bad state from the rain of the day before, were ankle deep in many places with a cold wet slush about the color of brown sugar, and dry feet were next to impossible.

As the rain drew off to give first hail then snow a chance the car tracks became slippery, and the cars would not properly heed their brakes. As the wind gathered velocity street travel became even more joyless. In some parts of the city, especially around Fifty-ninth Street at the Circle, signs were ripped from fastenings, and sent flying into the street, and in one of the big buildings there and elsewhere several big plate glass windows were blown in.

Toward evening for a time rifts of blue sky appeared through the gray clouds. Then the clouds shut in again. It grew colder, and the snow that came was dry. That, said the weather man, was the beginning of the end of the storm.

Over in Jersey City early in the morning the wind played havoc with the telephone, telegraph, and electric light wires. At police headquarters the Sergeant in charge of the telephone was kept busy receiving reports of lights out and wires down. In Hoboken Avenue, between Oakland Avenue and Cook Street and in Summit Avenue, between Paterson Avenue and South Street, the wires were blown down and the police reserves had to be called out to guard against live wire danger until repairs were made.

A large maple tree in front of 625 Jersey Avenue was blown down, and in falling tore away a block of telegraph wires and electric light wires.

HURRICANE AT MONTAUK.

But Dr. Finch Goes Out in It and Bags 12-Pound Goose.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTAUK, N. Y., Nov. 25.—This place has been beaten by a mighty storm for the past two days. The wind, blowing at a velocity estimated to be 100 miles an hour, has worked up a furious sea in Fort Pond Bay; one telegraph wire is working, and that most indifferently, and likely at any moment to go down. The long distance telephone is out of service, and there has been no communication by this means for a week now. The local telephone failed yesterday when a pole on the fish dock was blown down. The wind this morning has shifted to the southwest and is blowing hard.

In the midst of the gale Dr. F. A. Finch, Coroner for the town of Easthampton and special physician of the Long Island Railroad Company for the eastern end of Long Island, solved the problem of how to get a cheap bird for Thanksgiving.

With a breech-loader the doctor forced his way through the storm and brought down a wild goose on Fort Pond, which tipped the scales at twelve pounds.

The doctor, who lives at Amagansett, the famous "whaling town," says he does not intend to pay 35 cents a pound for Thanksgiving goose any year.

GOES TO RESCUE IN GALE.

When Other Ships Turn Back Tug Starts to Save Barges.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 25.—The tug Patience, Capt. George Willing, arrived this afternoon from Philadelphia, towing the Reading Railway barge Kemberton. Two other barges, the Conawago, with a crew of five men, and the E. W. Stettson, with four men in her crew, are somewhere off Montauk either in distress or drifting out to sea.

The Patience left Philadelphia Sunday afternoon with the three loaded coal barges in tow, the Kemberton and Conawago bound for Providence and the Stettson for Boston. Late Tuesday afternoon, while about 17 miles southwest of Montauk Point, the northeast gale struck the boats, and the barges broke adrift from the tug. Capt. Willing went after the Kemberton, which was powerless in the sea, as she had lost her rudder, and towed her broadside through the rough seas into Newport, after many hartships. Willing said the Conawago had dropped anchor for a time, but he could not see the Stettson shortly after the hawser parted. Capt. Willing believes the Stettson and Conawago may be lost.

After anchoring the Kemberton the Captain went to sea in the face of the gale, hoping to find the barges or perhaps their crews in boats.

Every other vessel which started out of harbor to-day was compelled to return after reaching Brenton's Reef Lightship, but the Patience continued.

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—Possible loss of life in the wreck of a coastwise sailing vessel, and the narrow escape of the German freight steamer Aragonia from destruction on the rocks skirting Cape Ann, were reported here to-day when a small fleet of steamers arrived after long detentions outside by the storm. Both the Aragonia, which arrived from Asiatic ports, and the Bostonia, from Manchester, sighted an unidentified derelict off the coast, in the vicinity of Cape Ann.

Officers of the Aragonia told of a stormy voyage across the Atlantic, which nearly terminated on the rocks off Cape Ann. A heavy pall of fog skirted the coast yesterday morning, which with an unusually strong northerly current made navigation hazardous. The current carried the Aragonia thirty-five miles off her course. A break in the curtain of fog revealed the vessel's danger to Capt. Mayer, when she was but two lengths from the rocks. The engines were reversed in time to save the ship.

SLEIGHS OUT AT MIDDLETOWN.

Six Inches of Snow Piled Into Drifts by High Winds.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Nov. 25.—There was good sleighing in Middletown and vicinity to-day for the first time on Thanksgiving Day in eleven years, with the thermometer at 25 degrees above zero. With a heavy snowfall and high winds the storm almost reached the proportions of a blizzard.

The sleetstorm of last night left two inches of ice on the ground, which made a good bottom for sleighing, when covered by the six inches of snow that fell to-day. The drifted snow caused considerable delay on the trolley and steam roads.

GALE UPSETS BOAT; 2 DROWN.

Youths Lose Their Lives While Gunning in Harbor at Cotuit, Mass.

COTUIT, Mass., Nov. 25.—While gunning in the harbor here to-day, Robert Dotedge, aged 16, and Llewellyn Wright, 15, were drowned.

Their boat was upset by the heavy northeast gale.

Rescue Party Nearly Wrecked.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 25.—George W. Carmany headed a rescue party to-day that went up the bay to hunt for four lads, two of them sons of Carmany, the others Edward Henry and Samuel Schwartz, who were believed to have been wrecked in a houseboat during last night's gale. After being nearly wrecked themselves, the rescuing party found the boys safe and sound, and only waiting for the wind to abate a little before proceeding with their duck hunting.

City of Atlanta Crippled in Storm.

Word came from Beaufort, N. C., by wireless last night that the steamer City of Atlanta, bound for New York with a general cargo and passengers aboard, had lost a blade of her propeller in Wednesday night's gale. Nevertheless she is making good time, and will arrive in port only a few hours late.

SEVERAL DIE IN WRECK.

Great Northern Train Burns After Collision—Passengers Safe.

SPOKANE, Nov. 25.—A special from Lind, Washington, says:

Three trainmen dead, two others believed to be fatally injured, five out of six cars on a Great Northern passenger train completely destroyed by fire, but every passenger safe, is the summing up of a wreck on the Northern Pacific Railroad about a mile from Lind.

The Great Northern passenger train from the coast was traveling over the Northern Pacific track on account of floods and washouts on the Great Northern line. It was due in Lind shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. The wild engine started west, and no sooner had it left the station than the operator knew that a terrible mistake had been made, but he had no means of correcting it. About a mile from Lind, the engine and the passenger train came into collision.

The dead are the engineer and fireman of the passenger train and a man believed to be a mail clerk. The engineer and fireman on the wild engine were probably fatally injured.

According to Engineer Ruth, who had pulled the train to Prosser, but who was riding on the train from that point as a passenger, every passenger escaped unscathed, except one, who was only slightly injured.

LAUNCH AFIRE, 4 DROWNED.

Party on Way to Wedding—All the Dead of One Family.

Special to The New York Times.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Nov. 25.—Four persons, all members of the same family, were drowned to-day by the capsizing of a launch in which they were crossing a branch of Lake Michigan. The engineer of the boat and another young man, together with three girls, were rescued after they had been thrown into the water.

Th party was crossing th bay to attend a wedding ceremony. A small fire, the cause of which is unknown, was discovered in the launch and the passengers—six of them girls—became panic stricken. To avoid the fire, the girls rushed to the further side of the little boat, causing it to upset. All of the occupants were thrown into the water, and fiveof them sank before their companions could reach them. The names of the persons drowned were Oscar Carlson, aged 24; Hulda Carlson, aged 22; Anna Carlson, aged 20, and Jennie Carlson, aged 18.

Oscar Leaf and Hilda Beckstrom, to whose wedding the party was going, are on their way to Chicago, not knowing of the accident. Capt. Welch, owner of the boat, believes that the accident was unavoidable, and that Nels Nelson, the engineer, did all that was possible to avert any accident. The loss of life probably resulted from the carelessness of one of the party who threy a match under the seats of the launch, according to the Captain. The five saved clung to the boom of the upturned boat for an hour until another boat could make its way to the rescue.

A BLACK EYE AND A DINNER

Thoughtful Policeman Accommodates Mr. Flannery, Who Was Handy with His Fists.

With the elements raging outside, the National bird went to the sacrifice yesterday in nearly every household in the city. Thanks to the gracious hand of charity, the homes of thousands of poor were gladdened by the arrival of baskets of substantial Thanksgiving provender. In the hospitals, asylums, and other institutions the day was celebrated.

Because of the driving storm the Hooligan parades were few and far between, although some of the braver ones did venture forth, arrayed in grotesque garb, to caper in the slushy streets.

Some hungry citizens, perhaps a score of them, adopted ingenious, not to say hazardous, means to get a Thanksgiving repast. These were men without homes, who had heard that the Charities Department was to have turkey spreads at the various jails. In every one of the police courts were arraigned prisoners who had committed petty offenses, so that, as they confessed, they would be thrown behind the bars and properly fed. One of these was Patrick Flannery, who approached Policeman Thomas McCarren, at Fifty-first Street and Third Avenue.

"If I should soak you in the eye with me fist, what would yez do with me?" asked Flannery.

"Well," replied the policeman, quizzically regarding the somewhat bedraggled questioner, "if you should do that, me boy, I should say that I would land you plum in the lock-up and blamed quick."

"Here goes, then," retorted Flannery, as he planted his fist in the policeman's left optic. Flannery, half an hour later, was arraigned before Magistrate O'Connor in the Yorkville Court.

"Why did you hit the policeman?" demanded the Magistrate.

"To get in on the feed," was the candid reply. The Magistrate asked McCarren if he wanted Flannery pnuished.

"Well, my eye's blackened, but I don't like to be mean about it a day like this," was the response.

He Got His Dinner.

Magistrate O'Connor thereupon sentenced Flannery to twenty-four hours in the Yorkville prison, where he arrived just in time to sit down to a dinner of turkey, cranberry sauce, apple pie, and cider.

"Ain't it easy?" asked Flannery of a fellow-jailbird, as he put away his share of the feast.

At the end of the meal, cigars and pipes of tobacco were passed around.

Thirty-seven inmates of the Harlem prison had a similar dinner, the men having cigars afterward and the women receiving boxes of candy. Thomas Tapping of the New York Protestant Episcopal Mission preached a Thanksgiving sermon in the prison chapel before the dinner.

At the Essex Market Court prison turkey was served to all the prisoners excepting Chin Lee and Lung Hong, the San Francisco Chinamen held in connection with the recent shooting of Lee Gong and Hong Chong in Chinatown. They refused to partake of the bird and had a specially prepared Chinese dinner, which they ate with chopsticks.

Among the sixteen prisoners at the Ludlow Street Jail who had turkey were three soldiers of the Eighth Regiment, National Guard, who had been sent there in default of payment of $6 fines for having missed drills.

Turkey and trimmings were served to ninety-eight prisoners, thirty-seven of whom were women, at the Jefferson Market Prison. Keeper Edward Toelke acted as head waiter, and his subordinates were kept busy serving the hungry guests. The dinner was enhanced with crisp celery, which Keeper Toelke himself bought. Each prisoner received half a big pie at dinner, and the other half was served at supper. Warden Peter A. Mallon handed out cigars to the men and candy to the women.

At the West Side Prison, 130 pounds of turkey was disposed of by the seventy prisoners, besides cranberry sauce and mince pie. The prisoners all ate until they couldn't eat any more. Prisoners in the Marrisania Jail were bounteously feasted.

A Feast in the Tombs.

In the Tombs Prison Warden Flynn served dinner to 554 prisoners, who made away with 250 pounds of turkey and 600 pounds of chicken. The dinner was served at noon. There was a phonograph entertainment in the men's department from 1 to 2 o'clock, in the boys' department from 2 to 3, and in the women's department from 3 to 4 o'clock.

Charles W. Morse, the convicted banker, had his own private turkey dinner, which was brought in from a neighboring restaurant. His wife and two sons visited him during the afternoon.

At the House of Refuge, on Randall's Island, the 650 boys had turkey, and then were allowed the privileges of the play halls until dark. Services were held in the chapel.

Services were held in the Manhattan State Hospital, on Ward's Island, from 8 to 10 o'clock, and a turkey dinner was served at noon, to which 4,645 patients sat down. In the evening there was an entertainment and dance in the main hall of the hospital.

Convalescent patients were allowed to partake of turkey or chicken at Flower Hospital, where there are 130 ward occupants. In some instances the patients were permitted to have friends or relatives to share the dinner with them. At the Presbyterian Hospital the same rule was followed.

The 122 patients in Fordham Hospital were served with as sumptuous a dinner as the circumstances would permit, while at St. Francis Hospital, in the Bronx, 300 patients, most of whom were able to get out of bed, were dined. Four hundred convalescents in St. Joseph's Hospital were allowed to eat turkey, which was furnished by Sister Superior Liguori and the nurses. At the Catholic Protectory Brother Henry, in charge of the institution, superintended the feeding of 1,530 boys, who ate turkey and chicken ravenously. In the afternoon there was a moving picture show in the main hall. Games that had been scheduled for the morning had to be abandoned because of the weather.

Children Got their Fill.

Two hundred and sixty children in the Home for the Friendless in the Bronx reveled in turkey, while at the Seton Hospital 200 patients were treated to chicken and turkey.

Some one sent anonymously a big box of toys for the 24 children in St. Gregory's Hosiptal, in lower Manhattan. Among them was one for Gustav Smithnew, a six-year-old boy who was run down by a horse car several weeks ago, his left foot being cut off. He forgot his misfortune and was happy all day long.

The various institutions in Harlem observed the day with special turkey dinners. At St. Luke's Hospital there were services in the morning in the chapel and wards, conducted by the Rev. George F. Clover, the superintendent. At 1 o'clock dinner with everything from turkey to ice cream was served by the nurses.

The Montefiore Home at 138th Street and Broadway had Thanksgiving service at 11 o'clock, conducted by Jacob H. Schiff, the banker, who is President of the institution, and the Rev. Dr. Freitag. A turkey dinner was served at 1 o'clock to the 295 inmates and a concert was given later in the day.

The Hebrew Orphan Asylum at 137th Street and Amsterdam Avenue was to have had a parade in the morning, but it was called off. There was a turkey dinner at noon, and the inmates played games during the afternoon.

The various clubs in the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society at 150th Street and Broadway, after attending Thanksgiving service, had a turkey dinner. These clubs are superintended by philanthropic men and women, many of whom dropped in during the day to see how the children were enjoying themselves. There are 900 children in the different clubs making up the institution.

Isaac Guggenheim sent turkeys to the 25 patients at Sydenham Hospital, in East 116th Street, and there were donations from other friends of the institution that made up the rest of a tempting dinner. Harlem Hospital, with its 165 patients, also had turkey, as did the J. Hood Wright Hospital and the Washington Heights Hospital.

None Left Hungry.

One thousand men were fed with turkey at the Bowery Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association. The Florence Crittenton Mission at 23 Bleecker Street had 250 women as guests at a turkey dinner. This and other institutions, such as the New York Protestant Episcopal Mission, also sent out baskets to the poor containing turkeys, cranberries, potatoes, turnips, celery, and pie.

At the house of the Emanu-El Sisterhood of Personal Service in East Eighty-second Street dinner was served to 200 children who are cared for on weekdays when their parents are at work. Mrs. William Einstein, President of the Sisterhood; Mrs. Walter Soloman, and Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff were in charge of the dinner. Besides serving the 200 at the house baskets were sent out to a large number of deserving families in the neighborhood. Many presents for the children the sisterhood looks after were sent in.

At Roosevelt Hospital Supt. Grimshaw served a special dinner to 197 patients.

George C. Clark, Treasurer of the General Memorial Hospital, 106th Street and Central Park West, provided a Thanksgiving dinner for the patients, numbering seventy, besides the employes of the institution.

A long line of hungry men and women stood in front of 31 West Eighth Street, the home of the St. Andrew's One-Cent Coffee Stands, in the morning, waiting for the doors to open. At 11 o'clock the doors swung open and 100 of those in line were allowed inside. They fell to with a will. But still the crowd outside seemed to increase rather than diminish. Four policemen were on hand to prevent undue crowding. When the 100 who had been admitted first had eaten about all they could hold they left the dining room and gave place to another 100 of the hungry outsiders. In all 1,200 men, women, and children were fed free of charge. In addition to these 100 families received baskets each containing dinners for six persons.

Turkey for the Bread Line.

The Bowery "bread line" was fed with Thanksgiving turkey at the Municipal Lodging House in East Twenty-fifth Street. Old-timers who have called every night for years at the Bowery Mission went up to the place the city has provided for its men who need help, and every one of them was served with a meal that lacked nothing, from turkey to mince pie.

"Peggy" Williams, the wooden-legged man who is always first in the line and in the assault on the Municipal Lodging House feast, took his place at the door long before daybreak and breasted the raging storm for hours to hold his place.

Supt. Yorke told the 2,000 homeless men and boys who jammed the place during the day to eat as much as they wanted.

"If you don't get enough, just call out," he said. They followed his advice, and no one went away hungry. At times the line of waiting men extended down the river front to Twenty-third Street and to First Avenue. The feast began at 11 A. M., and it was not until dark that the last one of the line was served. The men ranged in age from 18 to 80 years, and some were so weak they could scarcely stand.

Newsboys Make Merry.

Smiling all over themselves, and thankful that for one day they were freed from the necessity of standing in the streets and shouting "Papers! Paper, Sir!" 2,000 newsboys, hustlers from uptown and downtown New York, and from Brooklyn, gathered at the Newsboys' Home, 14 New Chambers Street, last night and partook of a royal Thanksgiving feast.

Supt. Heig of the home, the newsboys' friend; his wife, two daughters, and two sons served the boys, who were hampered by no limitation on what they might eat. The dinner was the gift by will of the late Mrs. William Waldorf Astor, whose family has given the newsboys a dinner every year for half a century.

Several days ago Mr. Heig, assisted by his wife, started to lay in the food supply necessary to satisfy the appetites of the newsboys. The Superintendent bought 700 pounds of turkey, 500 pounds of ham, four barrels of potatoes, four barrels of turnips, two bushels of cranberries, two barrels of celery, and 2,500 pies, mince and pumpkin. The supplies were all in yesterday afternoon, and newsboys helped carry them to the kitchen, where they were taken in hand by a special chef.

The dinner was scheduled for 7:30 last night, but shortly after 6 o'clock newsboys gathered at the door of the home waiting patiently for the signal which would let them know that the feast was ready. In an hour a line was formed by three policemen which stretched from the home entrance almost to Park Row. The boys were orderly but impatient.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Supt. Heig notified the policemen that a few boys could enter the dining room. The boys made a wild scramble and soon were receiving good things from Mr. Heig's daughters.

The speech of the evening was delivered by "High-Brow Aleck" Campbell, who said he wished that "Bill" Taft would make Thanksgiving come every month. He started to talk business, but was halted by 2,000 boys at once, and he had to take his seat.

"Smoky" Korrigan sang "The River Shannon," and took the house. The boys were invited to sing a few popular airs in chorus and then left the hall.

THANKSGIVING IN BROOKLYN.

Turkey for All in Almshouse—Feasting at the Navy Yard.

Brooklyn celebrated Thanksgiving Day with special services in the churches, family reunions, and a general round af gayety. The poor were remembered with gifts of turkeys and other good things to eat. The Protestant churches in many of the neighborhoods joined in union services in the morning. Because of the weather conditions, and also for the reason that the public has ceased to encourage him, the begging ragamuffin was little in evidence on the streets.

In the almshouse in Flatbush the inmates disposed of hundreds of turkeys, while the prisoners in Raymond Street Jail were treated to a chicken dinner. It was "duff day" at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and the 10,000 bluejackets and marines there enjoyed a Thanksgiving "mess," of which the popular plum duff was a feature. On the battleships Rhode Island, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Ohio, and Nebraska, three cruisers, four gunboats, and other craft in the yard, the jackies ate good things and made merry. On the receiving ship Hancock 500 men sat down to a big Thanksgiving Day dinner.

The day was a lively one at the Naval Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, in Sands Street. On Thanksgiving Eve 500 sailors registered, and most of these sat down to the old-fashioned New England dinner, which was served at the branch yesterday afternoon.

There was but one boat at the Navy Yard on which there was no celebration. That was the replica of the Half Moon. The crew of the Half Moon, consisting of one man, was invited out to dinner.

SHIPP GETS A FINE DINNER.

Tennesseeans Look After Ex-Sheriff and Companions in Jail.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Capt. Joseph F. Shipp, ex-Sheriff at Chattanooga, and his companions, who are serving jail sentences inflicted by the Supreme Court of the United States for contempt, to-day had a turkey dinner of large proportions provided by Tennessee friends.

Warden McKee was asked by wire if such a dinner could be provided. He acceded to the request, and instructions accordingly were sent to a Tennesseean here to attend to the matter, which he did bountifully.

Warden McKee says that Capt. Shipp and his associates had been exemplary prisoners.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 25.—Salvation Army workers to-day found the wife and children of Henry Padgett in destitute circumstances. Padgett is now confined in the District of Columbia jail with Capt. J. F. Shipp. Mrs. Padgett and her children were dependent for a limited Thanksgiving dinner on the bounty of a near-by grocer, and the Salvation Army has started a fund to keep the family in bread until the husband completes his sentence for contempt.

CHURCHES THRONGED FOR THANKSGIVING

Large Congregations Hear Sermons of the Important Topics of the Day.

SUFFRAGETTES ARRAIGNED

Dr. Parkhurst Says Women Only Lessen Their Influence by Fighting Like Men—Tribute to John S. Kennedy.

Thanksgiving was observed in practically all the churches in New York yesterday, and in most cases very large congregations attended. The subjects dealt with in the pulpits covered a wide field. The woman suffrage agitation was sharply criticised by Dr. Parkhurst in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity, spoke hopefully of the future of the country; Dr. David G. Wylie of the Scotch Presbyterian Church spoke plainly of so-called "food trusts," and Dr. Robert S. MacArthur of the Calvary Baptist Church paid his respects to the Illinois lynchers, and said it was time to use ball and not blank cartridges in dealing with mobs such as that which recently lynched two men in Cairo, that State.

"The question," said Dr. Parkhurst in discussing woman suffrage, "is a profound one, and nips down into the heart of a matter that is being in these days all too volubly discussed. It is a matter in regard to which we cannot afford to be either jocose or flippant. Taken in its innermost meaning, which is a meaning further in than is sometimes brought to view in either printed or platform exploitations, it is a radical question, lying at the base of most that relates to the individual, to the home, to the State, or to the Church."

Dr. Parkhurst then spoke of a prominent woman who was in the audience at the Carnegie Hall meeting for women. He did not name her.

The Migratory Sisterhood.

"I do know," he said, "that there was one woman very conspicuously present upon that platform who had herself changed husbands, so I suppose there must have been something in her case that might give point to her abjurgations; yes, and there was another one there, too, prominently connected with the movement—I mean the eruption—that also belonged to the migratory sisterhood. I do not mean at all that this agitation is in the interests of what might be called 'tandem polygamy,' but our ladies, of the delicacy with which they are supposed to be possessed, and with which, as a rule, they certainly are possessed, should be made thoughtful by facts of that kind, and should be assured that the underlying spirit of any revolution is likely to be more or less accurately represented in the personal quality of the leaders of that revolution.

"Woman will get all she wants," he said, "if she is womanly in her way of getting it, but if she is man in her way of getting it she will not get more than half of what she wants. If they come down to man's level they will have to take their chances and will mean no more in the shaping of events that they would have done had they been born members of the other sex."

A great congregation heard Dr. Charles L. Goodell, pastor of Calvary Methodist Church, the largest church of that denomination in America, preach on "The Hand of God in American History."

"What else could it have been," said Dr. Goodell, "save the hand of God on the tiller of the Mayflower, on the hilt of the sword of Washington, and guiding the inspired pen of Lincoln? Righteousness is inherent in the American people, and it is there from the hand of God. There is a higher influence which has made us a righteous people and kept us a righteous people at heart. It may be necessary, from time to time, to turn rogues out of the Custom House and out of the great insurance companies. But that has nothing to do with the great fact, and we are standing, a nation, facing the future hopefully. There are the great principles of righteousness enthroned, and the hand of God is in their enthronement."

Our Grounds for Thanks.

The Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity Parish, preaching in Trinity Church, had as his text "Go Your Way Into His Gates with Thanksgiving." He said that the fact of the appointment of a day of thanksgiving by the civil authorities and its recognition as such by an entire nation was in itself impressive.

"We should also give thanks to-day as citizens," he said, "for the strong movements toward higher and better things, the movement toward social justice, toward the setting up on earth of that kingdom which Christ came to set up. It may seem sometimes as if things were moving the wrong way, that there was more wrongdoing in public places than ever before. This is not true. The truth is that the world's conscience is being awakened. The public conscience to-day will not tolerate the things that were once tolerated. The iniquities laid bare before us, as monstrous as they are, are not greater than the iniquities of other days. We see them so more clearly and in a different light."

The Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise of the Free Synagogue delivered the sermon at Temple Bnai Jeshurun, Madison Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street. Among other things Dr. Wise said that America will not rise to the highest level of thanksgiving unless it keeps open wide the door of opportunity to the world. "America, he added, spells opportunity, and if the American heart is sound and not rotten, it will be moved to keep the door open to the exiled, the oppressed, and the weary of the world.

"We should make," he said, "the spirit of American liberty a burning flame to consume the despotism and the oppression of the old world."

Dr. Wise deprecated what he termed the "blind and deadly indifference of many Jews, both orthodox and reform." "There are some Jews in New York," he said, "who think they have done all that they could be asked to do if they provide orphan asylums, synagogues, and homes for the aged."

"The rich Jews, not all of them," he said, "but some, think that to send a child to an orphan asylum is everything that should be done. I don't believe that it is. An effort should be made to prevent orphans, and if mothers and fathers were treated more like human beings than machines, there would not be so many orphans to be taken care of. I would like to take some of the sons and daughters of rich Jews out of their palatial and luxurious homes, and put them in asylums to make something out of their empty lives. The real curse of the great Jewish community to-day is that the sons and daughters of our rich have lost the fine flower of Judaism, and have no ideals. That is the danger, and that is the blight. All that they seem to care about is pleasure, theatres, the opera, automobiles, and fashions."

The Right Rev. David H. Greer, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, conducted the services in the crypt of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. He was assisted by Archdeacon Nelson and the clergy of the cathedral. Bishop Greer's text was "Ye are not your own."

"You are not your own property, you are the property of others; and what one holds in trust must be faithfully and conscientiously administered.

"A man who is faithful to this trust makes the most of life and of himself. Men who live selfish and individual lives are not making the most of themselves, nor are they furthering the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Sooner or later the world finds that man out. If we are to do our work as we should we must live full and pure lives. We must have physical strength and moral courage." He concluded a very helpful address in the words of his text, "Ye are not your own."

Tribute to John S. Kennedy.

In the Scotch Presbyterian Church Dr. Wylie paid a tribute to the late John S. Kennedy, who left great sums to charitable institutions, churches, and colleges, and said that what Mr. Kennedy had done was a fine example to men of wealth that they give to the church as well as to education.

Dr. Robert S. MacArthur, preaching in Calvary Baptist Church, said that the people should be thankful because the north pole has been discovered despite the fact that "a discoverer is needed to discover the discoverer." Dr. MacArthur referred to the great prosperity of the country, and said that John D. Rockefeller's creation of the "Laboratory of Research" to combat disease was the "noblest gift ever known to the human race." He also praised the splendid gifts of the late John S. Kennedy, and added that "Scots are said to be close, but would to God, for the benefit of humanity, we had more such Scotchmen."

The services in St. Patrick's Cathedral were in memory of the deceased members of the Catholic Benevolent Legion. Mgr. M. J. Lavelle, rector of the Cathedral, preached. At 9 A. M. a special Thanksgiving Mass was celebrated, at which Father Bernard T. McQuade read the prayer for the church civil authorities.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN EUROPE.

Pan-American Dinner in London—Celebrations at Oxford, Berlin, Rome.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The American Society in London, at its annual Thanksgiving dinner to-day entertained the representatives in London of all the American countries. These included, as a matter of course, United States Ambassador Reid and Lord Strathcona, High Commisioner for Canada; and there were present also the Mexican, Cuban and Brazilian Ministers, while intermingled with them were numerous representative Englishmen and the Rector and Wardens of St. Ethelburga's Church, where Hudson took communion before starting on the voyage of exploration up the Hudson River. The gathering was one of the largest in the history of the Society, and the American colony was strongly represented.

A formal toast to King Edward having been honored, Rafael Montoro y Valdez, the Cuban Minister, proposed the health of President Taft. He expressed the great debt of gratitude of the Cubans to America and to "the great statesman so well known in Cuba, who now presides over the United States."

Lord Ampthill, in a toast to "The American Ambassador," paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Reid, who, he said, had done so much to promote the good relations that now exist between Great Britain and the United States. Mr. Reid, in reply and speaking on "Thanksgiving Day," dwelt on the many things Americans had to be thankful for. Not the least of these, he declared, was the great prosperity of their country.

OXFORD, Eng., Nov. 25.—One hundred and twenty-five Americans, including the Rhodes scholars, met at a Thanksgiving dinner to-day. J. S. Custer, a Rhodes student from Missouri, presided. This morning the Rev. Newman Smyth of New Haven, Conn., delivered a Thanksgiving discourse at Mansfield College chapel.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—Three hundred Americans sat down to a Thanksgiving dinner to-night in Exposition Park, where the American exposition will be held next year. Consul General A. H. Thackara presided, and Prof. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, President of the University of California, made the principal address. The gathering sent an address of greeting to President Taft at Washington.

After the dinner the younger members of the party danced until late into the night.

ROME, Nov. 25.—American flags waved to-day over all American institutions and the homes of many Americans in observance of Thanksgiving day. At the American College a dinner was given to nearly 150 sudents, while Archbishop Seton gave a luncheon, among his guests being Capt. Frank H. Holmes, U. S. N.

Another occasion of special interest was a dinner arranged by the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Rome, at which Dr. N. Walling Clark, President of the Methodist Theological School of Rome, presided, those present including the Rev. Bertrand M. Tipple of Stamford, Conn., the new pastor of the Methodist Church here.

CANNON AND GROCE NOT FREE LANCES

ship's call had been received, and in the absence of such advices it is conjectured that the vessel put in merely to discover whether British interests were in jeopardy.

It was not denied, however, that the personal visit of Commander Thesiger might have been for the purpose of ascertaining exactly the proportions the revolution has attained. It was pointed out that if Great Britain had intended to recognize the belligerency of the Estrada party it would have acted under international law, which provides that such recognition be made publicly and formally.

STEAMER REPORTS FIGHTING.

Rumors of Engagement Back of Bluefields Heard in Port Limon.

MOBILE, Nov. 25.—Officers of the steamer Bluefields, arriving to-day from Costa Rico, say it was reported at Port Limon that fighting was going on in the rear of Bluefields.

As the steamer was leaving a large American cruiser was making into Port Limon.

ESTRADA GETS WAR SUPPLIES.

Steamer Utstein Also Brings Americans to Operate Artillery.

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, Nov. 25.—The Norwegian steamship Utstein arrived here this morning from New Orleans with 2,000 Mauser rifles, 250,000 rounds of ammunition, and several pieces of light artillery for the revolutionists. The steamer also brought several Americans to operate the guns.

In an interview to-day Gen. Chamorro, the revolutionary leader, said that when Groce and Cannon were captured by Gen. Toledo, near Greytown, Zelaya ordered them shot. Toledo refused to obey the order, but had them placed in the front ranks, where they were open to Gen. Chamorro's attack. They were uninjured, however, and subsequently were sent to El Castillo fort, where they were confined in the dungeon. Gen. Chamorro says he knows nothing further regarding Groce and Cannon.

Chamorro declares the blockade of Greytown is effective by sea and land, and he is confident that the troops of the Government will give in. He leaves to-night for Greytown with 300 recruits and a party of sharpshooters. Conditions here are quiet.

BRITISH VISIT TO ESTRADA.

Commander of Cruiser Scylla Calls on Provisional President.

COLON, Nov. 25.—A wireless dispatch from Bluefields, Nicaragua, dated Nov. 24, and received here to-day, says:

"The British cruiser Scylla arrived here Sunday and leaves to-day. Commander Bertram S. Thesiger of the cruiser made an official visit to Provisional President Estrada yesterday.

"It is stated in reliable quarters here that Groce and Cannon, the Americans who were executed recently, were shot and buried by order of President Zelaya. They were with Gen. Chamorro, and were captured during a fight near Colorado Junction. Great indignation is felt here over the executions.

"The Captain of a boat who paid a visit to Estrada at Greytown yesterday, says that Gen. Chamorro's blockade is effective. A heavy sea is running, which, he says, prevents the escape of the Zelayan forces. Greytown is devoid of provisions, and the Zelayan troops are expected to capitulate shortly. Two hundred deserters from the Government forces east of Rama, joined Gen. Estrada yesterday. The men were in a famished condition.

"Since the announcement was made that the American Government has recognized the revolutionists, enthusiasm here has become more intense. Volunteers from the plantations and gold mines are eagerly offering their services to Gen. Estrada."

TAFT ON LONG TRAMP TIRES WICKERSHAM

Had Dined on Turkey with His Family and Wanted a Real Constitutional.

AT CHURCH IN MORNING

President Attended Special Pan-American Services Conducted by Catholic Prelates—Quiet Day for Cabinet.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—President Taft's Thanksgiving to-day was of the all-around sort. He cleared his desk of correspondence the first thing in the morning, attended a Pan-American service at St. Patrick's Catholic Church at 11 o'clock, conferred with Attorney General Wickersham, and took a horseback ride in the afternoon, and dined at the White House with the members of his family in the evening. The 50-pound mince pie threatened by the Pie Bakers' Union in New York, was waylaid in transit, but the 52-pound turkey from the Vose Farm in Rhode Island was on the table.

After so many 'possum dinners and elaborate banquets faced during his recent trip from coast to coast, Mr. Taft fairly beamed with content over that family Thanksgiving dinner. When the sweets were served he leaned back in his chair.

"Thank goodness," he sighed, happily, "I've had a dinner at which I have not been compelled to make speeches, and where no Reception Committees lurk in the background. I've enjoyed food—real food—and I haven't had to work to get it."

When the news of the President's satisfaction percolated below stairs there was another Thanksgiving ceremony. To-night the White House chef is the proudest citizen of the District of Columbia, while his assistant shines with reflected pride.

President Had No Guests.

The President did not have any guests at dinner. With the President and Mrs. Taft at the table were Miss Helen Taft and Charley Taft, both home from their schools for the occasion, and Mrs. Thomas K. Laughlin, Mrs. Taft's sister. The only absentee from the family gathering was Robert Taft, the oldest son.

When the dinner was ended and the family group had spent some time together in the drawing room, Mr. Taft decided that he needed exercise. Accordingly a White House attache called Attorney General Wickersham on the telephone, and the legal expert of the Administration arrived at the Executive Mansion within a half hour.

"Let's take a walk, Wickersham," said the President. "I've got to do something to settle my dinner. I hope you enjoyed your turkey as much as I did mine."

Mr. Wickersham's reply was inaudible, but he appeared well fed and supremely satisfied.

The President and the Attorney General then struck off on a walk that lasted more than two hours. They left the White House grounds by the rear gate that opens on the Mall, and their course took them over the wind-swept stretches of the Potomac River bottoms well down toward Alexandria, Va. When they returned Mr. Taft looked as fresh as when he started, but Mr. Wickersham, who is not quite so voluminous physically, appeared to be a bit weary. The two separated at the gate of the White House.

"Good-bye, Wickersham," said the President, waving his hand, "I've enjoyed the stroll immensely."

"Good night, Mr. President," returned the Attorney General, "you certainly put me through an active two hours, but I've relished every minute of it."

The President has astonished his official family by his sudden adoption of pedestrianism. He walked through the streets of Washington accompanied only by Capt. Archibald Butt, his military aid, and his stroll to-day likewise was unannounced, nor was he followed by Secret Service men.

At Pan-American Service.

The Pan-American Thanksgiving service, which the President attended this morning, was an unusual ceremonial. Admission to the church was by card, and every seat was occupied. In addition to the President the congregation included the members of the Cabinet and diplomats from the South and Central American republics. The highest Catholic ecclesiastics in the country presided within the sanctuary, Cardinal Gibbons occupying the throne on the Gospel side and Mgr. Dlomede Falconio, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, participating from the Epistle side. The sermon was by Rev. Dr. William T. Russell, pastor of the church. Twined about the pillars were the colors of the United States and the Latin-American republics, with the Stars and Stripes predominant.

President Taft began the afternoon with a conference with Attorney General Wickersham, at which matters relating to Inter-State commerce and corporation control were chiefly liscussed. With Mr. Wickersham's departure the door was closed on business for the day, and the President took a horseback ride through the Mall accompanied by his military aid, Capt. Butt.

The members of the Cabinet observed the day in orthodox manner. Secretary Knox was compelled to be at his office for some time because of the pressing nature of the Nicaraguan affair. All the other Cabinet members, with the exception of Postmaster General Hitchcock, dined with their families. The Postmaster General is a bachelor, and he kept inviolate the secret of where he was to eat his Thanksgiving turkey. Practically all of the high officials of the Government attended church in the morning.

FOOTBALL INJURIES MAY COST 3 LIVES

Virginia Cadet, Hurt in Game, Has Concussion of Brain and Condition Is Critical.

OHIO PLAYER BADLY INJURED

Kicked in the Head by Runner He Attempted to Tackle—Member of Washington Team May Die.

Special to The New York Times.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Nov. 25.—Cadet Fred Webster, centre of the Virginia Military Institute football eleven, was seriously injured in the annual game here to-day with Davidson College. To-night three physicians say he has concussion of the brain, and that his condition is critical. Late to-night he recovered consciousness, after having been senseless for several hours. Webster passed the ball for a run around Davidson's right end. How he was injured in the scrimmage has not been explained. When he did not rise from the ground he was carried from the field and taken to a hotel.

Webster is 20 years of age and his home is in Missoula, Mont. This is his first year at the institute.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Nov. 25.—During the Otterbein-Wittenberg football game to-day, Quarter Back Cole of the Wittenberg team was seriously injured. He was carried unconscious from the field.

In an attempt to tackle one of the Otterbein players Cole fell and was kicked on the head by the runner. His team mates and Coach De Tray worked over him for ten minutes in a vain effort to revive him.

Cole was carried from the field and taken to a fraternity house in an automobile. He has concussion of the brain, his skull was fractured, and his spinal column was injured. He recovered consciousness to-night, but his recovery is doubtful.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Nov. 25.—Five football players were injured, two seriously to-day in a game between Washington State College and Whitman College. Clarence Morrow, right guard for Whitman, has three ribs broken and William Clemens, Whitman's centre, was unconscious for five hours from a blow on the head. He is reported to be in a critical condition.

SHAKEN FROM A TRESTLE.

Farmer Hung by His Hands to Escape Car, but Fell Thirty Feet.

William Dinler, an elderly farmer, of Babylon, L. I., is in the Jamaica Hospital, Jamaica, suffering from dangerous hurts as the result of falling from a trestle of the New York & Long Island Traction Company at Springfield, L. I. Dinler was walking over the trestle when he saw a trolley car approaching. There is no room on the trestle for a person to stand while a car is passing, and Dinler lowered himself between the ties and hung by his hands, expecting to be able to hold on until the car should pass and then pull himself up again.

The vibration of the trestle caused by the car broke his hold, and he fell thirty feet to the Long Island Railroad tracks below the trestle. He was found there by a railroad man, who summoned an ambulance from the Jamaica Hospital. He has a severe scalp wound, but it was said at the hospital that his skull was not fractured. Several of his ribs were broken and it is feared he may be injured internally.

MAN DYING; FAMILY STARVING.

Report of Police Relieved the Misery of Eight Persons.

A boy ran into the Bedford Avenue Police station, Williamsburg, yesterday, to say that a family was starving in the rear of a barber shop at 324 Wythe Avenue. Policeman Young found there John Rogolanko, a barber, dying of pulmonary pneumonia and his wife and six small children were suffering terribly from exposure and lack of nourishment.

On account of his illness the barber had not been able to do any business and his shop was kept closed. He became in arrears with his rent and on Wednesday he received a dispossess notice and the family was to have been evicted to-day. The condition of the family became known through the crying of children for food.

Policeman Young sent to the Eastern District Hospital for an ambulance and the dying man was taken there. Dr. Moskowitz returned to the barber shop to look after the woman and children. The Children's Society later took charge of the children, and a neighbor took in the barber's wife. She was so weak from hunger that she could scarcely stand.

Monastery for Cloister Nuns.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., Nov. 25.—St. Joseph's Convent here, which is now occupied by the Cloister Nuns and which is to be known in future as the Monastery of St. Clare, was dedicated to-day by the Right Rev. Bishop McFaul of the Trenton Diocese. The nuns of this order are exclusively devoted to prayer and penance, and live by alms and the work of their hands. The order is 700 years in existence, but was not established in America until 1875.

CLAN-NA-GAEL FLAYS THE IRISH LEADERS

Hisses Redmond and O'Connor and Hopes Germany May Triumph Over England.

MEMORIAL TO THE FENIANS

Speaker Thinks Ireland Will Some Day Win Her Freedom and Join the Republics.

Hisses for the Irish parliamentary leaders, John Redmond and T. P. O'Connor, the hope expressed and wildly applauded that Germany may whip Great Britain if war breaks out between the two nations, and the prediction that Ireland will not cease to worry England until the men of Ireland can make their own laws beneath their own flag, were among the features that kept the Clan-na-gael memorial meeting last night in Cooper Union in a state of enthusiasm from the opening address of Congressman Michael F. Conry, to the final song, "God Save Ireland," in which over a thousand throats joined.

The meeting was held to commemorate the forty-second anniversary of the deaths of Allen, Larkin, and O'Brien, the Manchester "martyrs." Congressman Conry related briefly the Fenian outbreak in Ireland in 1867 and the failure of that cause, from which it had been hoped to create a free Ireland.

The oration of the evening was delivered by ex-Justice O'Neill Ryan of St. Louis. His references to Parnell evoked great applause, but then came the contrast when in but one mention of the names of Redmond and O'Connor a storm of hisses reverberated throughout the hall.

"Don't hiss him," said Judge Ryan, referring to O'Connor, "his fate is sufficiently an unpleasant one.

"The Irish parliamentary movement no longer represents the purpose and determination of the movement under Parnell," he said, "and that is the reason why it inspires no confidence among Irishmen. These Irish parliamentarians say that the Liberal Party made certain secret promises in 1906 toward giving Ireland home rule. What is the result? The Liberal Party is now tottering, and home rule is treated with the contempt that these leaders themselves deserve. And we now find the Irish Party tied up with the English Liberal Party on the much-talked of budget, which, so far as Irishmen are concerned, means an additional tax of £2,000,000 to Ireland. That's the kind of support Irishmen are getting from the English Liberals."

The speaker then called attention to the elaborate preparations for war in Germany and England.

"England is nervous, fearfully anxious at every German rumor. Why, the flight of an airship put her into convulsions. It looks as though war were inevitable, and when it does come I want Germany to win. But we want it understood that the United States keeps her hands off. Let England and Germany fight it out. We owe more to Germany, I say, than to England. The great body of German citizens coming here have become citizens and have helped to bear the burdens as well as to reap the benefits of this country. Let Germany win."

"Yes, yes, that's right!", shouted a score of voices.

In referring to the particular object of the meeting Judge Ryan said that the execution of the three Irishmen on the Manchester scaffold for participation in the Fenian outbreaks was simply another illustration of the policy shown by England "ever since she put her accursed foot in Ireland." Clan-na-Gael stands for an Irish republic, he added, won by any means by Irish people.

"It does not mean that Ireland is to be satisfied to remain a province of the English nation and to continue the policy of Parliamentary petitions. We have had enough of that, but the Irish must find in themselves that spirit of Fenianism, perhaps under another guise, which will give them the confidence to achieve freedom."

Among the large delegation on the platform were Surrogate Daniel Cohalan, Justice O'Gorman, Justice Dowling, Congressman Riordan, and Sheriff Foley.

O'CONNOR GUEST OF EDITORS.

Confident of Return of Liberals, Which Will Help Home Rule Cause.

T. P. O'Connor, M. P., was entertained at the Aldine Association Wednesday evening by Dr. Orison Swett Marden, and a number of magazine editors and proprietors were invited to meet him. Mr. O'Connor made a brief speech on the political situation in England, and expressed confidence that the Liberals would be returned to power at the coming election with a majority large enough to enforce the policy of the present Ministry. This he believes will work out in aid of Home Rule.

Among those present were S. S. McClure, E. J. Ridgway, Dr. Austin B. Fletcher, Hamilton Wright Mabie, Dr. Albert Shaw, Harold J. Howland, George W. Wilder, Edward J. Wheeler, George Hazen, Arthur Little, Edward E. Higgins, Col. George Harvey, and Herbert S. Houston.

None Blamed for Crusen's Death.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 25.—The Coroner's jury late last night found that Henry Crusen, letter carrier, came to his death in the State Hospital for the Insane from injuries received while a patient, but the jury could not fix the responsibility. He died of ten broken ribs. The Grand Jury will probe further.

LIFE SAVERS BURNED OUT.

Firemen Struggled Against Odds to Reach Hunt's Point, but Were Too Late

Four members of the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps, who were guarding the East River front, opposite Hunt's Point, were awakened by smoke Thanksgiving eve. They found that the stove in their quarters had become overheated and the board wall was smoldering. They tore off a few strips and crawled back into their bunks. At 4 o'clock yesterday morning they were routed out again and rushing down from the upper floor they found the kitchen ablaze. Mounted Patrolman Timothy Ryan of the Morrisania station was plodding along in the dark through a heavy sleet at this time and he got the alarm and galloped his horse a mile to a fire alarm box.

The call brought out a section of the department and a fire boat, but they could not get within less than half a mile of the burning house.

One truck was dragged through the muck until it got close enough to be of possible assistance. The firemen waded through water and slush up to their knees until they reached the fire, but by that time the house was burned down.

The building lay about five hundred yards back from the shore, and within a few hundred feet of it is the old Hunt mansion, which was not touched by the flames.

The structure burned was a two-story frame building owned by Frederick Johnson, of Westchester and Prospect Avenues. The loss was $1,500.

GIVES PORTUGAL A CLEAN BILL

Col. Wyllie Denies That Negroes Are Ill-Treated in Sao Thome.

The stories widely circulated in this country and England that slavery exists in Portuguese East Africa and that the African negroes are cruelly treated, especially in the islands of Sao Thome and Principe, were denied yesterday by Col. J. A. Wyllie, F. R. G. S., of England, who arrived from Southampton on the White Star liner Teutonic. He spent August on the islands. Col. Wyllie said that he found perfect freedom and a spirit of friendliness existing between the white man and the black.

"The African's condition is wonderfully improved as a laborer for the Portuguese in contrast with his home environment in Central Africa," said Col. Wyllie. "They come down to the coast, many of them cannibals, and all of them barbarians, and are glad to hire out to the planters to escape the tortures of their own tribes On the plantations they are well housed, well fed, and the medical treatment afforded them is excellent."

Gas Explosion in a Tenement.

A gas explosion in the electrical supply shop of Hoffman & Bank in the basement of a five-story tenement at 42 West 116th Street yesterday aroused all the tenants of the place, and led the police to believe that some violence had been attempted. The windows were blown out of the shop and some of the stock in a cigar store on the ground floor was upset. There was an immediate exodus of the tenants.

Third Pennsylvania Tube Completed.

With the completion yesterday of the third tunnel of the Pennsylvania Railroad under the East River to Sunnyside Yard, Long Island City, the construction of the company's tunnel lines from Bergen Hill, N. All of this work will be completed before the end of the year.

MRS. ROOSEVELT RETURNS.

She and Her Daughter Arrive Home on the Koenig Albert.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and her daughter, Miss Ethel Roosevelt, arrived home from abroad yesterday. They landed from the North German Lloyd liner Koenig Albert in the driving storm of the morning. Both were in excellent health, and said they had enjoyed their stay on the other side.

Mrs. Roosevelt was met down the bay by Collector Loeb, Col. Roosevelt's ex-secretary. The Collector saw to it personally that the Roosevelt baggage was expedited in its passage through the customs lines.

When Mrs. Roosevelt and her daughter came ashore they were welcomed by Theodore Roosevelt, Jr.; Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Douglas Robinson, her brother-in-law; Congressman W. W. Cocks of Oyster Bay, and Joseph Murray, ex-Assistant Commissioner of Immigration at this port. The arriving travelers were delayed only a short time on the pier.

When Mrs. Roosevelt and her daughter stepped ashore they found a battery of cameras facing them. The Collector, who had been hovering near, came to the rescue and gallantly shielded them behind his umbrella. The men behind the cameras were foiled.

Mr. Robinson, speaking for Mrs. Roosevelt, said that she had returned for the holidays. She will stay here until February, when she and her daughter will return to the other side. They had their Thanksgiving dinner with Mrs. Cowles.

There is to be a family gathering on Christmas at Oyster Bay. On her return to Europe Mrs. Roosevelt will spend some time with her sister, Miss Carew, at the latter's villa near Rome. There she will await the return of Col. Roosevelt from Africa, and will be with him when he lectures in Europe. They will return to this side with Col. Roosevelt and his son Kermit.

HEBREW SCHOOL COMPLETED.

Building Put Up by Ohel Torah Society to be Dedicated Soon.

The new building of the Ohel Torah Society, to be used as a Hebrew free school, has been completed, and the dedication exercises will be held on Dec. 18 and 19. The society began its work six years ago, and its object is to instruct the children in Hebrew and Hebrew literature free of charge and to distribute clothing at appropriate intervals.

The building is at the southeast corner of Avenue D and Sixth Street. It is valued at $75,000, and was erected by contributions. The officers of the society are J. Hollander, President; I. Teitelbaum, Vice President; M. Gottesman, Treasurer, and W. Weinberger, Secretary. There are thirty-six Directors.

There is but one barrier between intention and accomplishment—and ability clears it at a single bound

We began the production of clothes for men with sincere intentions. We had before us the fulfilment of our new standard—a high one. But most of our success is due to a preconceived notion that no matter how high we aimed, a perfected organization—and an able one, was absolutely essential to the accomplishment of our intentions.

We began with not a single raw recruit; tried and talented designers and skilful tailor men were selected with infinite care. We set about training them to meet our exacting standard. The training took root. To-day it is their second nature. Saks-made garments fulfil to the letter all that we hoped to accomplish.

SCHOLARS WILL MEET IN HISTORY'S NAME

American Societies to Celebrate Their Twenty-fifth Anniversary Here Christmas Week.

TAFT TO WELCOME THEM

Gov. Hughes and Mayor McClellan Also to Speak—Foreign Historians and Economists Coming.

The twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the American Historical and the American Economic Associations, which will be perhaps the largest and most important convention of scholars in history, economics, sociology, and allied branches of learning ever held in the United States, will be held in this city Christmas week. The announcement of the arrangements for the meetings was made yesterday after a year spent in their preparation.

Delegates of ten societies, representing about 8,000 members from all parts of the country, will be welcomed by President Taft, Gov. Hughes, and Mayor McClellan. Among the foreign representatives will be James Bryce, British Ambassador; Henry Higgs of the Royal Economic Society of England, and Signor Pantaleoni, representing the economists of Italy.

The present programme includes more than 100 topics to be discussed, each topic to be presented by a leading specialist.

The Anniversary Commission will have its headquarters in the Waldorf. The meetings will begin on Monday afternoon, Dec. 27, and will continue through Friday morning, Dec. 31. Those who are announced to speak are President Davis R. Dewey of the American Economic Association, President Albert Bushnell Hart, American Historical Assiciation; President A. Lawrence Lowell, American Political Science Association; President Henry W. Farnam, American Association for Labor Legislation; President W. G. Sumner, American Sociological Society; Acting President S. N. D. North, American Statistical Association; President John H. Finley, American Social Science Association; G. W. Prothero, London; Eduard Meyer, Berlin; R. Altamira, Spain; C. T. Colenbrander, Holland; Camille Enlart, Paris; E. Dana Durand, Director of the Census; Franklin H. Giddings, Columbia University; W. S. Ferguson, Harvard University; Albert G. Keller, Yale University; Julian P. Bretz, Cornell University; A. C. Howland, University of Pennsylvania; Albion W. Small, University of Chicago; Charles A. Ellwood, University of Missouri; R. F. Scholz, University of California; Frederic L. Paxson, University of Michigan; Charles M. Andrews, Johns Hopkins University; H. E. Bourne, Western Reserve University; Frank Heywood Hodder, University of Kansas; Edward S. Meany, University of Washington; Waldo G. Leland, Carnegie Institution; Paul Diesernd, Library of Congress, and the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie, Canadian Minister of Labor.

Special events on the programme are as follows: On Monday, Dec. 27, at 8 P. M., at Carnegie Hall, the citizens' meeting and official welcome to the American Historical Association, American Economic Association, and the allied societies holding meetings in connection with the anniversary. Joseph H. Choate will be permanent Chairman of the meeting, and addresses will be given by President Taft, Gov. Hughes, Mayor McClellan, and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

On Tuesday, Dec. 28, meetings will be held by the various associations at Columbia University and the New York Historical Society Building. A luncheon will be given by Columbia University to members of all the associations, and in the afternoon a reception will be given. The features of Tuesday evening will be a review of the work of historical societies of leading European nations, and an anniversary meeting of the American Economic Association.

On Wednesday, Dec. 29, meetings will centre at the Waldorf-Astoria; meetings of the American Historical Association and American Economic Association being held in the morning, followed by a breakfast and reception to foreign guests. Meetings and conferences will be held during the afternoon. In the evening a reception and entertainment with historical tableaux will be tendered by the Ladies' Reception Committee.

Meetings of all the societies on Thursday, Dec. 30, at Columbia University; the Merchants' Association Building, the Chamber of Commerce, the Metropolitan Building, and the Waldorf-Astoria. That evening a reception will be given in honor of the American Historical Association and American Economic Association by Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt at their residence, 660 Fifth Avenue. On Friday, Dec. 31, further meetings will be held at Columbia and the Waldorf, and a special train will take the representatives of the societies to West Point.

The Joint Anniversary Committee consists of William M. Sloane and Clarence W. Bowen for the American Historical Association, and Edwin R. A. Seligman and Samuel McCune Lindsay for the American Economic Association.

"SHOP EARLY," THEIR PLEA.

Consumers' League Gives the Public Some Christmas Suggestions.

The Consumers' League sent out its annual request yesterday for the people to shop early for Christmas. Tens of thousands of leaflets bearing the legend, "Do your Christmas shopping early," will be sent out in a few days.

Each leaflet has these six suggestions:

Buy early, early in the season, and early in the day.
Send packages two weeks before Christmas, marked "Not to be opened till Christmas."
Aim to minister to real needs. Give chiefly to children. Make it their day.
Buy nothing you cannot afford.
Choose articles showing artistic worth, or having intrinsic value.
Demand things which have been made and sold under conditions wholesome to the worker.

Last year the results of the League's campaign were not so satisfactory, many wagons standing in front of the stores as late as 11 o'clock on Christmas Eve, loaded with articles purchased that night.

HERGESELL COMES FOR TESTS

German Meteorologist to Meet Cruiser in Gulf of Mexico.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—Prof. Hergesell, the well-known German meteorologist and scientific adviser to Count Zeppelin, with whom he is associated in the proposed arctic balloon expedition, is on his way to St. Thomas, D. W. I., on the French liner Ferdinand de Lesseps.

He is to join the training cruiser Victoria Luise and superintend the German participation in international tests to be made next month in the Gulf of Mexico in the investigation of trade winds by atmosphere registering balloons.

STILSON HUTCHINS BETTER.

He Expects to Sail for New York To-morrow.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—Stilson Hutchins, who was compelled by illness to defer his voyage to America several weeks ago, is now much improved.

He expects to sail on the Lapland Saturday with Mrs. Hutchins.

APPROVE CANAL'S PROGRESS.

Congressional Committee Which Has Visited Panama Praises Col. Goethals.

HAVANA, Nov. 25.—The American Congressional Appropriations Committee, which has been inspecting the Panama Canal, arrived here this morning from Colon by the steamer Cristobal. They were received by President Gomez and spent the remainder of the day sightseeing. They expct to sail early to-morrow for New York.

Members of the committee said they were greatly pleased with the progress of work on the canal, and believed it probable that the channel would be completed and open for traffic in advance of the estimated date. Senator Crawford of South Dakota said all the members of the committee were highly impressed by the splendid work of Col. Goethals, Chairman of the Canal Commission and chief engineer of the work. They are convinced, he said, of the desirability of the passage of the bill of Mr. Mann of Illinois, which passed the House during the last session of Congress. This bill is designed to reduce the number of canal Commissioners and simplify the administration so as to give Col. Goethals a freer hand. It is also probable that the committee will recommend a reduction of from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 in the estimates of the Canal Commission.

220 ENTOMBED IN JAPAN.

Fifteen Known Dead as the Result of a Coal Mine Explosion.

TOKIO, Nov. 25.—Heavy loss of life is feared as the result of an explosion today in a coal mine at Onoura, Fukuoka Province.

Fifteen men are known to have perished, while 228 miners are entombed in the workings. Every attempt is being made to rescue them, but their fate as yet is in doubt.

PRAISE CHINESE ASSEMBLIES.

Provincial Legislatures Make Progress Toward Constitutional Government.

PEKING, Nov. 25.—The sessions of the recently constituted provincial assemblies, on being brought to a close to-day, received approval of the throne based upon Government reports of the progress made in the opening of the two years' constitutional programme.

An imperial edict urges all Government officials to co-operate with the throne at the present critical moment for the purpose of realizing the success of the constitutional plan.

CHILEANS ANGRY AT US.

Threat of a Boycott if the Alsop Claim Is Pressed.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 25.—The attitude of the United States Government in the matter of the Alsop claim held by the United States against Chile is producing an effect upon the business of the country. Chilean buyers are canceling orders for American products pending a decision in the case.

IQUIQUE, Chile, Nov. 25.—The popular feeling here is that the Alsop claim of the United States against Chile is unjust. A public meeting will be held probably on Sunday, at which an agitation will be made in favor of a boycot upon American importations unless the United States desists from pressing the claim.

AMERICAN MOTORISTS AIDED.

Party in Wreck Near Cisterna Is Brought to Rome.

ROME, Nov. 25.—The party of Americans who were shaken up in a collision of automobiles while motoring near Cisterna yesterday were quite recovered from the effects of the accident to-day. The chauffeur, George Morell, who suffered most, is rapidly improving.

Dr. George Brock motored to-day to Cisterna and brought to Rome those of the party who were cared for by the Duchess Caetani at Caetani Castle following the mishap. These were Charles W. Webber, a retired merchant of Lockport, N. Y., his daughter, Mrs. Irving Joy Bissell, and the latter's husband, a manufacturer of Detroit, Mich. The three experienced a rather severe shock, but seem to have been otherwise unharmed and were reported better following a night's rest.

Canada to Decide Seal Question.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The invitation from the United States for Great Britain to participate in an international conference with a view to regulating the killing of seals in the international waters of North America has been referred through the Colonial Office to Canada, as it is considered that the Dominion is more interested in this question than is the mother country. This probably means some delay in returning definite reply to Washington.

Dreadnoughts for France.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—According to a newspaper report, Admiral de la Peyrere, Minister of Marine, has recommended the construction of an improved Dreadnought, of 23,000 tons and speed of 21 knots, in 1910, and the building of two battleships annually until in 1919 the number shall total nineteen. Of these six will be of the Dreadnought type.

DEPEW CRITICISES TAFT RAILWAY PLANS

Points Out Difficulty of Adding Federal Regulation of Stock Issues to State Regulation.

APPROVES COURT OF APPEAL

G. A. Post Thinks Federal Control Programme as Now Foreshadowed Will Be Greatly Modified Before Enaction.

One of the warmest fights, in Congress and out, which has ever been waged by the railroads and their allies over legislation vitally affecting the railways of the country is likely to begin in the next few months, should the reported views of President Taft on sweeping changes in the railway laws, giving added power to the Inter-State Commerce Commission, be incorporated in his message to Congress in the form of recommendations as indicated in dispatches from Washington, following a conference between the President and his advisers on Wednesday.

There is a wide diversity of opinion among railroad men as to the effect of the individual items of the proposed changes in the laws concerning Federal supervision of inter-State commerce, and these views will all be presented when the matter is brought officially to the attention of Congress. Those railroad men who were to be found yesterday, however, said that they believed that the views on the question of increased Federal control which were attributed in the dispatches to the President would probably be greatly modified before they took form as statute.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the New York Central Railroad, speaking from the standpoint of a railroad man rather than as a Federal lawmaker, heartily indorsed some of the features of this proposed legislation. Others he found fault with. He said that many of the powers the President was reported as planning to secure for the Inter-State Commerce Commission were already possessed by the Public Service Commission of New York State, or the railway commissions of other States. In the matter, for instance, of supervision of the issue of stocks and bonds, he points out that the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad recently had to obtain the permission of three States before a new issue, increasing its stock, could be made. Some States, he added, have laws which compel the sale of railroad stock at par, and in Massachusetts there is a law which provides that railroad stock must be sold at auction.

Discusses Stock Issue Supervision.

"Merely to grant the power to the Inter-State Commerce Commission of prohibiting any inter-State railroad from issuing any additional stocks or bonds, except with the approval of the commission, would be to add just one more body to the number the railroads would have to apply to before issuing such stocks or bonds," said Senator Depew. "If, however, such a power could be given solely to the Inter-State Commerce Commission, so that the railroads would have that commission as the only body to apply to before such issue, I think it would be a very good thing. But I do not think this can be done, for the railroads have State charters, and having State charters are subject to the State laws in respect to the issuing of stocks and bonds."

On the question of allowing a shipper the right to route his own goods as suggested in the reported prospective Executive recommendations, Senator Depew said:

"They have that now. The only goods routed arbitrarily are those not designated. Most of the traffic is designated by the shipper or consignee.

"The greatest controversy on this subject for some years," he went on, "has been over the formation of some separate Inter-State Commerce Commission Court with a Judge who shall have the power to stay proceedings of the commission for sixty days. The Inter-State Commerce Commission has been opposed to the formation of this court, and is still opposed to it. The commission itself wishes to be the court of final resort. There are a great many railroad lawyers also who oppose the proposed court, for they believe that such a court, having nothing else to do that decided railroad cases, would seek to enlarge its functions and make itself burdensome. So far as I have investigated the question, the idea seems a good one."

Referring to the President's reported indorsement of the idea of prohibiting railroads to acquire ownership in competing lines, the Senator pointed out that the law in most States at present prevents such acquisition of control.

"To compel the railroads to go back over a great number of years and to disentangle and resolve themselves into units would be impossible," he said. "It would also inflict a great burden on the public, for it would seriously affect the value of railway securities. Take, for instance, the New York Central and the West Shore. They have become one line with the same terminals, the same yards and stations, and are operated as additional tracks of the same general system, greatly to the convenience of shippers, consignees, and the general transaction of business. I do not know how in such a case a physical separation could be performed after thirty years working as one."

On the question of the President's reported views on allowing railroads to agree on traffic rates, and make contracts with respect to rates that shall not be pooling contracts, but shall constitute agreements as to rates subject to the approval of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, Senator Depew said that this would be a wise provision indeed.

"That would give to the Government the control in the initiation and administration of such agreements," he said. "The original idea and the one which controlled the original legislation on Government supervision was to promote competition between the railroads and to prohibit their making any agreements or arrangements among themselves relating to shipment. That idea carried out has done more to create trusts than any legislation, or lack of legislation that the country has known. It left the railroads helpless against great combinations.

Working of Present System.

"For instance, when the Erie Railroad was very weak and had to have traffic to keep alive, it had also limited facilities. A powerful combination being refused by the strong roads privileges not accorded to their competitors of lesser capital would arrange with the Erie road to take all its facilities and do all its traffic over that line, but at a rate and with privileges which the stronger lines could not afford to give. None of the competitors of this strong combination could get on to the Erie line because its facilities were all engaged. They could not get the same concessions, discriminations, and rates on the other lines. This resulted in competitors being driven out of business, or bankrupted, and then the other lines being compelled to accept such terms as the monopoly would grant.

"This can be absolutely prevented if the railroads are permitted to agree among themselves, and the danger that these agreements shall become discriminative or unjust in their operation is eliminated by the whole scheme being under the control of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, or, in other words, the Government.

"To compel the connecting carriers to unite in forming a through route is a wise provision in connection with the right of a shipper to route his own goods as he chooses. This guards, in a disagreement between competing lines, against the refusal of one of them to make a through route. It is a remote danger, but it has existed.

"The bill which if enacted into a law will carry these changes into effect," continued Mr. Depew, "will have to be minute in detail, and, I take it, that the opposition, both in and out of Congress, will be more to certain details of the measure than to the general principle. There is always a wide difference of opinion between the practical men, even when they are agreed as to a principle on the question of putting it into operation."

Post Feels No Alarm.

George A. Post, President of the Railway Business Association, said that he did not believe the proposed legislation would be so sweeping as the Washington dispatches which undertook to report the President's recommendations seemed to imply.

Mr. Post said that a deputation from his association called on President Taft last week and conferred with him on the proposed railway legislation, and added that while he could not disclose the recommendations made to the President by the representatives of the railroad supply interests he felt sure that the President's views on the needed reforms were not such as would impose great hardship on the railroads.

"I do not believe the President's recommendations will be nearly so sweeping as foreshadowed," said Mr. Post. "We are hopeful and confident that his recommendations will not be such as will bring a fight with them. There seems to be more apprehension than the occasion warrants. During his Western trip the President gave out many lines of suggestion on railway legislation which were intended for the people themselves to thresh out. We are not at all afraid that his recommendations to Congress will contain that which could be construed into a lashing of the railroads."

Ex-Senator John C. Spooner at a recent address before the Railway Business Association took up the questions which, it is said, are to be considered by President Taft in his message to Congress. Senator Spooner was opposed to the proposed court for the settlement of railroad matters and was also opposed to the Government supervision of railroad stock and bond issues.

W. P. Hepburn, father of the Hepburn bill, also placed himself on record as opposing the postponement of a freight rate advance by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, but Mr. Hepburn says he favors Government supervision of railroad securities. Mr. Hepburn also says that the Forty-ninth Congress never had any intent to take away from the railroads the power to make rates, that the Inter-State Commerce Commission's part was to judge the rates and pass upon them after they were made. Mr. Hepburn does not approve of the railroad court.

TO INVESTIGATE BABY HOME.

Death of 22 Infants at East Providence to Lead to Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 25.—To investigate conditions in the Myrtle Baby Home in East Providence, in which twenty-two infants died within a short time, a Coroner's inquest has been ordered by Attorney General Greenough. This action came as a surprise to the Lighthouse Mission, whose members have been conducting the baby home for a year or more.

The inquest will be conducted by Coroner Babcock, and until the Coroner reaches a decision no report of the investigation conducted recently by Medical Examiner Allison is to be made public. Dr. Allison's secret findings have been turned over to Attorney General Greenough and in turn to Coroner Babcock.

Dr. Allison said that he performed one autopsy, and when he sought to examine the bodies of other infants he found they had been taken out of the State, and sent to various points wherever the mother of each child might have belonged.

"The reason for calling in Coroner Babcock," said Dr. Allison, "is to make a more thorough investigation than is possible under a medical examiner's authority. The Coroner will be guided, to a great extent, by the advice of Attorney General Greenough."

Coroner Babcock said to-night: "An inquest has been ordered and will be held at once. There are a lot of witnesses, and we expect to get something worth all the trouble of an inquiry."

HUNTSMAN SHOOTS AT BOYS.

Wounds One When Asked if He Has License to Hunt.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Fearing he would be reported to the authorities for hunting without a license, an unknown Italian shot at three boys, wounding one of them, at Midway Park, near this city, this afternoon. The boys are Walter Gerow, Percy Dow, and George Carey, all of Middletown.

As they were leaving the park to return to this city the boys saw a man with a shotgun over his shoulder. One of them shouted at him, asking if he had a license.

In reply the Italian raised his gun, shot twice at the boys, and then ran. Both loads of birdshot struck Gerow's legs.

THINK THEY HAVE A ROBBER.

Police Say a Prisoner with a Blackjack Is a Highwayman.

George French, who says he lives at 252 West Seventeenth Street, was arrested in a saloon at 256 West Thirtieth Street on Wednesday night for carrying a blackjack. He was arraigned in the West Side Court yesterday before Magistrate Herrman and held in $2,000 for examination to-day.

The police said that in the last three weeks two women have been struck by a man armed with a blackjack or club and robbed. They said that William Baker, proprietor of the saloon in which they found French, was shot some time ago and is still in a serious condition in Bellevue Hospital.

The police say French has a bad record.

HE DOUSED THE INTRUDER.

Elevated Ticket Taker Gives a Negro a Bit of His Own Medicine.

Walter Weaver, a negro who said he came from Philadelphia, was fined $10 by Magistrate Herbert in Harlem Police Court yesterday for disorderly conduct. Early in the morning, it was charged, he stood by a coal stove in the elevated station at 155th Street and Eighth Avenue, and splashed warm water from a bucket on persons nurrying for trains.

Charles H. Hill, ticket taker at the station, objected to the actions of the negro and threw the contents of the bucket over him. He and Special Policeman Coates, on duty at the station, overpowered Weaver and took him to court.

"Pretty easy," murmured the prisoner when he heard that a turkey dinner and cigars would be given him in the prison.

LITTLE JOURNEYS ON THE WATER WAGON

Passengers Tell of the Joys of Through Trips on That Roomy Vehicle.

AN APRON WITH A HISTORY

Up-State Woman Kept It for Years as a Hostage to Assuage Perpetual Thirst.

Drunkards who had been converted through the Salvation Army and active drinkers who were curious to hear their reformed brothers and sisters tell how they had reached a permanent place on the water wagon, gathered at two well-filled meetings yesterday afternoon and last night in the Salvation Army Headquarters, 120 West Fourteenth Street. Some of the reclaimed came from cities and towns outside of New York to testify to the joy they felt in their conversion.

At the conclusion of both meetings Col. William A. McIntyre, who was in command, called for victims of the drink habit who wanted to receive the help in their fight against the demon rum which affiliation with the Salvation Army could give. The appeal was not only to drinkers, but to their children. Several of those who went up to the mourners' bench were sons of drunkards, who feared that they would need help in their fight against liquor.

The Army had gathered some 200 men and women to go out and tell how they had been reclaimed from lives they now consider appalling. It had been planned to send the Salvation Army soldiers out on the streets yesterday to bring drunkards to the headquarters' meetings and also to an open-air meeting in Cooper Union Square, but the rain and snow made the open meeting impossible.

Sophia, known as "the washerwoman evangelist," opened the afternoon meeting with prayer. Col. McIntyre said in the beginning that the Salvation Army had not called together the men and women saved from drink in order that they might win applause with their testimony as to how they had been rescued; the meetings were held in the hope that this testimony might induce hopeless men and women to make at least one more fight against rum. Most of the testimonials were simple, unaffected, dramatic accounts of transitions from the depths of degradation to the heights of satisfying joy.

Mary Law of Canandaigua, whose aged face was deeply lined with wrinkles, told her story in a drawling, nasal voice. She had received some education, she said, in an up-State seminary. She married Charles Law and they both became confirmed drunkards in Canandaigua. She had not time to tell how this had come about; she wanted to tell how she and her husband had reformed.

"Charlie and I were certainly one of the worst pair of old drunkards there ever was," she said. "I remember the second time Cleveland was elected President, because Charlie brought home a quart and a pint of whisky. I guess it was election whisky. We drank of it that Tuesday night, and we never woke up until Thursday night. I went out and asked what o'clock it was, went back home, and Charlie and I finished the bottles. We woke up Saturday night.

"Charlie beat me whenever we were drunk, and most of the time I was covered with bruises. But we stuck together. When he would get locked up, I'd do something so I could be sent up with him. I have been behind the bars 200 times. Charlie would always go up with me when I was arrested first.

"A woman once gave me a little apron with lace all across the bottom of it. I would never pawn that until the last, but many's the time I've got 12 cents on it to get a drink of whisky. Then when I'd get the first money again I'd go and redeem that apron. Oh, I thought a lot of it! When Charlie and I were saved I put it aside to keep as long as I lived. Then the Salvation Army some years ago called for mission gifts, and I gave it to them.

"Now let me tell you how Charlie and I rose up. We heard that the Salvation Army was coming to Canandaigua with a band. That was many years go. I asked the Chief of Police where the meeting was to be. He told me I'd better stay away or I'd be 'run in,' as he put it. I told him I'd get run in anyhow. So Charlie and I went to the Presbyterian Church, where the meeting was held.

"We sat by the door so we could get out quick. I noticed that Charlie was struck by what he heard, and he put a quarter in the plate when it came around. I took him out and told him I'd have to have some liquor before we went home. He said he'd put his last quarter into the plate. I went to a Magistrate I did drudge work for, and he lent me a quarter. We had whiskey that night.

"But it was the last time. The Salvation Army had put something in us, or raised to the top of us something already there, which made us decide never to drink anything more. I have long been a member of the Salvation Army, and in Canandaigua I am an officer. Charlie has never drunk a drop of liquor since those days, many years ago.

"Our home is all paid for. It is beautiful and clean. Charlie and I are very old, but life has been good to us, since we were helped away from liquor."

Col. McIntyre brought forward a bundle which, when unwrapped, showed a little apron with lace across the bottom of it. He said the Salvation Army had considered Mary Law's last-drink apron too precious to dispose of. He gave it back to her.

Sergt. Major Edward Hall of Elizabeth, a man of 70, said that twenty-seven years ago, having been literally kicked out of a Hell's Kitchen saloon, he drifted back to Elizabeth. Some music caught his ear. He wandered up to it and heard a Salvation Army man preach. He wandered out into the woods. He stayed there all night, he said, praying only these words:

"That man said you could make a good father and a good husband and a good son out of even a drunkard. Now, God, you try it on me."

The old man said God had vindicated the promise of the Salvationist.

Between the afternoon and the night meetings Col. McIntyre married Deputy Bandmaster John Allen, who is a Captain in the army, to Capt. Maud Parsons of the Boston branch of the Salvation Army.

40,000 STRIKERS OUT NOW.

Waist Manufacturers Declare They Paid More Than Union Wages.

A plan of campaign was settled on yesterday by a committee of twenty appointed at meetings of the shirt waist and princess dress manufacturers held on Wednesday to fight the strike of the waist makers. The Waist Makers' Union takes in the princess dressmakers, but not the Dressmakers' Union, formed some time ago and employed by manufacturers who make dresses to order. These dressmakers are not on strike. A manufacturers' association representing about 600 firms will be organized to-day.

David Hurwitz, who has waist factories at 116-118 West Fourteenth Street and 28 East Broadway, had this to say yesterday of the strike:

"For once the strike leaders have not exaggerated about the number of people affected by this strike. There are at least 40,000 waist and dress makers and most of them are out. It is the most astonishing strike I ever knew. The wage demands mean nothing. We were actually paying more than the union asks."

The Strike Committee at Clinton Hall was too busy yesterday collecting initiation fees from non-union strikers to give any information about the strike. Some of the leaders, however, said that 9,000 girls had gained their demands, most of them being employed by the smaller firms.

A large number of arrests of strike pickets were made yesterday. Some of the pickets were held, some fined, and one man was sent to the island for five months by Magistrate Corrigan in Jefferson Market Court.

Bologna Makers Entertain Strikers.

A Thanksgiving dinner was given yesterday by the Bologna Makers' Union at Leppig's Hall in Avenue A to the sausage makers, who are on strike in Manhattan and Brooklyn. Sausages were not on the bill of fare, but there was plenty of turkey with cranberry sauce, mince pie, and other accessories. There were sixty at the dinner.

Noonday Services for Brokers.

These special services for Wall Street brokers and lawyers will begin at 12 o'clock each day, continuing twenty minutes. The Rev. Dr. J. G. H. Barry, rector of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, will speak on Tuesday.

WARM CAMPAIGN IN BOSTON.

Dispute Over the Limitations of Expenditures Adds to Interest.

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—The spirited clash between ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald and ex-School Committeeman James J. Storrow, candidates for Mayor, in which the latter declined to the former's invitation to limit campaign expenses to $10,000 for each candidate, indicates that the coming seven weeks will not lack in political interest.

There are already half a dozen candidates for Mayor in the field, and as political parties and conventions have been eliminated, nearly all are engaged in accumulating the indorsement of 5,000 voters, which is necessary under the new charter to obtain a place on the ballot. Mr. Fitzgerald, who was the first in the field, got official recognition by filing the necessary names last week. Mr. Storrow's campaign, which is being managed by a committee of 150 citizens, is also well under way.

In his letter to Mr. Storrow suggesting that an agreement be made limiting individual expenses, Mr. Fitzgerald referred to President Roosevelt's position against excessive political expenditures.

In declining to become a party to the agreement, Mr. Storrow attacked the record of Mr. Fitzgerald while in office, and asserted that he paid many political debts by awarding contracts at the expense of the city. Mr. Storrow further stated that he did not believe that his campaign expenses would be as large as Mr. Fitzgerald's, that no contributions would be accepted from public service corporations, and that every cent would be accounted for.

489 INSANE ALIENS DEPORTED.

State Board of Deportation Reports Saving of $978,000 in Year.

ALBANY, Nov. 25.—According to the annual report to the State Commission in Lunacy by its Board of Deportation 489 insane and defective aliens were deported from New York during the fiscal year just ended. The commission estimates that the State saved from these deportations about $978,000.

During the year there was an increase in the total number of immigrants passing through Ellis Island of 287,276, and the work of the board was increased 50 per cent. With the aid of the Lunacy Commission the board obtained the removal to other States of 165 additional insane patients who had found temporary domicile in the State hospitals.

The State commission reports a net addition to the population of the State from aliens settling within its borders of 135,000.

JOHN BIGELOW, 92, HALE AND HAPPY

Veteran Lawyer, Journalist, and Diplomat Greeted by Hundreds on His Anniversary.

DINES WITH HIS FAMILY

Announces the Engagement of a Granddaughter—Cables Bring Many Congratulations.

John Bigelow, lawyer, journalist, Minister to France during the civil war, and biographer of Samuel J. Tilden, looking and feeling hale and hearty as at 70, celebrated Thanksgiving Day and his ninety-second birthday yesterday in the midst of a large circle of his children and grandchildren at his home, 21 Gramercy Park. It was made the occasion also of the announcement of the engagement of one of his granddaughters, Miss Grace Bigelow Tracy, to Thomas G. Cook of Baltimore.

At his birthday a year ago Mr. Bigelow introduced to society two of his granddaughters, Miss Charlotte Kenner Harding and Miss Anne Tracy. His gallantry, cheerfulness, good-humor, and youth on that occasion being equally undiminished yesterday, it was deemed proper that he signalize this latest birthday also by a social announcement.

Miss Grace B. Tracy is a daughter of Mr. Bigelow's daughter, Mrs. Charles Tracy. Mr. Cook is a resident of Baltimore, and connected with the banking firm of Fisk & Robinson, in this city. Their engagement, though known to members of the family, had not been formally announced.

All day yesterday the Bigelow home received its usual Thanksgiving shower of letters and telegrams from all parts of this country and Europe, congratulating the aged author, journalist, and statesman upon the anniversary of his birthday. In the morning, too, Mr. Bigelow's children and grandchildren began to arrive for the Thanksgiving-birthday dinner of the family, planned for the event.

Mr. Bigelow received and greeted all of them jovially, declaring himself in the most robust health and spirits, and chatting with them about the events of long ago and the events of the day, as one that was keenly interested and familiar with both.

Mr. Bigelow was born at Malden, Saugerties, N. Y., on Nov. 25, 1817. He remembered vividly the time his father had first sent home a pair of glass lamps from New York, with wicks and oil, to replace the tallow candles his mother had made till then. This event, he said, was productive of more excitement at their home than when, seventy years later, electric lighting was first introduced into The Squirrels.

Strange and quaint, too, among his surroundings yesterday were his reminiscences of the days when he and his family had worn clothing spun at home by the women of the household from the wool of some forty sheep belonging to his father, and dyed with an extract from goldenrod.

At the dinner Mr. Bigelow presided in state, surrounded by eighteen of his children and grandchildren, and the one prospective grandson-in-law. There were present his two sons and three daughters, Miss Grace Bigelow, Mrs. Charles E. Tracy, Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Guest of Montreal, Major and Mrs. John Bigelow of Boston, and Poultney Bigelow, and the following grandchildren: Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Newell Tilton of Tuxedo, Miss Charlotte Harding, Miss Jane Bigelow of Boston, Miss Lucy Dodge of Montreal, Miss Grace B. Tracy, Miss Anne Tracy, Thomas G. Cook, Braxton Bigelow of Boston, and John Dodge of Montreal.

In the afternoon and evening there was a reception of numerous friends and relatives, who called at the home.

Telegrams were received from J. Pierpont Morgan, Herbert Satterlee, and a host of other friends in this country and abroad.

BOY ROBBERS ACCUSE GIRL.

Say She Was Leader of Band of Pittsburg Thieves.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 25.—Bessie Cahill, a girl still in short dresses, is under $500 bail as the leader of a band of robbers. She is accused of having instigated a large number of thefts, some of large amounts, by a number of boys whom she gathered about her. Five of the boys are in jail and warrants have been issued for nine others. All were arraigned in the Juvenile Court yesterday. The girl refused to speak, but the five boys, each about 16 years of age, blamed her for all their troubles.

The "Smallman Street Gang," as the organization is known, according to Detective W. P. Peters of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who, with other detectives, worked six weeks to run it down, was formed by the Cahill girl and her boy acquaintances. Each of the boys now in jail said in court that the girl had presided at their meetings, and had divided the money which they gained from the sale of their plunder. They said their girl leader gave them passwords and grips, and that their meeting place was back of an old freight car on the bank of the Alleghany River. Here, they said, the girl read to them chapters from novels and then harangued them, urging them to emulate the adventurers she read about.

The Pennsylvania Railroad and commission men of Pittsburg have lost a large amount of property. The headquarters of the "Smallman Street Gang" is close to the Pittsburg produce yards, and from here, in the last few weeks, fruits, vegetables, and meats have been carried away. Cars were broken into at night, while in daylight two boys would drive up to a car after a wagon had left with a load, and fill their own wagon, pretending to be from the firm to which the goods were consigned. A display of wealth by Bessie and her boy friends led to an investigation and their downfall.

WANTS SCHOOLS KEPT COOLER

Physical Training Director Recommends a 3-Degree Reduction.

Dr. C. Ward Crampton, Director of Physical Training in the public schools, has recommended to City Supt. Maxwell that the temperature in all the class rooms in the city be lowered from 70 degrees to 67 or 68 degrees. Dr. Crampton said yesterday:

"At the lower temperature the waste of the body will be passed from the lungs much more easily than at a higher temperature. The cooler the air in the schoolroom the purer it will be, all others things being equal, and the less vapor of water the air can hold the easier will be respiration. It is a matter of common experience, as well as of scientific demonstration, that the cooler atmosphere is more stimulating, while the warmer is more depressing.

"It is expected that the pupils will do better in their studies and the retardation evil will be decreased. Much lower temperatures are used in England than in this country, and if the slightly lower temperature is adopted in this city observation will be made to determine how much further the temperature may safely be lowered. Due care, however, will be taken to prevent the children taking cold. The lower temperature will decrease the temptation for the teachers to open windows, thereby causing draughts which are dangerous to the pupils."

SUBWAY CARRIED 237,451,171.

Record Travel for the Year Ended June 30—Average Cost Per Passenger 2 Cts.

The Public Service Commission gave out yesterday a synopsis of the report of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, including both Subway and elevated divisions, for the year ended June 30, 1909. The principal details of this report have already been made public by the company itself. The synopsis given out by the Public Service Commission showed, however, the interesting fact that on the Subway division 237,451,171 passengers were carried during the year at a total expense for operation, including maintenance of way and equipment, of $4,547,620 or something less than 2 cents a passenger. The elevated division carried 275,737,974 passengers.

The gross revenue of the Subway was $11,917,313 from transportation and that of the elevated from transportation $13,858,079. Miscellaneous revenue brought the Subway gross revenue up to $12,191,000 and that of the elevated up to $14,333,393. Operating expenses on the Subway were $4,457,620 and on the elevated $6,199,823, leaving net operating revenue of $7,643,380 on the Subway and $8,133,570 on the elevated. Taxes consumed only $86,595 on the Subway, but they were $1,733 211 on the elevated, and hence the net operating income of the two roads was, respectively, $7,576,784 for the Subway and $6,400,358 for the elevated.

These totals contributed $13,977,143 for the entire Interborough, and non-operating income brought the gross income applicable to corporate and leased properties up to $14,612,785. Interest, the rental of the elevated, the rental of the Subway, including sinking fund payments and the amortization discount account demanded $10,022,962, leaving net corporate income of $4,589,823. Previous surplus and adjustments from previous years brought the total up to $6,458,871, and dividends called for $3,150,000. Three hundred and fifteen thousand four hundred and twenty-six dollars was deducted from surplus on account of cars destroyed and sundry improvements to property, leaving a surplus at the end of June, 1909, of $2,993,445.

CLEW IN AUTO MYSTERY.

Police Think They Know Who Broke Up Machine and Hid Parts.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Sheriff Thomas Grant of Lake County, Ind., and two Chicago detectives last night learned, they believe, the identity of the man who broke a $5,000 automobile to pieces, hid the parts of the machine on the farm of Mrs. Christine Jostedt, near La Motte, Ind., and hauled the tires and other pieces of the motor car ten miles and pitched them in the Kankakee River.

This man, it is believed, was one of the four passengers of the car on its mysterious night trip from Chicago the night of Oct. 23. The other persons in the car included two men and a young woman. S. R. Smalley, who says he is the owner of the dismantled machine, refused to tell the police more of the trip, which, he asserts "friends of his" took down into Indiana, where the machine was wrecked. "It was just a 'joy ride,' and the machine got smashed," he explained. "The automobile was taken by a friend of mine, and he had an accident. He paid me for it, and that is all there is to it. I know that no one was injured in the accident, and I shall tell no one who was in the automobile—not even the police."

Smalley said the man who had the machine was wealthy and had paid him $4,750 for breaking it up.

"There is a motive deeper than mere accident for the destruction of that valuable machine," the Sheriff said after he had come to Chicago last evening to confer with the city detectives.

It was said last night that the police had learned the identity of the chauffeur who drove the car from Chicago, and that a close watch is being kept on him to prevent him from leaving the city.

FOR ARMY TOTAL ABSTINENCE.

Gen. F. D. Grant Says He Will Aid Movement to That End.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—"I shall cheerfully aid you in your proposed temperance movement in the army," promises Gen. Frederick D. Grant, in command of the Department of the Lakes, with headquarters at Chicago, in a letter addressed to the Rev. Wilber F. Crafts of this city, Superintendent of the International Reform Bureau. The letter was made public to-night.

Recently Dr. Crafts invited Gen. Grant to address a meeting to be held here on Dec. 12 next, to inaugurate a movement looking to the establishment of a total abstinence association in the United States Army and Navy. In his communication, just received, Gen. Grant expresses regret at his inability to be present, but declares, according to the Rev. Dr. Crafts, that he was "cordially in favor of the proposition." Gen. Grant refers to his own interest in the creation of such an association in the army, and says that he will lend his aid to the movement by giving advice and counsel to those under his command.

Dr. Crafts said to-night that it is proposed to establish an association similar to the one which has flourished so well in the British Army for a score of years, with British Generals as its officers.

CANADA TO BUILD WARSHIPS.

Government Plans to Give Aid to the Shipbuilding Industry.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Nov. 25.—The cruisers and destroyers for the new Canadian Navy will be built in Canada if possible. It is understood that the Government feels strongly that the time has come for the establishment of a shipbuilding industry in the Dominion, and that the opportunity for the establishment of yards has arrived with the decision of the Government to place orders for a considerable number of important vessels.

Qualified authorities state that there is no reason why cruisers and destroyers cannot be built in Canada up to the British Admiralty standard. The cost of the first vessels might be slightly greater than it would be if the orders were placed with British yards, but the Government feels that the eventual benefit to the country, which would result from the establishment of the shipbuilding industry in Canada on a large scale, is ample justification for an increased initial cost.

TELEPHONE MEN TO CONFER.

Independents Will Resist Attempt to Dissolve the Voting Trust.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25.—A conference of representatives of the National Independent Telephone Association regarding legal proceedings to be instituted against a reported attempt to dissolve the voting trust of the independent companies will be held in Chicago Saturday.

Attorney Jeffries, representing minority interests, has declared that he will apply to the Circuit Court here to-morrow for an order on the New York courts, requesting the appointment of a Commissioner to take the testimony of George W. Perkins, junior member of the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Theodore Vail, President of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, and representatives of Harvey Fisk & Sons and R. L. Day & Co., New York concerns.

PROF. WOOD DOUBTS PALADINO'S POWERS

Johns Hopkins Scientist, Member of Investigating Committee, Not Convinced by Exhibition.

CAN'T FATHOM HER SECRET

Methods Employed by the Medium, He Says, Aroused His Suspicions and He Will Make Experiments.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 25.—In his laboratory at Johns Hopkins University Prof. Robert W. Wood spent the day mentally digesting what he saw in New York last Friday night when Eusapia Paladino, the Neapolitan medium, gave an exhibition for Dr. Wood and a party of friends.

Dr. Wood is skeptical concerning Mme. Paladino. As a member of the committee of scientists selected to pass on her claim to genuineness, he has determined to try a number of experiments on the medium.

What the experiments will be Dr. Wood refuses to disclose. In fact, he admitted to-day that he was without a single plausible theory as to the secret of Mme. Paladino's powers. Dr. Wood exposed the "N-Ray" theory five years ago as an illusion. Two years ago he endeavored to show that Annie Abbott, "the Georgian magnet," was a trickster.

Dr. Wood said he had no faith in spiritualism. When asked for the basis of his suspicion he said: "In the first place, prior to the most violent disturbances that occur in the seances, Mme. Paladino requests the audience to converse, saying that the division of thought helps the experiments. Secondly, while there is plenty of light in the room when the table rises from the floor, the room is made much darker for the other experiments.

"If her powers work in the table experiment while there is plenty of light, why would not they work with the same amount of light during the other experiments?"

"How do you account for her ability to raise the table from the floor?"

"That is another thing I am not prepared to discuss now," said Dr. Wood. "The theory has been advanced that it is done by means of a number of electric belts worn by the woman, but as she dressed herself completely in the presence of the wives of the men of the party, such an idea is without foundation."

CHRISTY SEES ONLY BEAUTY.

Artist Says Christian Scientists Had Nothing to Do with Marital Troubles.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 25.—"Neither Mrs. Stetson nor Christian Science practitioners had anything to do with our trouble," said Howard Chandler Christy after reading the published statements of his wife. Mr. Christy arrived here from Indianapolis this morning on his way to Zanesville with his daughter, Natalie.

"Mrs. Christy is talking for effect," he said. "I did not start this, but I'm going to see it through."

The artist smiled when asked regarding his wife's expression of fear that the little girl was not being properly cared for.

"She thinks the child isn't well dressed," he said. "Well, Natalie wears a Persian lamb coat and a white beaver hat. Her doll wears $20 worth of silks and laces."

Mr. Christy said that he left Zanesville because his wife's counsel, violating an agreement, started action in habeas corpus to get the girl. He said he was returning on the advice of his attorney to fight it out. He added that he would not sue for divorce, but that if his wife wished one he hoped she would start the proceedings at once and quietly.

"There is no secret about my past," said the artist, when the threat of his wife to "tell things" was mentioned. "I have dissipated a good deal, but that is all over. It's been twenty-one months since I touched a drop of liquor."

When his home life was mentioned the artist became a bit more serious. "We always had the happiest of homes," he said, "and it might still have been happy."

His wife's statement that nothing is beautiful, and life an illusion made the artist smile.

"I see nothing but the beautiful," he said. "Beauty is everywhere. There is illusion, too, but I don't allow myself to see it."

ROBBED AT PRAYER.

Woman Accuses a Fellow-Thanksgiving Worshipper.

Two detectives out in search of wrongdoers found two women having a rather strenuous argument last night at Seventy-sixth Street and Third Avenue. Pushing their way through the crowd which was fast gathering, they found a woman who said she was Gertrude Bussi of 305 East Fortieth Street. She charged an indignant woman, who said she was Annie Kelly, with having stolen her pocketbook.

Miss Bussi said that she was at prayer in the Church of St. John Baptist, Seventy-sixth Street, near Third Avenue, when she missed her pocketbook, containing $3.80. She saw the other woman leaving the church and followed her. She was accusing her of the theft when the detectives arrived.

Annie Kelly, who gave her address as 22 West Fifty-fourth Street, was arrested. The police say they found the missing pocketbook on her.

PASSION FOR OVERCOATS.

Discharged Bellboy Stole Three from an Austrian, One from a Pal.

Harry Schwartz, who until two weeks ago was a bellboy in the San Jacinto, at 18 East Sixtieth Street, was arrested last night, charged with having stolen clothing from the hotel. Through the arrest it became known that Heinrich von Boschan, Lieutenant in the Austrian Hussars, has been mourning the loss of three overcoats and a suit of clothes. He received with joy last night the news that there is hope of recovering his overcoats.

Schwartz, it is charged, went back to the San Jacinto on Nov. 7 and stole the overcoat of Leon Clute, another bellboy. He returned on Nov. 22, the police say, and got into the apartments of the Lieutenant, departing with his supply of Winter garments.

Clute received a telephone message yesterday that if he would come to 332 West Thirty-sixth Street in the afternoon he could get the ticket for his coat by paying $2. He went to the place, a restaurant, and with him went Detectives Gallagher and Skelly. They met Schwartz and arrested him. On the way down to Police Headquarters he told where he had pawned the Lieutenant's clothes.

HOOKWORM IN DIVORCE CASE.

Judge Grants California Wife Decree on That Diagnosis.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—Judge Graham has divorced Anita Coover from David R. Coover. The hookworm was the cause.

"My husband was dull, stupid, lazy, languid, slow," said Mrs. Coover.

"He must have been a victim of the hookworm," said the Court.

Mrs. Coover expresed some doubt as to this diagnosis, but Judge Graham stuck to his opinion and granted the decree.

Theodore Creamer a Suicide.

Theodore Creamer, a brother of ex-Sheriff Frank D. Creamer of Brooklyn, was found dead in bed with his throat cut last night in his room at Clayton's Hotel, Willoughby and Pearl Streets, Brooklyn. He was a clerk and had been despondent in consequence of having been out of employment a long time.

PRINTER GOT POE'S COPY.

Manuscript, Now Worth Thousands, Once Picked from Wastebasket.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—J. Pierpont Morgan's purchase for $3,800 of a first edition of a thirty-two-page pamphlet containing two of Edgar Allan Poe's prose stories, "The Murders in the Rue Morgue" and "The Man That Was Used Up," brings to mind the fact that the original manuscript of one of the stories mentioned is the property of the Drexel Institute of this city, to which it was presented by the late George W. Childs. Mr. Childs paid $200 for it about thirty years ago.

"The Murders in the Rue Morgue" appeared originally in Graham's Magazine, published in this city back in the forties. A young printer employed in Mr. Graham's office at the time was the late J. M. Johnston, a great admirer of Poe, and afterward an editor on the staff of The Lancaster Intelligencer. After the story had been put into type and the manuscript discarded Johnston recovered it from the wastebasket.

For many years the manuscript had a precarious existence. Mr. Johnston after his removal to Lancaster opened a photograph gallery in that city in which he operated until the outbreak of the civil war, when he enlisted in the Seventy-ninth Pennsylvania Infantry. During his occupancy of the gallery the building was twice partly destroyed by fire, and, although nearly everything else was consumed, the Poe manuscript, which had been kept in a portfolio in a closet, was preserved.

Years afterward, at housecleaning time, an ancient and apparently worthless manuscript was thrown by some member of Mr. Johnston's family into a rubbish heap in the back yard of his home, and would have been carted away if a neighbor had not picked it up and returned it to its owner. Mr. Johnston then had the pages bound within leather covers. He sold the manuscript to Mr. Childs for $200. It is now worth many thousands.

COAL MEN APPEAL TO TAFT.

Pittsburg Operators Say Steel Men Get Much Better Railway Rates.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 25.—The Pittsburg Coal Operators' Association announces that it has collected some facts and figures to lay before the Inter-State Commerce Commission and President Taft, as well, in order that the President may fully understand the requests of operators that railroads be compelled to give them not only more cars, but better rates for their coal shipments.

There has been sent to Washington an array of evidence to show that while the steel men of the Pittsburg district get their ores hauled from the lakes for 53 cents per ton, the Pittsburg coal shipper must pay 88, 89 cents and even as high as $1.03 for having a ton of his coal hauled from this district to the lakes over the same line. Not only this, but the coal men seek to show in their report sent to the President that the same steel men, paying 53 cents for their ore haul, get a rebate of 9 cents per ton when they happen to have tracks into their own mills, and their own locomotives, so that they may take the cars of ore at the gates of the mill yards.

This makes the net price of ore haulage per ton from the lakes 44 cents per ton, against a maximum price of $1.03 for the coal shipper carrying his coal over the same line.

SHOUTING, NOT SHOOTING.

Mix-Up in Telephone Information Makes Policeman a Peacemaker.

"There's a woman shouting at Madison Avenue and Forty-sixth Street. You'd better look into it," a citizen in a hurry telephoned to Police Headquarters last night.

"Woman shooting at Madison Avenue and Forty-sixth Street," Headquarters repeated to the East Fifty-first Street police station.

"Woman shot at Forty-sixth Street and Madison Avenue. Get busy," said Lieut. Dunn, on desk duty at the station, to Policeman McDonald.

On the third floor of an apartment house the policeman found Mrs. Thomas Beck beating on a closed door and filling the halls with her cries, while Thomas Beck was telling her from the vantage point behind the closed door that she could not come in again. McDonald demanded admission.

"A man's home is his castle," shouted Beck. "You can't come in."

A compromise was effected, and McDonald returned to report.

"That much of a shooting?" Headquarters inquired casually later from the station.

And what Lieut. Dunn said caused the operator to hang up the receiver without waiting for a reply.

Took Poison by Mistake.

Hyman Margolies of 421 Wendover Avenue, the Bronx, drank three ounces of laudanum and lead water solution yesterday, in mistake for other medicine, he said, and was taken to Fordham Hospital a prisoner. Dr. Krakowski of 425 Wendover Avenue, said he was treating Margolies for nervousness, and that he had given him two kinds of medicine to take.

DIES IN WIFE'S ARMS IN AN AMBULANCE

W. H. Dayton Stricken Suddenly Going to His Daughter's Home for Thanksgiving Dinner.

Dead Man Civil War Veteran and Cousin of Supreme Court Justice—Coroner Delays Answering Call.

Taken suddenly ill on his way to his daughter's home for Thanksgiving dinner yesterday William H. Dayton, 70 years old, of 356 Crimmins Avenue, the Bronx, a real estate dealer, died in his wife's arms in a Lincoln Hospital ambulance that was hurrying him back home. Mr. Dayton was a civil war veteran and a cousin of Supreme Court Justice Charles M. Dayton.

With his wife, Mr. Dayton had started yesterday morning for the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Jarvis of 1746 Forty-fourth Street, Brooklyn. The Third Avenue elevated train had hardly pulled out of the 143d Street station when he complained of feeling ill, and a moment later fell unconscious. He was carried into the station at 138th Street, and Dr. Mooney, of Lincoln Hospital was summoned. Mrs. Dayton insisted on taking him home instead of to the hospital, and on accompanying him in the ambulance. On the way Dr. Mooney succeeded in partly reviving him with hypodermic injections. Suddenly he gasped:

"Kiss me, Dollie."

His wife kissed him, and he fell back dead.

The police did not report the case to the Coroner's office until 5 o'clock. Up to a late hour no Coroner had appeared at the Dayton home, and Mrs. Dayton was nearly distracted because no arrangements could be made for the funeral.

IMMIGRANT WORKERS UNITE.

Plan to Raise a Fund to Retire Aged Members On.

The employes on Ellis Island have organized as Branch 1 of the United States Civil Service Retirement Association. This is the first step in the organization of the employes of the entire immigration service into the association which already exists among the Post Office and customs branches of the Government service. The object is to provide a fund and make possible the retirement of Government servants on an assured income. No. 1 is to be followed by the establishment of other branches in the service all over the country. These officers elected by Branch 1 were announced yesterday:

Honorary Presidents—William Williams, Commissioner of Immigration, and Alfred Brooks Fry, Superintendent of Public Buildings; President—J. J. Daly; Vice Presidents—F. La Guardia, W. R. Van Hormann, and Miss Helen A. Taylor; Treasurer—Lawrence P. Lee; Financial Secretary—William E. Junker; Recording Secretary—John S. Valley; Guardian—C. H. Christiansen; Trustees—William Smith, W. F. Jaeger, H. M. Jackson, Elizabeth A. Fitzgerald, and Frances Blumenthal; Directors—David Healy, Frank S. Howell, Paul Morrison, J. B. Fitzgerald, Col. Charles W. Spear, John J. O'Connor, Samuel A. Eppler, P. J. Flannagan, John A. Connor, F. A. Tuttle, Peter E. Maher, Vincent Piaggio, and F. Shotwell.

The first action taken by the newly formed branch was to adopt resolutions of condolance on the death in Brooklyn three days ago of Mrs. Regina Struckland, for twenty-five years an employe in the Immigration service.

COLER RELIES ON HUGHES.

Borough President Wants Governor to Pass on Charges.

Returning last night from a trip to North Carolina, Borough President Bird S. Coler of Brooklyn declared that if the findings of the Commissioners of Accounts against his administration were true he should be removed from office.

"If those charges are true," said Mr. Coler, "I should be removed from office before the expiration of my term. If they are false, they should be so declared officially. Every little fault of every one connected with my administration has been magnified. It should not be held that there is not sufficient time before the expiration of my term to have a full hearing before the Governor and a decision. The case could be tried in ten days.

"I shall use every means possible to have it tried. I have no doubt that if all the evidence be laid before a disinterested judge it would be shown that the charges are not warranted by the facts."

Absolutely Pure...

CAUSE OF DE ARMOND FIRE.

Defective Electric Wiring Started a Blaze in the Attic.

BUTLER, Mo., Nov. 25.—It is now believed that the fire which caused the death of Congressman David A. De Armond and his 6-year-old grandson last Tuesday, started in the attic of the De Armond home and was caused by defective electric wiring. It was first believed that the fire started in the Congressman's room.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 25.—Gov. Hadley announced last night that he would take no steps to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Congressman De Armond until after the funeral. The law specifies that not less than ten days' notice must be given in filling such vacancies.

ACQUITTED IN BOMB CASE.

Altman Brothers Were Accused of Wrecking Chicago Manufacturing Plant

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Vincent and Joseph Altman, accused of throwing a bomb which wrecked the plant of the Standard Sash and Door Company in this city, in 1908, were found not guilty by a jury today before Judge Tuthill.

Bruno Verra declared he saw the defendants make a bomb and knew that they had set fire to a number of buildings as the agents of a labor union. The trial of the Altmans began on Nov. 5, and the case was given to the jury shortly before midnight last night.

CHERRY MINE IS SEALED.

Fire to be Smothered Before Attempt Is Made to Recover Bodies.

CHERRY, Ill., Nov. 25.—A meeting was held here to-day by the State Mining Board, Battalion Chief McDonald of the Chicago Fire Department and W. W. Taylor, General Superintendent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Company's mines. Battalion Chief McDonald, after an inspection of the work which is being accomplished by his men, who had been throwing water in the east bottom of the mine for more than a week, said that the water was not reaching the fire, and that he saw no use of throwing any more, as it was merely filling up the third vein. Bodies of the known dead in that vein are already inaccessible, owing to the quantity of water already thrown into the mine, and to increase this amount, McDonald said, would delay recovery of the bodies indefinitely.

Mr. Williams of the Urbana rescue station reported that the fire had extended to the coal pillar and was forming dangerous gases and making it perilous for rescurers to continue at work. It was agreed that the only thing that would make possible ultimate recovery of the bodies was to seal up both the main shaft and the air shaft and keep them sealed until the cutting off of the air smothered the fire. The shafts were thereupon sealed.

Killed by Robbers in Indiana.

BEDFORD, Ind., Nov. 25.—The dead body of George Moss, whose skull had been crushed, was found to-day at his half-way house, between this city and Oolitic. His grocery store had been robbed by the murderers. Moss lived alone. There is no clue to the murderers.

Neihardt's "The River and I"--Part I.

In the December number is begun the publication of a series of papers by a writer who has the imagination of a poet, the practical experience of a traveller and the enthusiasm of a close observer. Mr. Neihardt gives an account of the beauty and of the energy of the Missouri River—an account which is a wonderful combination of a series of pictures with a precise record of characteristics.

"The Sword in the Mountains"

The clever writer, Alice MacGowan, begins under the title of "The Sword in the Mountains," in this number, a stirring story of the Civil War. The scene is laid in Chattanooga and the surrounding districts, in which were fought out the most dramatic campaigns of the War.

"Opportunity and The Man"

Free rural delivery, and the Mail-Order system afforded the Opportunity; and the story of the stupendous success secured by the youth who seized the opportunity constitutes in itself a stirring bit of drama.

FICTION by Eden Phillpotts, Maarten Maartens, Henry James, Alice MacGowan and Others.

PENN BEATS CORNELL ON FIELD OF SLUSH

20,000 Persons See the Red and Blue Team Triumph by Score of 17 to 6.

ROUGH PLAYERS RULED OUT

Three Men Sent to Side Lines for "Slugging"—Ithacans Score First —Bad Day for Speculators.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—The Cornell team which to-day met Pennsylvania in the annual gridiron struggle between these two universities should have taken heed of Mr. Dooley's aphorism, "It's a fool thrick t' heave a hunk iv coal at th' driver iv a brick wagon."

The Ithaca eleven sought to match its luck against Pennsylvania's, and failed, the coal-heaving versus brick-throwing duel ending in a Cornell defeat to the tune of 17 to 6.

Perhaps if the Red and White collegians had sent to represent them a hockey team for the first half and a water polo team for the second, it would not to-night be so gloomy on Cayuga's shores. When the two teams appeared on the gridiron a few minutes before 2 o'clock, it was to find it an arctic field swept by polar breezes. The tramping of many feet and an afternoon sun that was half bold, half timorous, soon thawed the ice that coated the snow almost an inch thick. The second half opened to find the ground a perfect sea. So large were the puddles that in places they made possible the drowning of a player were he held too long under a pile or in some viselike tackle.

As a game of football it was a decided failure. Those spectators who were rabid partisans of Pennsylvania, without caring anything about the quality of play, undoubtedly enjoyed the fruits of victory. Certainly the Cornellians had nothing with which to solace themselves after the last whistle blew, except that their team had been outlucked as well as outplayed, outrun as it had been outweighed. The cold and shivering crowd—and, despite the weather about 20,000 enthusiasts risked pneumonia and braved the storm—had many a chance to laugh as this player or that slid five or ten yards through the ice-cold slime after he was tackled or had made a tackle. Those who were warmly swathed in furs and wraps had a far easier time of it than the twenty-two players on the field and the officials. As the second half was drawing to a close one of these be-blanketed spectators apparently voiced the sentiments of the crowd when he shouted: "Cornell, you should have brought a crew. Then you'd have stood a chance. We can't row, but we sure can swim."

Pennsylvania won the toss and elected to defend the west goal, with the wind in her favor. The kickoff and ensuing tackle put the ball on Penn's 5-yard line. After a try at a quarterback run, that in view of the condition of the ground was the veriest folly, Hutchinson punted and Owen recovered for Cornell on his 42-yard line. On the first play, a right tackle plunge, the Ithacans failed to gain. The kick which followed was recovered by Simson for the Red and White on Penn's 30-yard line, and Cornell started in with a vicious attack through the line that carried the Red and Blue players off their feet and over their line for a quick touchdown by Robb. This was the first Cornell score made on Franklin Field since 1905, and the Ithacan delegation went wild with joy, predicting all sorts of things and results. O'Connor kicked the goal, and again paroxysms of joy swept through the Cornell crowd.

But this was Cornell high-tide so far as scoring was concerned, although late in the second half the Ithaca team had a bully chance to make another touchdown. But Pennsylvania held for downs on her 4-yard line the prettiest defensive work of the afternoon. In three tries at the line, all directed at the guard holes through which the advance to the 4-yard line had been made, Cornell made just one foot. And the Cornell attack was by no means weak at that moment, either. The highest praise is due the Red and Blue eleven for its work under the shadow of its goalposts—with its Captain sent to the sidelines but a moment before for slugging, and suffering, therefore, a penalty of half the distance to the goal line, in this case 24 yards.

This calls attention to the fact that the largest number of men ever sent to the sidelines for rough work in any game on record—excepting only the Carlisle-Pennsylvania game of this same year—were benched this afternoon. Miller and Lamberton of Pennsylvania were ordered off the field by Umpire Edwards, the former for slugging (his second open and detected offense of this kind this season) and the latter for unnecessary rough work. As Seagrave of Cornell was guilty of slugging on the same play, he was benched, too, but the loss-of-yards penalties offset each other.

If any one man contributed to Pennsylvania's victory more than all others, the credit is undoubtedly Hutchinson's. His low, twisting punts always caught the Cornell defense either off its guard or its balance. Not until late in the second half did the Ithaca backs find the way to guard against Pennsylvania men recovering their quarter back's kicks. Then they dropped inertly on the ball, often when it should have been picked up. When they should have fallen on it, it was the very time that they did not, and it was taking advantage of these opportunities which gave the Red and Blue the winning of the game.

Of course, end running was a thing impossible of successful achievement. The Pennsylvania back field, slightly heavier than Cornell's, hit the line harder and with better effect. This is established by the following figures: In the first half Pennsylvania gained 53 yards in line bucks and tackle plunges to Cornell's 25; in the second, the Philadelphians held the balance even, with 56 yards apiece. The Cornell kickers foolishly tried to get height and distance at one and the same time against a stiff wind, with the natural result that often the ball went only a short distance. Also, the Cornell line held so poorly that on three occasions Owens's kicks were blocked, two of these resulting in Pennsylvania touchdowns.

There was one side to the game which met with the enthusiastic approval of the crowd. The speculators, who had loaded up with tickets which they expected to sell at fancy figures, were more than eager to dispose of their stock at almost any price. No offer, reasonable or unreasonable, was refused. There was one of these ticket sellers who stood at the corner of Thirty-third and Walnut Streets, that quoted his supply at from 50 cents to $1. And even at these figures he found mighty few takers. The small boy reaped the reward of patience, too, for the tickets that the speculators could not sell (and there were many of them) they gave to the urchins hanging around the gates. The boys were resultingly happy, even if their hosts were not. The line-up:

Pennsylvania.	Position.	Cornell.
Braddock	Left end	Seeley, Teagle, Hurlburt
Fretz, Byrne	Left tackle	Weeks, Farrington
Cozens	Centre	Seagrave, Pfeiffer
Pike	Right guard	O'Connor
Ferrier	Richt tackle	Munck
Kauffman, Marks.	Right end	Crosby, Sutton
Hutchinson	Quarter back	Owen, Wood
Sommer, Young.	Left half back	Robb, Tydeman
Irwin, Heilman.	Right half back	Hoffman, Ramsdell, Krutsch
Miller, Scott	Full back	Simpson

Touchdowns—Ramsdell, Irwin, Heilman. Robb. Goals from touchdowns—Braddock (2,) O'Connor. Referee—Al Sharpe, Yale. Umpire—W. H. Edwards, Princeton. Field judge—W. S. Langford, Trinity. Head linesman—Mr. Evans, Lehigh. Time of halves—Thirty-five minutes.

Sewanee Defeats Vanderbilt.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 25.—The championship of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association was the prize in the game here to-day between the Vanderbilt and Sewanee University football teams, which Sewanee won 16 to 5. Both elevens defeated all their Southern opponents this year, and each team lost one game to a Northern opponent. Sewanee was defeated by Princeton and Vanderbilt by Ohio State University. The rivalry between the teams is of long standing, Vanderbilt having won thirteen games and Sewanee 6, while two were tied.

COLGATE SWAMPS CARNEGIE.

New York Collegians Score as They Please on "Tech" School Lads.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Nov. 25.—Colgate University of New York State came over into Pennsylvania this afternoon and had a little amusement at the expense of the Carnegie Tech School eleven. The New Yorkers won, 38 to 6, and the only thing to mar the pleasure of the visitors was a touchdown made by the Tech lads, for they had wanted to make it a shut-out game.

The Carnegie team was sadly disappointed, but not more so than the 2,000 friends who came out to see the game. The home team expected to win—at least they thought until the game was a few minutes old that they had the best chance. After the boys from Colgate got well started, however, it was but a question of how many points they would make. They went through the Carnegie line and around the Carnegie ends, and at times leaped over the heads of the Carnegie players. Had Colgate been pushed or been playing on a wager it is likely she could have scored 75 points on Carnegie.

The only opportunity given the Carnegie rooters to applaud came when Hittner was pushed through the line for a touchdown, and ne kicked his own goal. Manley did some nice work for Colgate, not only back of the line, but in goal kicking. He made five goals out of six attempts from touchdowns, the sixth being an almost impossible chance. Reese made a pretty field goal for Colgate. Line-up:

Colgate	Position.	Carnegie.
McGough	Left tackle	Crawford
Hollenbeck	Centre	Lloyd
Thurber	Right guard	Kime
Keegan	Right tackle	Marshall
Loeber	Right end	Dolin
Collester	Quarter back	Collenden
Connelly	Left half back	Flick
Woodman	Right half back	Hittner
Manley	Full back	Robinson

Substitutions—Culcle for Dolin, Hatcher for Morris, Blair for Crawford, Smith for Anderson, Blanchard for Keegan, Campbell for Connelly, Reese for Manley. Touchdowns—Woodman, (2,) Manley, (2,) Loeber, (1,) Collester, (1,) Hittner, (1,) Goals from touchdown—Manley, (5,) Hittner, (1.) Goal from field—Reese.

CARLISLE INDIANS WIN.

St. Louis University Eleven No Match for the Aborigines.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 25.—The Carlisle Indians ran rings around the St. Louis University eleven in the annual Thanksgiving Day game between the teams today, the final score being 32 to 0. Except for a few moments at the opening of the game, when fumbles gave the locals the ball twice within the Indians' ten yard line, St. Louis never even threatened to score.

Libby's run of 80 years through a broken field after he had recovered a punt of 70 yards by Dockery, was easily the feature of the game. The two quarter backs did most of the spectacular work. The line up:

Carlise.	Position.	St. Louis.
Germain	Left guard	Wills
Jordan	Centre	Lindsay
Burd	Right guard	Lauman
Lonestar	Right tackle	Wagner
Kennerly	Right end	Berry
Libby	Quarter back	Dockery
Soloman	Left half back	Arens
Wheeleck	Right half back	Painter
Houser	Full back	Lowe

Touchdowns—Houser, (3,) Soloman, Yakee Joe, Newashe. Goals—Libby, (2.) Substitutes—Soloman for Houser, Leclair for Soloman, Thomas for Wheelock, Erhart for Snyder, Garlew for Kennerly, E. Stadther for Berry, Wheeler for Jordan, Carroll for Dockery, Yankee Joe for Libby, Higbee for Wills. Officials—Mr. Connett of Virginia, referee; Mr. Bard of Princeton, umpire; Mr. Porter of Cornell, field judge; Mr. Burroughs of Illinois, head linesman.

New York School Games Postponed.

Three school football contests were prevented by the weather conditions of yesterday, the gridirons being covered with snow and slush, which made it impossible for the players to obtain footing. The contest between Commerce and Clinton at the Polo Grounds was postponed until Saturday afternoon, and the match between Manual and Boys' High, scheduled to be played at Washington Park, Brooklyn, yesterday morning, will be played at the same grounds Saturday afternoon. Erasmus and Poly Prep. have called off their game which was to have been played at Washington Park yesterday afternoon. No match will be played between the teams this season.

A No-Score Football Game.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 25.—Nothing to nothing—that was the result of the football game between Marquette and Notre Dame Universities to-day. Notre Dame thus finishes the season without a defeat. In one of the most desperate contests ever waged on a Western gridiron, the teams struggled for two thirty-five-minute halves, and the game ended with the ball a scant ten yards on Marquette's end of the field, in Marquette's possession. Many changes of players were made as the game drew near the close, but the game ended without injury to any one.

Western Reserve Ties Case School.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 25.—Western Reserve University permitted the State championship to go to Oberlin College here to-day by playing Case School of Applied Science to a tie with a score of 5 to 5. It was the seventeenth annual Thanksgiving game of the two schools. The result was unexpected and unsatisfactory from nearly every point of view. The muddy field, from which a warm sun thawed previous frosts, was held partly responsible for Case's poor showing.

Bucknell Wins Hard-Fought Game.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—In a hard-fought football game here to-day Bucknell defeated George Washington, 12 to 6. Bucknell outweighed George Washington considerably, and time and again her back field plowed through George Washington's line for the required distance, and only once did she lose the ball on downs. Bucknell's weakness on several occasions was in handling punts, and because of this George Washington scored her touchdown. Both of Bucknell's touchdowns resulted from consistent line plunging.

Missouri Wins a Championship.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 25.—In one of the hardest fought games ever witnessed here, the University of Missouri football team defeated the University of Kansas, thereby winning the Missouri Valley conference championship. The score was 12 to 6. Both teams went into the game with a clean record, neither having been defeated this season.

Haskell Indians Beat Nebraska.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 25.—The Haskell Indians defeated Nebraska to day, 16 to 5. The Indians outclassed Nebraska, although the visitors were outweighed eight pounds to the man. The contest was spectacular, each of the touchdowns coming after long runs down a muddy, sloppy field. The Indians excelled in speed, interference, and general mechanical plays.

Touchdown Wins for Penn State.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Nov. 25.—Mass plays and line plunges gave a 5 to 0 victory to the eleven from the Pennsylvania State College over the team of the University of Pittsburg here to-day. McLeary for Penn. State was pushed through the Pittsburg line early in the first half for the only score of the game. Honors were even in the second half, the ball being in the centre of the field most of the time.

SYRACUSE HELD TO 5 TO 5 TIE BY FORDHAM

George Walsh Makes Long Run, Dodging Up-Staters, for a Touchdown.

PLAY IN DEEP SLUSH AND MUD

Small Crowd Shivers in Gale, Rain, and Snow at American League Park to See Season's Last Game.

On a gridiron deep in slush and snow, Fordham battled the Syracuse eleven to a tie yesterday at American League Park and brought to a close the most successful football season of its career. Each team scored a touchdown and failed at the try for a goal. The score was 5 to 5, the game being played with never a chance for either team to show any of the football skill or strategy which has been drilled into the players during the hard season. In the second half it began to snow, and the flakes whirled over the field driven by a high wind, which often carried the punts far out of reach of the players' outstretched arms, but covered with mud and slush, the players stuck to it. They played hard and courageously against the worst weather conditions teams ever faced, and the small assemblage of ardent followers of each team which snuggled in one end of the stand stood and shivered and yelled themselves hoarse as the twenty-two wet, mud-smeared players fought valiantly for victory.

There was joy at Fordham last night, for the team had the best record of any team that ever wore the Maroon. Only one defeat has been suffered since the ball was kicked off in September, and the Princeton Tigers did that, not because they outplayed the fast Bronx team, but because of the toe of Cunningham, who pulled the Tigers out of a bad hole in the eleventh hour. The team defeated Cornell, one of the Big Five, and swamped Swarthmore. There was a reason for the joy at Fordham.

Again it was George Walsh who saved the day for Fordham. Syracuse had scored in the first half and the score was 5 to 0 when the teams lined up for the final session in the driving snow. It was Walsh who caught the Syracuse full back's punt on his own 50-yard line and, dodging right and left on the slippery field, galloped through the whole Syracuse team for a touchdown.

He caught the ball close to the side lines and raced past the right wing of the Syracuse team, while half a dozen men plunged at him viciously, only to miss and go sliding head first in the slush. The Maroon half back dashed on diagonally across the field with the wet ball tucked under his arm. Darby and Waldron in the Syracuse back field stood between him and the goal. He cleverly dodged Darby, and when Waldron jumped for him, the Syracuse player hung on tightly a moment, but was shaken off, and then Walsh traveled on and planted the ball behind the goal posts. The Fordham rooters howled with delight, and Coach Tad Jones and the Syracuse substitutes on the side lines sat silent and dejected. More than half a dozen Syracuse tacklers had had their hands on the elusive Walsh, but he had got by them all. A few moments later he missed the try at goal, the ball going a few feet under the cross bar.

On account of the uncertainty of the footing there was only one thing to do in this game—that was to kick the ball, and the struggle dwindled down to a punting duel between Shaw, the big Syracuse full back, and G. Walsh. Both booted well, but Walsh got his kicks higher in the air and sent them further, so that the ends could get down under them. Not once did Syracuse run the ball back after a kick. Every time Walsh punted the Fordham ends, Magrane and McCaffrey, were down the field like a flash ready to grab Darby or Waldron as he caught the ball. They were fleet, and their tackling was deadly. The attempts of each eleven to crash through the opposing line and to skirt the ends were futile and not tried often. The line men braced themselves against each other, and when the charge came they slipped in the slush and the whole line from tackle to tackle piled up in a heap. With the slippery ball, there was a lot of fumbling and also much holding and offside play, for which Fordham was penalized often. Umpire Maxwell of Swarthmore caught both teams holding often, especially on the punts, and in many cases called the ball back. It was a hard game for the officials to watch, but they kept their eyes open.

Syracuse got a touchdown well along in the first half, after both Walsh and Shaw grew tired of kicking the ball at each other. Fordham had the ball on its 40-yard line and was penalized 15 yards for holding. G. Walsh on a fake kick got around the end for 8 yards. Then Walsh attempted to punt. The ball sailed away low and struck one of the Fordham linesmen in the back, Syracuse recovering the slippery leather. Gardner then took the ball around Magrane's end for 15 yards to Fordham's five-yard line. Shaw went crashing through for four yards more, and Gardner carried the ball over for a touchdown at one corner of the field. The ball was booted out for a fair catch and try at goal, but the kick went over the Syracuse players' heads and was not caught. During the remainder of the half Walsh and Shaw kept kicking the ball into the other's territory. Capt. Gargan played quarter back with his injured wrist during the first half, and in the second gave way to "Skip" McCarthy. Toward the end of the game Geary went in at quarter back.

Fordham's score came early in the second half after the Maroon had received the ball on a short low kick by Shaw. The ball bounded along the ground and G. Walsh ran up to meet it. He picked it up on the run and dashed through the Syracuse team for a touchdown. The snow fell thickly during the remainder of the game, and all attempts to gain were in vain. First Walsh would boot the ball into the Syracuse territory only to have Shaw kick it back again. The shivering crowd and the players were glad when the game ended. And it was a mud-spattered, exhausted lot of players, wet through to the skin, that tramped back to the clubhouse. A crowd of about 500 saw the game. The line-up:

Fordham.	Position.	Syracuse.
McCaffrey	Right end	Barry, Scully
O'Toole	Right tackle	Kirkpatrick
Collard	Right guard	Camp
Barritt	Centre	Anderson
Gargan, S. McCarthy, Geary	Quarter back	Waldron
J. McCarthy	Right half back	Darby
G. Walsh	Left half back	Gardner, Loomis
E. Walsh	Full back	Shaw

Touchdowns—Gardner, E. Walsh. Referee—Mr. Crollius, Dartmouth. Umpire—Mr. Maxwell, Swarthmore. Field judge—Mr. Wright, Columbia. Head linesman—Mr. Thorpe, Columbia. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

BOYS RUN ON SLUSHY STREETS

Joseph E. Ballard Fleetest Lad in Five-Mile Race in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—The unusual spectacle of 125 young men participating in a race in the heart of the city was seen here to-day, and notwithstanding the street was covered with slush, the result of last night's storm, good time was made by the runners. Although a chilling wind blew, the young men, togged in regulation running dress, braved the elements and fought every inch for supremacy. The run was from City Hall to Front Street on Market Street. Twice over this course made a run of five miles.

The race was under the auspices of a Market Street Business Men's Association, and was held to celebrate the paving of that thoroughfare, the principal business street in the city, with wooden blocks. The first twelve runners to finish received handsome silver cups.

The first to finish was Joseph E. Ballard of the University of Pennsylvania, the half and mile interacademic champion of America. Despite the weather conditions he made the distance in 28:45 2-5. Ballard's home is in Providence, R. I.

Marathon Stopped by Storm.

The Yonkers Marathon, run under the auspices of the Mercury A. C., was postponed yesterday owing to the storm and bad roads. The race will be decided to-morrow, starting at 12 o'clock noon from the Mercury A. C. headquarters, the course being the same as last year, with the finish at Empire City track, where five miles will be covered. More than seventy-five long-distance runners, the pick of the amateur ranks of this country and Canada, have entered for the event, the Canadians being especially prominent. "Jim" George, a Chippewa Indian, is looked upon as a "second Longboat," and has established an enviable record. The Xaviers pin their faith to James Clarke, who appears to be in excellent condition. He is expected to set as lively a gait as he did at Celtic Park two weeks ago, when he smashed all records from seventeen and a half miles to twenty miles.

Among other starters will be Harry Jensen of the Pastime A. C.; Sidney Hatch of the Illinois A. C. of Chicago, Sam Mellor of the Mercury A. C. a veteran in Marathon racing; Frank Devlin and four other members of the Mott Haven A. C., Legiard Lemberg of the Swedish-American A. C., Frank Bruce of the Italian-American A. C., Paul Hermann of the Northwestern A. C., and William Bartlett of Colgate University.

Maloney First in Ten-Mile Race.

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—Mud bespattered after completing ten miles over heavy, soggy, and rain-soaked roads, James H. Maloney of St. Stephen's Total Abstinence Society of Worcester won the New England amateur championship run at Brookline to-day. He was first of a field of twenty-two to finish. Raymond E. Willard of the Providence Athletic Club was second.

The first five, with their times, were: James H. Maloney, St. Stephen's T. A., Worcester, 54:03 3-5; Raymond E. Willard, Providence A. C., 55:14; William J. Packett, Brookline G. A., 55:27; Oscar F. Hedlund, Brookline G. A., 55:45; A. G. Hearn, Walnut A. C., Cambridge, 55:56.

Harriers Compete in Snow.

The blustering weather conditions and a course that was covered with slush and mud held no terrors for the harriers of the Eastern District Y. M. C. A. yesterday, and a pack of twelve covered the four and three-quarter miles. C. T. Jager led the field to the finish in 28:30. The summary:

Name.	Handicap. M.S.	Time. M.S.
C. T. Jager	3:00	28:30
A. Blumenthal	4:00	29:50
G. Tonje	5:00	31:10
D. Walsh	1:30	28:44
J. Daucher	3:00	30:25
H. Arnold	1:30	30:05
R. Cohen	4:00	32:45
G. Angus	1:30	32:05
J. Wonfur	Scratch	30:45

N. Y. U. and Trinity Fall to Play.

The gridiron struggle scheduled for Ohio Field yesterday afternoon between New York University and Trinity was called off owing to the inclement weather and the condition of the ground, which was covered with snow. The boundaries and yard lines were completely obliterated.

Michigan "Aggris" Score Victory.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 25.—The Michigan Agricultural College eleven completely outclassed the Detroit Athletic Club team in their annual football game here to-day, winning by a score of 34 to 0. Seventeen points were scored in each half. The game was played on a field ankle deep with mud and water.

Ohio State Triumphs Over Kenyon.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 25.—Ohio State University finished her football season by defeating Kenyon College, 22 to 0, on a field which was exceedingly heavy and before a crowd of 3,500 spectatdrs.

Detroit Beaten by Havana Nine.

HAVANA, Nov. 25.—The Havana baseball team to-day defeated the Detroits of the American League by a score of 7 to 5.

Philadelphia Central Wins Run.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—The American intercholastic cross-country championship was run to-day over the four and a half mile course in Fairmount Park. The Central High School of this city won. The Central Manual Training School was second, and the Newark High School third. Forty-three of the fifty starters finished. Entwistle of the Northeast Manual Training School finished first in 24 minutes and 36 seconds.

Washington Beats Oregon.

SEATTLE, Nov. 25.—The University of Washington football team won the Northwestern intercollegiate championship to-day by defeating the University of Oregon, 20 to 6.

Old Glory Auction at Madison Square Garden Reaches Its Highest Mark In Prices Paid for Horses.

Two youthful Kentucky horsemen, Edward Madden, age 15, and Joseph Madden, 10, sprung a surprise at the Old Glory Horse Auction yesterday, when they sent their agent into the sales ring with orders to buy the three-year-old trotter, Soprano, 2:08¾, at any price. The boys are sons of the "wizard turfman," John E. Madden of Lexington, and Edward, the elder son, had expressed a desire to own the trotter since he saw her race at Detroit last Summer. The bidding for Soprano was lively, and the Madden agent boosted every bid that was made until he finally landed the filly for $7,000. John E. Madden was at the sale and said, after the horse was bought for his boy, that he expected that Soprano would equal Hamburg Belle's performances on the Grand Circuit next season. At Detroit last season Soprano trotted second to Nancy McKerron, Madden's horse, and after the race, young Madden told his father that he wanted the three-year-old, and yesterday the two boys bought it.

It was the biggest day of the Old Glory sale, and several of last season's Grand Circuit winners brought big prices. Many horsemen were surprised that Czarezna, 2:07¼, did not bring a higher price than $9,000, the amount paid by A. B. Coxe of Paoli, Penn., for last year's sensational trotter. It was expected that the filly would be knocked down for something between $10,000 and $15,000. Billy Burke, 2:15, brought the next highest price, $8,250, which was paid by J. L. Tarlton of Lexington, Ky. One of the big winners of the Grand Circuit last season, Baroness Virginia, 2:08¼, was bought by Gtn. Brayton Ives of New York City for $5,500. Another of last season's Grand Circuit stars, The Bosun, 2:05¾, was bought by S. W. McKeever of Brooklyn, for $2,550.

A record crowd attended the auction yesterday afternoon, when the high priced trotters were going under the hammer, and the day's receipts were by many thousands the largest of the sale. The horses which brought the highest prices were:

GOTCH LOSES MATCH ON MAT.

BUFFALO, Nov. 25.—Frank Gotch tonight failed to gain a single fall from Zybsco, the giant Polander, in an hour, and thereby lost the match, the conditions of which required Gotch to win two falls within the hour. Zybsco displayed tremendous strength and an excellent knowledge of the game.

With Zybsco on the defensive, Gotch used up twenty minutes in working for his famous toe hold. When he secured it the foreigner easily broke it. Gotch gave up this effort, and, with the Pole hugging the mat for most of the remaining time, tried hard for a hammerlock. He got it twice, but the big Pole broke it both times. In the last minute Zybsco assumed the aggressive, but could not get behind Gotch.

Zybsco said: "I can beat this man in a straight match."

Jack Herman, his manager, said: "I will post $2,500 in Chicago Saturday for a match with Gotch for $10,000 a side. We did not ask for a handicap in this match. We simply called Gotch's bluff."

Zybsco weighed 230 pounds and Gotch 203. Several thousand persons saw the match, which was held in the Seventy-fourth Regiment Armory.

LITERATURE AND SUBWAYS.

In the latest installment of the great Shonts-Willcox correspondence concerning subways, we find one brief statement by Mr. SHONTS, not epistolary, but orally communicated, which is deeply significant and impressive. Arguing in support of the third-tracking of the elevated railway lines, Mr. SHONTS said that this plan, if permitted by the Public Service Commission, would > give relief from intolerable conditions to the Bronx, far more quickly than as if they had to wait for a subway, which cannot be built in five, and, perhaps, not in seven years.

The present Subway was begun on March 24, 1900, and it was opened for service on Oct. 27, 1904. The work occupied four years and seven months. Subway extension entered upon its present phase on April 26, 1907, when Mr. SHONTS explained why the Interborough Company was unable to put in a bid under the terms of the Rapid Transit Commission's contract and proposals then offered by the city. From the time that the Public Service Commissioners entered upon the discharge of their duties Mr. SHONTS and Mr. WILLCOX have been pretty steadily engaged in a controversial correspondence over the Subway extension. In the long wars of the Middle Ages "men grew old in camps." While Mr. SHONTS and Mr. WILLCOX continue to occupy themselves and to weary the public with their letter-writing, old age draws on apace. Some day the pen will fall from their palsied fingers, and, as now appears, they will leave no heritage save this correspondence, already of intolerable bulk and still growing. From the day this correspondence ceases, if it ever should cease, from five to seven years must elapse before any new subway will be opened. We must again remind these gentlemen that their literary efforts no longer interest the public. The people want subways, not letters.

Mr. WILLCOX has the better of it in the latest bout. Mr. SHONTS does, indeed, ask too much when he demands that the city shall bear the cost of all the real estate, easements, and damage suits, and shall become responsible for all taxes that are or may be imposed upon the property of the new subways. Mr. WILLCOX is right in insisting that the municipality shall make no such improvident contract. On the other hand, Mr. WILLCOX should disabuse his mind of the idea that the city must reap a "profit" from the construction and operation of subway extensions. That it should receive a reasonable payment for the franchise rights conferred is sound doctrine, doctrine approved by public opinion. But who can doubt that the construction and operation of the projected lines, even without the payment of a cent to the city, would confer a great benefit upon the people, and would add to the wealth of the community? The major advantage is to be found in facilities for travel; "profits," franchise payments, even, are incidental. Nevertheless, the opinion is pretty firmly held that the proposed new subways will be so profitable to their owners that they can afford to make the annual payments which public opinion and our adopted policy demand. Certainly Mr. WILLCOX is right when he protests that the Interborough cannot be permitted under the terms of the old contract No. 1 with the city paying for the real estate and the easements and relieving the company of taxes, to build and operate subways that might yield a profit of 10 or 15 per cent. above all charges without making fair compensation for that gainful privilege.

Mr. WILLCOX is now solicitous for the eastern regions of Brooklyn, and Mr. SHONTS should listen, it seems to us, with a more open mind to the arguments in favor of an extension of the present line beyond the Flatbush Avenue Station of the Long Island Road. Mr. WILLCOX's argument, however, would come with better grace from him if he had not been so overeager to assent to the building of the Fourth Avenue line into parts of Brooklyn which cannot yield an operating profit.

There are manifest objections to the laying of additional tracks upon the elevated structures in this borough, but there is, undeniably, great force in the argument that as they could be promptly put into operation years before any subway could be finished, this plan ought to be sanctioned as the readiest way of relief for the Bronx. But in respect to third tracks, as in respect to the entire subway plan, Mr. SHONTS seems to have overlooked the fact that Mr. WILLCOX is now in a very strong position. Did Mr. SHONTS observe that the Willcox letter is dated Nov. 24, the day after the first authoritative announcement that the Constitutional amendments had been ratified, including that which permits disregard of the debt limit in the issue of subway bonds? Mr. WILLCOX has, or soon will have, unlimited public money at his command for subway work. He is, therefore, in a position to bring the Interborough to his terms, or to put the taxpayers into the subway business in defiance of Mr. SHONTS and of the interests of his company.

It will be a bad day for the City of New York when it begins to build with the money of the people subways which the people may have to operate at a loss. It is, therefore, much to be desired that Mr. SHONTS and Mr. WILLCOX should get together upon some reasonable and mutually satisfactory plan of construction and operation. Mr. SHONTS has ample capital at his disposal. It is better that that money should be spent for new work. As the matter now stands, there is absolutely no prospect that anybody's money will be spent. The public is weary and disgusted with the interminable letter-writing of SHONTS and WILLCOX. Neither is reasonable. One offers too little, the other asks too much. Meanwhile there is the most urgent need that new subways should be constructed down Seventh Avenue from Times Square to the Battery on the west side, and from a Thirty-third Street junction with the present Subway northward on the east side to another junction at 149th Street. The further projected lines in the Bronx and in Brooklyn are needed, but for the moment the need is not so imperative as for the Manhattan and Bronx lines. If the Public Service Commission and the Interborough people would come together in a spirit of candor, laying aside that petty temper which has thus far characterized their negotiations, there can be no reasonable doubt that an agreement might be reached and the work begun. But, above all, no more letters. Let Mr. SHONTS and Mr. WILLCOX thresh out their disagreements over a table, and when next we hear from them let their deliverance be in results, not letters.

LORD ROSEBERY'S POSITION.

Lord ROSEBERY is well described as "the Hamlet of British politics." He is ever undecided, ever changing his attitude toward the problems of the hour. In this respect he surpasses Mr. ARTHUR BALFOUR, who, though he wavers, frequently makes up his mind as to a course of action and sticks to it. Lord ROSEBERY'S eloquent speech against Lord LANSDOWNE'S proposition that the House of Lords shall reject the financial bill was not unexpected, for no sudden change of base by ROSEBERY can be quite unexpected nowadays. Indeed, this flop had been anticipated. The well-informed London correspondent of The Tribune said last Sunday that ROSEBERY might oppose LANSDOWNE'S resolution as "a profound student of Napoleonic literature" who "knows that it is bad strategy to do what the enemy wants to have done." Lord ROSEBERY'S present tactics, however, seem the reverse of Napoleonic. His argument that six months of the new budget would so sicken the country as greatly to strengthen his Majesty's opposition, is not strong or clear. Six months of operation would be likely to win the approval of the country for the new taxes. The proposed increased taxation of landowners is already very popular.

In almost the same breath as his declaration that the House of Lords has a perfect right to reject a financial bill, he argues that the rejection of this bill by the Peers would endanger the stability of the upper house. But his fellow Peers know well that a feeble resistance, or none at all, to the most radical measure ever passed by the House of Commons, would endanger their existence more than an exertion of the authority they clearly possess, under the Constitution, to pass judgment on proposed new methods of taxation or taxation for new purposes. Lord ROSEBERY urges the need of a referendum. That is exactly what Lord LANSDOWNE'S resolution proposes, to refer the budget to the will of the people in a general election.

It is clear that ROSEBERY fears the result of an election. Mr. ASQUITH'S ministers seem to have no doubt of their triumphant return to power. After the elections they might undertake to "reform" the House of Lords. That "reform" was a dream of CAMPBELL-BANNERMAN, which a government including LLOYD-GEORGE, WINSTON CHURCHILL and JOHN BURNS (who is spoken of as the new Home Secretary) may yet make a reality. It can be accomplished, however, without a new election. The Peers have nothing to gain by heeding the dubious advice of Lord ROSEBERY.

GOLD GAINED AND LOST.

Two reports of exceptional interest regarding the gain and loss of gold by the United States were published yesterday. The day's exports of gold brought the year's loss to $97,450,000. How unusual this is appears from the fact that for the five years ended with last year the United States averaged net annual imports of gold of over $26,000,000. Since all leading countries import gold on balance, it is unnecessary to say that the United States alone could support without embarrassment such a change in the currents of the basis of credit, necessarily accompanied by a similarly striking reversal of the course of general foreign trade.

The second item of news explains why the United States did so easily what any other nation would do with difficulty, if at all. The mines of the United States enlarged their production by over $4,000,000, to $94,560,000. We are among the world's largest producers of gold, as well as among the largest importers. Even at a time of unusual exports our production of gold is approximately equal to the outflow. That is, under a condition which would embarrass even the most solvent of nations we hardly lost net any gold at all. The largest accumulation of gold in the world is in our Treasury, and yet the amount of gold in our banks is smaller than that in the banks of several countries, including one or two inferior to ourselves on any other basis of comparison.

Every other nation esteems gold chiefly for its banking uses. It is only in the country where gold is most plentiful, and therefore where banking credit should be soundest, that gold is discriminated against as the basis of banking.

A CONTRAST IN CITIZENSHIP.

In an authoritative interview regarding the decision of the Federal Court dissolving the Standard Oil Trust, Mr. WILLIAM ROCKEFELLER was reported yesterday as saying:

> I want to say as a large stockholder that however the case eventuates there will be no unwillingness to comply fully, not only with the letter, but the spirit of the law, as it shall be settled by the Supreme Court.

He could say neither less nor more. The attitude of this corporation toward the law under irritating conditions is particularly edifying to those suffering less provocation, and yet demeaning themselves more truculently. Compare Mr. ROCKEFELLER'S attitude of submission to the law, without a word of criticism of Judges or law, with the attitude of the labor trust and its spokesmen. Mr. GOMPERS'S misconduct is too recent and flagrant to need anything more than simple mention. But it should not be forgotten that he was unanimously re-elected after the Federation had adopted a formal report of approval of procedure striking at the root of the authority of the courts, and therefore at the basis of law and order. It can be left to all to draw the moral for themselves.

LAW AND JUSTICE.

The Bar Association of New York last March appointed a committee "to consider the simplification of the New York procedure." The substance of the report of this committee, which will be taken up on Dec. 14, was published on Tuesday.

As is pointed out by the committee of the Bar Association, civil and criminal trials are now carried on under a Civil Code of some 3,000 sections and a Criminal Code of 963. The most recent of these codes originated in 1881, and the others in 1876 and 1880—more than a generation ago. In the changing conditions of modern industrial and social life, following the secular tendency from the simple to the complex, it is obvious that this system must become less and less fitted to the accomplishment of its purposes, however well adapted it may have been at first. It is, in essence, an attempted codification of the common law as it existed thirty years since. But the "virtue" of the common law "lies in its flexibility." "When codified it needs revision to meet the ever-changing currents of business and life at least once in a generation."

For one thing, take the abuse of appeals in civil cases. This grows by the mere lapse of time, the increase of population, and the rapid extension of industrial activities. A method that clogs courts and consumes time becomes more burdensome, and finally intolerable, when it has to deal with increasing business. This abuse, according to the committee, arises from the fact that the code "abolished the equity practice, that appeals brought up all questions of fact as well as of law, and that technical errors should be disregarded." Under the present practice a technical error is assumed to be injurious to the appellant unless it can be shown not to be so. "This has reduced the law from a science to a game. It has developed into an appellate system based on the theory that the trial and decision are presumptively wrong; that in important cases nothing short of the Court of Appeals decision is final; in the place of trial by jury it has, by reason of technical reversals, substituted a system of several trials by jury in nearly every important case." If this appears to be a too emphatic statement, read the words of Presiding Justice HIRSCHBERG:

> I think that one great difficulty is that our system is distinctively an appellate system, and it is based upon the fundamental idea that a trial and a decision are always wrong; the result of it is that people indulge in litigation because the opportunities are great; they are sure of two appeals, and until the final decision is made, they are in no hazard.

The committee recommends, in accordance with the views of Justices INGRAHAM, SCOTT, O'GORMAN, and FREEDMAN, "an amendment to the code giving the Appellate Division power to award final judgment or direct a verdict wherever the Trial Justice might do so, and to substitute the equity and modern criminal procedure rule that a technical error be presumed to be harmless for the common law rule that it be presumed to be prejudicial."

This is but an example of the direction in which the Committee of the Bar Association has been working. The report will be submitted to all the Judges and to all members of the association to give ample notice of the recommendations and time for their study.

INTER-STATE OPERA.

The present operatic war, and there is always an operatic war of some sort waging in an opera season, takes on the color of the times. It involves the question of inter-State opera. The benevolent Federal Government may yet intervene. Mr. HAMMERSTEIN accuses Mr. DIPPEL and his associates of trying to form a great operatic trust, which will reduce the wages of singers to one-quarter of their present earnings. We may pause here to shed a tear, as doubtless Mr. HAMMERSTEIN did when he put his accusation into words. The thought of a great tenor or soprano uttering golden melody for a paltry $400 or $500 a performance is deeply affecting.

Mr. HAMMERSTEIN himself has no idea of forming a trust, which is a combination of men aiming at the creation of a monopoly for the restriction of trade. Mr. HAMMERSTEIN aims at a psychological, if not physical, division of HAMMERSTEIN. He will manage opera in many cities and build countless opera houses, but there will be only one HAMMERSTEIN, and one man cannot constitute a trust. There is no existing law in which the Federal Government can intervene to prevent a HAMMERSTEIN monopoly, and the aid of a psychological expert in the matter of multi-personality would be required by Congress to frame an effective law.

Meanwhile inter-State opera proceeds merrily when the singers are not indisposed. After all, it is the singers who make opera attractive, and as yet, this season, they have not begun to wage war. But the season is young. Grand opera cannot exist without continual turmoil. That is one of the lessons of history.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

The Divorce Evil and Its Cure.

An article on "Divorce and the Public Welfare," which Prof. GEORGE ELLIOTT HOWARD contributes to the December McClure's will probably elicit antagonism and contradiction from several quarters, but it has at least the merit of attacking this much-discussed subject in a scientific instead of a sentimental way, and few will read it, we think, without reaching the conclusion that a re-examination of many of their hitherto trusted assumptions and arguments would be judicious.

Divorce, as now known, Prof. HOWARD traces back to LUTHER'S contention that marriage is a "worldly thing," not a sacrament, and therefore to be broken as well as made by the State, a view which, whether right or wrong, has steadily gained wider and wider acceptance in all progressive countries, and is now the basis of practically all legislation dealing with the matter. That fact is significant—of what, opinions differ. Prof. HOWARD, however, denies that the rapidly growing number of divorces is necessarily indicative of moral deterioration; he thinks, on the contrary, that it may, and probably does, mean simply that evil conditions once endured as a matter of course, especially when the husband was to blame for their existence, are now properly considered intolerable, and he ascribes this change largely to the comparative independence and better education of women.

Not less than the upholders of the sacramental view of marriage, Prof. HOWARD laments the increasing frequency of divorce, but to remedy the evil he advises the turning of attention from symptoms to causes, from cure to prevention. In other words, while admitting that our divorce laws might be bettered in several ways, he doubts if much can thus be accomplished, and would have attention, clerical and lay, turned to the making of such improvements in our marriage laws and customs that the chances of marital incompatibility and unhappiness may be reduced. In the now permitted, and even encouraged, unions of the ignorant, the unprepared and the unfit, he sees the real explanation of divorces.

He finds no statistics to support the belief that there is much moving from one State to another, merely to facilitate divorce, and his figures do not show that divorced persons marry more promptly or oftener, as a class, than do widowers and widows. The claim that in the Dark Ages, by some called the Age of Faith, there were no divorces, he dismisses with an admission of its truth—and an impatient reference to the ease and frequency with which dissolutions of marriage as void for any one of a dozen reasons could be and were then obtained for a price.

Literature and Book Collections.

When $3,800 is paid for a book without historic or sentimental associations, illustrating no special art or beauty of binding or printing, and showing upon its pages nothing that cannot be found in any one of a hundred complete editions of the same author, purchasable anywhere for a few dollars, people who are not "collectors" feel a bewildered astonishment that tends somewhat to become irritation and indignation.

The Poe pamphlet which fetched this enormous price, commanded it for just one reason—the reason that, when printed, not so many years ago, nobody cared enough about its fellows to preserve the few that could be sold, and all except one, or perhaps two or three, other copies soon disappeared into that mysterious void, the fortunate largeness of which has saved the world from having long since been made uninhabitable by the accumulation of worthless books.

As it happened, the contents of this particular pamphlet were not worthless, and therefore they were not lost. Those of other books as good or better have perished through neglect, to be sure, but worth is usually a saving quality, and it saved POE'S work. Nothing more was necessary, or even particularly desirable—to anybody except the collectors of first and scarce editions. Some of them, including the buyer of this little volume, are lovers of literature as well as collectors of rare books, but those who do not share their gentle and harmless form of insanity could wish that a fad was not so often confounded with the normal appreciation of books as a means, not an end.

As for the collectors who are collectors only—who never read the books they collect and have no affection for or interest in the books which anybody can buy and many do—they haven't the shadow of a claim to be considered literary people, and their almost invariable assertion of the claim is most trying to the tempers of true literates. To a book as a book, rarity, even uniqueness, adds no direct value. Whatever either does give is artificial, fictitious—that of a doube-headed calf or the rope with which a notorious murderer was hanged. To him who proudly says of one of his possessions, "There isn't another book like this in the whole world!" the right answer for a non-collector to make is, "What of it?" Unless the owner can give a much better reply than a repetition of his original statement, it can safely be assumed that what he needs most is to learn to read.

A Good American Face.

What could Col. GARDINER have meant by saying at the Old Guard dinner, "This historic city is no longer an American city; it has become a foreign city"? A hint of what he had in mind is given by the fact that he had just congratulated himself upon still having an occasional opportunity to sit at a table surrounded by "good American faces," implying that all the guardsmen were thus equipped.

But, judging by their names, they were a heterogeneous lot, so far as descent goes, and doubtless their faces would have shown it plainly enough to a skilled ethnologist. Moreover, the suspicion has been voiced more than once of late years that some of our native-born, especially some of those whose "people" have successfully exploited the natural resources of America for several generations, are less distinctively American than are some whose Americanism is a result of deliberate choice, not the accident of birth.

And as a matter of fact, New York City has from its very beginning and ever since been largely inhabited by newly, or not lately, arrived immigrants. Their diversity is now somewhat larger than it used to be, perhaps, but diverse the population of the city has always been, and never was a "good American face" to be found here except in composite photographs.

Our own inclination is to believe that every good American has a good American face, regardless of the birthplace of himself or of his ancestors. It is also to be feared that the Colonel's speech will make trouble for him, not altogether undeserved, if ever he runs for office.

The Slain.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have before me the following Associated Press dispatch headed, "Modern Gladiators":

> Thirty men killed in football matches this season and 216 injured. The 30 deaths include 20 high school boys and 2 members of athletic clubs. Twenty-five suffered internal injuries; 19 dislocated ankles; 19 concussion of the brain, and 19 fractured ribs. Fifteen legs and 9 arms were broken, while 12 collarbones were cracked; 15 cases of torn ligaments, and 13 fractured shoulders!
>
> In another Associated dispatch to-day I read, dated Baltimore, Nov. 20:
>
> A student of the Methodist Protestant Theological Seminary, Westminster, Md., is at University Hospital in a serious condition as the result of injuries received in a football game last Tuesday. An operation disclosed that his intestines had been ruptured, last night peritonitis set in, and it is feared the young man will not recover.

Reference has been made to Spanish bull fights, where human life is not often sacrificed, but only that of bulls and horses. In the pagan days of Rome gladiators contested hand to hand and man to man for the edification of the Roman populace; one or the other's death was certain, unless, by the uprising thumb of the people, the life of the vanquished was spared. A famous picture shows a naked young athlete—a winner of a Marathon—gaining the laurel wreath, and dying, amid the applause of the multitude, just as he receives his prize.

But in this enlightened twentieth century is the young human life so cheap?

A Mistress Defends Nurses.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was shocked and disgusted in reading the letters written by Mrs. Lindall, by "A Mother of Six," and by Mrs. William H. Crane. I am a mother of five children, and always had "foreign menials" to take care of my babies. I never had to complain of any of my nurses, and often wondered how patient they could be. Whenever I lost my temper or gave the children a spanking they would run to their nurse for comfort, which made me terribly angry, and I used to scold the nurse for spoiling the children. As for the bad treatment given to the "tender ones" in the parks, I declare openly that this is far from the truth. Shaking a child when it refuses to mind is not maltreating it.

LONG YEARS OF EXPERIENCE.
Hoboken, N. J., Nov. 23, 1909.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wonder if any of the letters appearing in THE TIMES on behalf of the young children attended by nurses in the parks will reach the eyes of the parents of the children and give them an idea that they should occasionally see for themselves how their or other people's young ones are cared for.

Much as the idea has been ridiculed, does not this condition of things call for the presence of "women policemen" or policewomen or women having some official authority to interpose on behalf of the innocents both in the parks and elsewhere. OLD BACH.
New York, Nov. 24, 1909.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been a nurse twenty years, and I will say this for the mothers, when you see a brutal and careless or ignorant nurse the mother is the one to blame for employing such a person. The mother is off enjoying herself, and all she cares about the children is to get them into the Park out of her way. I reproved a nurse in a hospital uniform one Sunday in Central Park for spanking an infant in its carriage. After talking a lot of impudence she informed me she had been in the family two years. I threatened to follow her home and report her, and she gave me to understand it would be a thankless task, for she was so trusted. Don't blame the nurses but the mothers who keep in their employ such women. NURSE.

The Mine Owners at Cherry.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

All that you say on the heroism of the mine workers at Cherry is entirely justified. It is not the first time that the power of self-immolation has manifested itself among the workers at a time of great calamity, and it will not be the last. But this being said, what, may I ask, have you to say about the mine company officials; those who, intent principally upon making profits for the mine owners, not alone failed to provide proper safeguards against disaster in the first place, but deliberately followed a course after the disaster which sought to preserve their mine property at the cold-blooded sacrifice of the entombed miners?

If the conduct of the mine workers at Cherry, as you say, illustrates "the very highest form of self-sacrificing devotion of man to man," does not the conduct of the mine owners and their officials stand pre-eminent as illustrating the lowest form of callous and brutal selfishness of which man is capable?

PESSIMIST ON MATRIMONY.

It Acts Only as a Perpetuator of the "Frightful War for Life."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Among the varied opinions of your readers on the subject of matrimony, may I infringe upon your space sufficiently to set forth my ideas on this topic? It is extremely interesting to take note of the arguments, the reasons, and the excuses of those who are inmates of the matrimonial institution and those who are not. In the background there looms up the motive power which is pulling all these innumerable strings, namely, the two great forces of preservation and perpetuation; one moved by hunger and the other moved by the sex instinct. How deep into the laws of Nature must we delve in order to comprehend and apprehend all the surface rumbling and what it signifies! It is not a local trembling, it is a vast disturbance far beneath.

The average man at a discriminating age finds that he is on the surface of a sphere that is dedicated to perpetual struggle. Without struggle there is deterioration and decay. He was never asked for his consent to enter this battle. His parents, probably in a fit of unreasoning passion, launched him upon a sea of turmoil. If he is fortunate, he will be equipped with the necessary weapons to fight his way, physical faculties, mental abilities, &c. If he is not so equipped, he falls by the way, and this particular effort of Nature has resulted in a failure. We have to do with the successes—let us observe!

Our average man finds that to sustain his own life he must destroy other life. If he is a vegetarian, he will consume the vitality of plants; if he is a meat eater, he may visit an abattoir and witness the destruction of mute, defenseless animals in order that he may exist. And if he asks other questions of Nature, the answers will come with startling monotony. This is the Law of Being. The stronger must prey upon the weaker. The myriads of animals in the water, on the earth, in the air, all obey this law. Each crystal, each plant, each animal, each man, is engaged in the struggle for self-preservation, as opposed to every other thing in creation. Nature students are just beginning to learn of the frightful war for life that, unperceived, is going on among us in the vegetable kingdom. We are here—all of us—engaged in the battle from the day we draw breath to the day that the breath leave us. This is the price of life.

In the face of these facts, is it to be wondered at that Man is beginning to observe some caution in handing down life? Is it the great unmixed blessing that we have been led to believe? Has the time come to examine the articles of faith, which preachers of all denominations have made a business to foster among us? Are these old idols also going to topple over like all the others when faced by real facts and true knowledge? It is but natural that marriages and children must become more and more scarce as learning becomes more and more general. Only among the most thoughtless will the greatest amount of perpetuation be carried on, as recent facts are showing.

Your feminine reader may congratulate herself on her freedom or she may whine that she is not attractive enough; your masculine reader may boast that he is a husband and many times a father, (as if that were a merit,) or else he may vainly brag about his liberty—but governing all of them, standing back of the scenes, directing each one of the actors in the play, is this Law of Being. Thoughtful men and women are perceiving and refraining. They will not hand down this terrible heritage on such terms, and as they are not masters of the terms, they will not enter the institution whose very cause for being is its inducements to perpetuate. PESSIMUS.

ROMANCE IS DIFFICULT.

Defines Lack of Social Spontaneity In a Great City.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At last a claimed flower is heard from—perhaps you will be interested in the opinion of another recently fortunate being, who had begun to be disturbed by grave fears for the future before the great event occurred.

Aside from the question of personal charms, I am convinced that the great number of bachelors, both men and maids, in New York City is due to lack of intimate acquaintance. Our social life is so formal that young people who meet seldom progress beyond the first preliminaries ot getting acquainted—a girl can know a man "well" for years without ever using his first name or having any inclination to do so.

There is no spontaneity; things don't "just happen" as they always do in real romance, but everything is planned weeks ahead, and set down on engagement calendars. My own case is typical, my husband and I having grown up within a few miles of each other, and in spite of the possession of many common friends and tastes, never having heard of each other until we met by chance several hundred miles away from home. And in all our acquaintance we have never yet happened to meet on the street or anywhere else unless all was "figured out" beforehand. This lack of social spontaneity is the price of the successes of the city. ALSO LUCKY.

To the Married and Unmarried.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Here's to the married and unmarried ladies, God bless 'em! I am never happy away from them—wife, widow, or maid. Perhaps one of the happiest and most elegant impromptus ever uttered was the following, by Dr. Young, author of the "Night Thoughts," when walking in his garden with two ladies, one of whom he afterward married. On being called away by his servants to speak to a parishioner on some pressing business he was very unwilling to leave the ladies, and, on being almost driven into the house by their gentle violence, he thus addressed them:

> "Thus Adam once at God's command was driven
> From paradise by angels sent from heaven;
> Like him I go, and yet to go am loth—
> Like him I go, for angels drove us both.
> Hard was his fate, but mine still more unkind;
> His Eve went with him, but mine stays behind."

Reconciled.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Oh, you with the redskin name, "Flower Unclaimed Through Choice!" This being the appropriate season, what she should be most thankful for is being reconciled to her lot, not for the state of single blessedness. This is worth more than a bushel of Standard Oil stock. And if way down in the bottom of her No. 8s she really believes that in this state lies her duty to society and all that is to be desired in the way of happiness, let us hope no mere man will have the heart to awaken her. But let her not forget that in remaining unclaimed she is doubtless depriving some deserving man of a sweet and amiable disposition, the possession of which might be his salvation.

GIVING UP ONE'S SEAT.

A Subway Traveler Cogitates Upon His Experiences.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Again the subject of street car chivalry in New York City! It is true that conditions are bad. The kindliness of our nature has been unequal to the pressure of the rush hour. But there is more to the matter than that. Some one ought to publish a volume of "Experiences in Offering a Seat to a Lady." The book would be worth reading.

There is the equal rights woman who resents your presumption in regarding her as a weaker vessel, and you sink yourself into your seat and your face into your paper deep, while your ears tingle and the short hair on your neck lifts. There is the considerate woman, who has only four stations further to go. She cannot at once make up her mind to deprive you of your place, so you walk determinedly toward the door, pretending to be at your destination, leaving a carful of grins at your shallow pretense. There is the woman who enters stage whispering about how proud America can be of everything but its men. Of course, the gentle insinuation that man are only "things" at once turns most of us into stone things, immovably seated; or else angelic virtue which will not be discouraged gets up with a hangdog expression to let a triumphant sneer possess the 5 cents' worth. Hardest of all to encounter is the frankly untired woman who does not want to take a tired man's seat, and argues it out with him to the edification of a highly miscellaneous but unanimously attentive audience.

There are more types than these, with numerous examples and as many variations under each. How grateful one feels to the woman who accepts naturally the natural deference. I have been through the mill. I have tried to choose the objects of my courtesy sagaciously, and felt bad. I have kept my courtesy and my seat for myself and felt worse. Now I get up when I should and promptly turn away when I have attracted my victim's attention and lifted my hat. So I conserve some of my self-respect and also avoid scenes.

But, indeed, there is more to the problem of street car chivalry than the meanness of the men! S. L.

Chivalry In Northern Cities.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter signed "K. S." in to-day's issue of THE TIMES, describing two evidences of the "Decay of Chivalry," ought to provoke discussion. The standing of women in the elevated or Subway trains of this city is, however, a comparatively new condition. A comparison with so-called gallantry of the South is not fitting, for like conditions were never produced in the South. A majority of women traveling in rush hours are going to business, where they are competing with men almost shoulder to shoulder. Chivalry is based upon the once believed idea that women are the weaker sex. This basic idea can hardly be held to by those of us who travel on the elevated and Subway. I am reminded of a woman in one of the city High Schools who is fighting with all her spare time and energy for "equal pay." She tells with scorn in her tone for ungallant man that she once asked a male teacher if she could borrow a chair from his room. He replied, "Certainly, help yourself." Whereupon she herself had to carry the chair from the room. One or a dozen illustrations will not prove that the men of to-day are less gallant than the men of yesterday, or that they are one bit less chivalrous than their mothers taught them to be. H. B. L.
New York, Nov. 24, 1909.

A Dilemma.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am moved to inquire whether chivalry requires a man who has a duty to perform to wife, children, dependent brothers, sisters, mother, or father, should deliberately put aside his chance to save his life in order that the women and children who are fellow-passengers may be saved? The right of the Captain of a burning ship to threaten with a pistol a man who wishes to save his own life is debatable. I agree, of course, that the Captain and crew of a vessel in such peril are bound by duty to save themselves only after every passenger has been rescued. Captains and crews of passenger-carrying vessels know when they engage in the service that such a risk is one of the moral conditions of their employment and voluntarily accept it. CHIVALRY.

Southern Hauteur.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To "K. S." I would say be sure the "decline of masculine respect" is not due to your own actions. The Southern "hauteur" is well known; it doesn't count for much in New York City. The "high and mighty I" some people assume to those they think below them is not a proper stand to take, especially if one desires respect shown to him.

A Danger Point.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Reading of the accident and the brutal conduct of the drivers of the automobile at 137th Street and Broadway, the wonder is that not more accidents happen at that point. It was only a few minutes before this accident that a big limousine car without a light passed there at a high rate of speed. Daily the lives of those who go to and from the Subway station at 137th Street and Broadway are endangered by drivers of taxicabs, who, on Broadway, turn on full speed to take the hill going up to 136th Street to fall in line at a station maintained there. Not very long ago the writer succeeded in pulling his wife from in front of one of these cars in the very nick of time to the accompaniment of the driver's curses. Occasionally a bicycle "cop" is seen there, but his duty seems to be limited to killing time with the idle chauffeurs and the "starter" in front of the corner saloon.

COMMUTERS' SONG.

(With Apologies to Alfred, Lord Tennyson.)

The splendor falls on brokers' halls
And Wall Street summit's fortieth story;
The long light shakes across the wakes
Of ferryboat and frightened dory.
Blow, whistle, blow, send the commuters flying;
Blow, whistle; run, commuters—sighing, sighing, sighing.

O hark! O hear! how thin and clear,
And thinner, clearer, farther going!—
(When they so far from dinner are)—
The ferry whistle faintly blowing!
Blow, let them hear the empty dock replying;
Blow, whistle; cease, commuters, sighing, sighing, sighing.

O love! they die 'neath yon rich sky,
They faint before they reach the river;
Their late trains roll from goal to goal;—
We live and dine in town forever!
Blow, whistle, blow, send the commuters flying;
And run, commuters, get there—sighing, sighing, sighing.

"PARSIFAL" REVIVED AT METROPOLITAN

Clarence Whitehall Makes His First Appearance as Amportas in Wagner's Solemn Drama.

AMERICAN SINGER SCORES

Mme. Fremstad's Impersonation of Kundry Still a Subtle and Powerful Creation—Impressive Performance.

Amfortas	Clarence Whitehill
Titurel	Herbert Witherspoon
Gurnemanz	Robert Blass
Parsifal	Carl Burrian
Klingsor	Otto Goritz
Kundry	Olive Fremstad
First Knight of the Grail	Julius Bayer
Second Knight of the Grail	Adolf Muhlmann

Conductor, Alfred Hertz.

The authorities of the Metropolitan Opera House have done well to reserve "Parsifal" as a performance to be given under circumstances that are exceptional and, so far as the daily life of New York can permit them to be, fitting for the contemplation of Wagner's "sacred stage festival play." Those circumstances seem to be found best on one or two holidays in the season; of which Thanksgiving is the first. The work was given yesterday after the manner of its previous representations, beginning at quarter of one, and continuing with intervals of thirty and forty minutes between the acts through the afternoon. The audience, though it did not quite fill the house, was large, especially considering the fact that it was outside the regular subscription season, and the very large demands that this season makes upon the time and purses of habitual frequenters of the opera. And as has been the case in the years that have elapsed since "Parsifal" was first brought to New York, the performance was clearly regarded by those who heard it as something different and apart from the usual operatic representation. That feeling, though it may not be preserved quite as it was, has not worn away.

Much credit is due to Mr. Hertz, who has made the New York performances of "Parsifal" what they have been, for the lofty plane on which he established the production at the very beginning, and the unyielding insistance with which he has kept it there ever since. He has never allowed it to become perfunctory, or to fall into conventional mannerisms. There are changes from time to time in the cast, and successive repetitions vary somewhat in merit, in one or another passage; but on the whole it may be said that a standard has been maintained for this work, as it was set in the beginning.

Yesterday's representation maintained this tradition ;and it was an impressive and beautiful re-creation of the drama, of its spirit, of the profundity and beauty of its music, of the pictorial imaginativeness of its scenes. Some of the most important participants in the performance are those who were originally concerned in its production here. There was, first and foremost, Mme. Fremstad, whose impersonation of Kundry remains one of her most subtle and powerful creations in lyric drama, one which established her standing more securely than ever as a great artist, and which has not its superior now, upon the only other stage where "Parsifal" is yet to be seen. There was Robert Blass, whose Gurnemanz so fitly characterizes the nature of the grand warder, and is especially fine in its dignity and musical quality of the declamation. There is Otto Gorlitz as Klingsor, most vivid and dramatically effective. And there are Julius Bayer and Adolf Muhlmann, familiar figures as the Knights of the Grail.

Mr. Burrian, who was the Parsifal, has been seen in that character before in New York. It is a well-considered and skillfully modeled impersonation, with force and youthful energy in the first scenes; perhaps not quite reaching the solemn impressiveness and dignity with which Parsifal is clad in the later ones. Mr. Burrian's voice is, as it has been, somewhat hard and metallic in quality, though powerful.

There was a new Amfortas, Clarence Whitehill, who appeared for the first time at the Metropolitan Opera House. He is an American singer who has won a distinguished position in opera in Germany, and who returns to this country an artist grown in many directions. His voice is a fine and resonant baritone, his singing is marked by skill, and the potency of emotional expression. The suffering, the remorse, the passionate protestations of the delinquent King were given a truly moving embodiment in his impersonation, which was one to give high anticipations of his further appearances here.

The orchestral playing was admirable in tone, richness, and balance, and the singing of the chorus of flower girls in the second act excellent.

"BARBER OF SEVILLE" SUNG.

A Performance That Was Admirably In Place In The New Theatre.

Il Conte D'Almaviva	Alessandro Bonci
Dr. Bartolo	Pini-Corsi
Rosina	Lydia Lipkowska
Figaro	Giuseppe Campanari
Basilio	Andrea de Segurola
Florello	Vincenzo Reschiglian

Conductor, Vittorio Podesti.

The New Theatre has been put to no happier use musically as yet than it was yesterday afternoon, when it afforded the frame and setting of a performance of "Il Barbiere di Siviglia." This is precisely the kind of thing whose value is greatly enhanced by the smaller size of the new house, and the closer contact that listeners get with the artists upon the stage; a work whose music is delicate and graceful filigree, and whose comedy is sparkling and quick interplay—all of which is more or less dissipated and lost by being scattered in the large spaces of a great Opera House. The ideal place for a performance of Rossini's comedy could be still smaller than The New Theatre, but it is well to be thankful, especially on Thanksgiving Day for what benefits are granted.

There have been much finer performances of "Il Barbiere di Siviglia," in most particulars at least, on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House; but there were advantages in this one that even the finest could not offer there. It may, for instance, be supposed that few of the audience yesterday ever before quite so well understood what it was all about, and that few whose knowledge of the Italian language permitted ever gathered so completely the comic significance of the intentions, the mischief making plans, the repartee of the people on the stage, or the humor of the situations as conveyed in their airs and recitatives.

Mr. Bonci has special cause to rejoice in the change of surroundings to which the "Barber" has been brought. They are especially favorable to his beautiful and artistic singing, to the flexibility and purity of his execution of the florid music that he had to deal with in this opera. He is the first tenor New York has heard in a long time who could really do justice to this music, by reason of his command over coloratura passages that few except women singers now expect to sing. It resulted that Mr. Bonci was easily the principal figure in an opera that has long been accounted the peculiar property of the sopranos.

Unfortunately, Mme. Lipkowska, who took the part of Rosina, could present very few claims by which she could wrest this supremacy from him. She is a most winsome Rosina in appearance, youthful and alluring, full of grace and charm. But the house is as ruthless toward her voice and vocal skill as it is kindly to Mr. Bonci's, because defects and deficiences are laid bare. The quality of her voice had frequently a certain hardness, and there were imperfections in her delivery of the florid passages. Her singing of "Una Voce Poco Fi" was not a great delight to lovers of legato and of smooth and equal tone.

Mr. Campanari's Figaro is an old and much beloved friend, and there was all the old spirit of mischievous and voluble humor and irrepressible gayety in it. He, too, has certain vocal deficiencies that the house does not spare, and the tremolo that has lately invaded his voice is still there. But his singing of the "Largo al Factotum" song was highly effective. Mr. Pini-Corsi is remembered from years gone by, and gave a richly humorous portrait of Dr. Bartolo, as to the vocal side of which there is not much to be said. Mr. Segurola for the first time appeared as the Basilio, and made a clever character study of it, without exaggeration, amusing in its solemn stupidity. The least admirable feature of the performance, and one that prevented it from reaching a higher level than it might have had, was Mr. Podesti's treatment of the orchestral score, which was heavy and dull, often productive of an overbearing tone.

MME. GADSKI IN 'TROVATORE.'

Sings Beautifully In Role That Suits Her—Mr. Martin as Manrico.

Leonora	Johanna Gadski
Azucena	Louise Homer
Inez	Marie Mattfeld
Manrico	Riccardo Martin
Il Conte di Luna	Pasquale Amato
Ferrando	Giulio Rossi
Ruiz	Giuseppe Tecchi
Un Zingaro	Aristide Barrachi
Conductor	Egisto Tango

It was not reserved for Mme. Cavalieri to be the only prima donna who essayed a part for the first time last evening. At the Metropolitan Opera House Mme. Gadski sang Leonora in "Il Trovatore" for the first time on any stage. The character is one which suits her very well, and she did some really beautiful singing in it. Her vocal method is one well adapted to that part of the music, which is purely lyric, and she was almost equally successful in the more dramatic moments of the score.

Mr. Martin, who is singing perhaps more than he should these days, was a very good Manrico. This young American is not yet a robust tenor, but he delivered the "Di Quella Pira" air with fine effect for all that and with much more fire and spirit than he usually infuses into his work.

Mr. Amato was a Conte di Luna who was pleasant to listen to. Mme. Homer's Azucena is a well-known figure here and a generally admired one. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Tango, was not in the best of form. The audience was not large.

FREE LECTURES ON MUSIC.

Board of Education Adds Six Lecturers—Next Week's Course.

Giuseppe Aldo Randegger, Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Humphreys, and Frederick Reddall have been added to the list of music lecturers for the Board of Education, and during the remaining weeks of the present year they will deliver free lectures and lecture recitals to adults at the board's lecture centres. Next week a number of interesting music lectures will be given. On Friday night at Y. M. C. A. Hall, 311 East Broadway, Miss Elizabeth W. Putnam will give a recital on "Songs of the Workers," and on Wednesday night at Public School 3, 145th Street, east of Willis Avenue, Miss Myrta L. Mason will lecture on "Songs of the Races."

The following are the music lectures scheduled for the week beginning Monday night:

Tuesday, "Songs of Burns," illustrated by songs, Mrs. Henrietta Speke-Seeley, at Riverdale Hall, Riverdale Avenue and 260th Street.

Wednesday, "Modern Instrumental Composers, Debussy," illustrated by musical selections, Daniel Gregory Mason, at Y. M. C. A. Hall, Ninety-second Street and Lexington Avenue.

Friday, "Scottish Music," Mrs. Katherine Hand, at Public School 90, 148th Street, near Eighth Avenue.

Sunday, "Gounod's Opera, 'Faust,'" illustrated by piano and gramaphone selections, Mrs. Franziska Hopf, at Public School 83, 216 East 110th Street.

CROWDS AT THE THEATRES.

Thanksgiving Harvest for Ticket Speculators—Stars Give Dinners.

Thanksgiving Day was observed in the usual way at the theatres yesterday afternoon and evening. The bad weather of the afternon had some effect upon the matinees, though at the houses where there are established successes business was almost capacity. At night every Broadway theatre was filled to its limit, and at some the sale of standing room had to be stopped. Ticket speculators reaped a harvest, as usual, in spite of the efforts of the managers to prevent their obtaining tickets.

Some of the stars gave Thanksgiving dinners to the principals in their companies. Sam Bernard had the principals of "The Girl and the Wizard" at his home between the matinee and evening performance. Maud Lambert invited her fellow-principals from "The Midnight Sons" to her apartments at 11 o'clock for a Thanksgiving breakfast prepared by herself. Frank Daniels, at Daly's, followed the usual custom and gave a dinner to the entire company on the stage.

The Times Subway Station was congested last night for more than an hour by the after-theatre crowd. The platforms of both uptown and downtown were jammed. The crush began just after 11 o'clock, and was at its height at 11:30. Until after midnight every train was crowded to the limit.

THE RIALTO'S TURKEYS.

Story of a Bounteous Feast and a Quick Disappearance.

A Thanksgiving charity unrecognized by the regular societies found many beneficiaries yesterday. A certain Times Square hostelry renowned along the Rialto for the excellence of its free lunch prepared for the occasion four fat turkeys, two tender sucking pigs, a salmon, and quantities of lobster and chicken salad.

Somehow the news had spread among the theatrical folk. A regular customer, seeing the advance of their hosts, thought he would attend to a little business before he took his own place in line. He came back in an hour, and all that his favorite waiter could do was to find him a bit of the tail of the second pig. Fragments of cold salmon might also have been detected, but the turkeys and the salads had disappeared with a celerity marvelous even for Broadway.

MAUDE ADAMS IN BLOCKADE.

Leaves Auto and Walks Roadway of Bridge to Reach Theatre.

Maude Adams's automobile that was taking her yesterday from her New York hotel to the Montauk Theatre, Brooklyn, for the afternoon performance, was held up in the middle of Williamsburg Bridge by a blockade, and Miss Adams was forced to walk along the slippery roadway in order to reach the theatre in time for a performance.

After she and her maid had gone the greater part of the distance on foot, the motorman of a passing trolley car stopped his car and beckoned them to get aboard. To do this they had to creep through the girders that guard the driveway, and cross a precarious bridge of steel beams. Once on the Brooklyn side, an automobile was hired and Miss Adams reached the theatre a minute after the overture.

"A Much Married Man" Produced.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERBURY, Conn., Nov. 25.—"A Much Married Man," Will C. Cowper's new play, was produced for the first time to-day at Poli's Theatre. The plot deals with the plight of Jack Godfrey, who, to secure a fortune left by a relative, must be married and a father, and delaying beyond the time set, prevails upon a friend to pass as his wife and others to donate children as his offspring. Not depending on any one, he pledges others, and his urgent appeals for offspring bring all sorts and sizes, until, crazed, he confesses to defeat, in which predicament he weds.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Ruth St. Denis, on the days she does not appear at the Hudson Theatre in her matinees, will be seen in near-by cities giving matinee performances. The first of these matinees will be given at the Grand Opera House, New Haven, on Dec. 1, and the second at the Collingwood Opera House, Poughkeepsie, on Dec. 4.

The American Academy of Dramatic Arts will give the second performance of the season at the Empire Theatre next Thursday afternoon, Dec. 2. The plays will be "The Shuttlecock," in three acts, by Anita Scott, and a one-act play from the French of Louis Beniere, entitled "The Hawk."

William Morris announces that Valeska Suratt will appear at the Plaza Music Hall next Monday in "The Belle of the Boulevards," and that the difficulties that arose this week have been smoothed over.

Miss Kitty Cheatham will give her annual recital at the Lyceum Theatre on Dec. 27. This afternoon she will give a recital at the Columbia Theatre, Washington, D. C.

CAVALIERI GAY IN ROLE OF CARMEN

Italian Singer's Long Cherished Ambition to Sing This Part Gratified at the Manhattan.

ZENATELLO AS DON JOSE

Careful Rehearsals of Chorus Result In Improved Performance — Cavalieri's Novel Interpretation of Chief Role.

Ballet.

Musical Director, M. Henriquez de la Fuente.

Mme. Lina Cavalieri is said to have cherished the ambition to sing Carmen for some years. Before last night this desire had been ungratified, but last night at the Manhattan Opera House before an audience which included many of her fellow artists the Roman singer had an opportunity to carry out her heart's wish. The occasion was likewise the first on which Mr. Zenatello had sung Don Jose in New York. It was to have been the first time that he had sung it in French on any stage, but evidently it was feared that too much novelty would bring bad luck. At any rate Mr. Zenatello stuck to his native tongue, while the other singers voiced the sentiments of the characters in the language of Bizet.

"Carmen" has also evidently been "restudied" at the Manhattan. Since the brilliant performance of the first season at this house, which reached the high water-mark of "Carmen" performances in New York, constant repetitions of the opera have caused it to be more or less into a rut. Last night it seemed as if the stage manager, chorus master, and musical director had gone over the performance from start to finish, and there was much noticeable improvement. The chorus sang with more spirit than it has for some time, and usually had a strict regard for the key. The men's chorus in the first act was a beautiful piece of work, and the cigarette chorus went better than it has for some time. The action of the play had been worked up also. The stage manager had introduced much life into the movement of the ensembles. However, in one or two instances he carried his zeal too far. It did not seem necessary for half the populace of Seville to be crossing the stage during the duet of Micaela and Jose in the first act. In fact, the action at this point quite seriously interfered with the enjoyment of the music.

Mme. Cavalieri's physical type in many ways suggests the character of Carmen, and it is not strange that she should have desired to sing it, although the music is, most of it, much too low for her voice and not at all suited to her present method of singing, improved though it may be. The singer had a tendency to push out her tones, which destroyed their proper value and gave them a pinched sound. For phrasing and rhythm she seemed to have little regard.

Either she conceived the character in a totally different vein from which it is usually played, or else she did not succeed in getting her meaning over the footlights. Her Carmen suggested a young girl who was having a good time for the first time in her life. It was gay—at times, notably in the dances of the second act, it was almost abandoned—but it never seemed to be intentionally or even unintentionally alluring. Mme. Cavalieri was a laughing Carmen, with a light heart and a light head, utterly lacking in repose. Of course she was beautiful in her Spanish costumes and often, in her poses, she resembled a Japanese print. Her dancing in the second act was attractive. The audience was extremely friendly toward the singer and recalled her many times after several of the airs and after each act.

There were times during the course of the evening when many in the audience regretted that Mr. Dalmores was sitting in a box. Mr. Zenatello has done some things in the past in the Italian operas which have given him a certain place with the public, but his Don Jose only succeeded in making many people wish that he had never attempted it.

Mr. Dufranne has sung Escamillo here before, and last night he repeated former successes in the part. The "Toreador Song" was repeated. Miss Alice Gentle and Mlle. Taty-Lango were very good as the two lady smugglers, and Messrs. Nicolay and Leroux were adequate as their gentlemen companions.

The orchestra was under the direction of Mr. de la Fuente and generally played well. Whatever else the performance was it never was dull.

THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

Second of the Regular Series of Concerts—Mme. Carreno the Soloist.

The second concert of the Philharmonic Society's regular series was given last evening, and the same performance is to be repeated this afternoon in Carnegie Hall. The programme was one of unusual interest and gave a new point of view upon Mr. Mahler's catholicity of taste, a matter upon which the musical public that is to sit under his ministrations in the future might well have a curiosity. He played for the first time here a symphony of Brahms, the third, and a piece by a modern French composer, "L'Apprenti Sorcier" of Paul Dukas; though this last is, to be sure, not characteristic of the composer's mature style, or of the current movement in French music to which he has given his adherence.

The reading of the Brahms symphony was most sympathetic, yet an individual one. It showed a keen understanding of Brahms and penetration into his spirit so deep that the interpretation was intensely vital, the exposition of something truly viewed and felt. It was pulsating with life and energy in the first and last movements. The poetical content of the andante taken at a pace slightly faster than it often is, and the lyrical character of the third movement were finely presented. The performance was notable for its freedom in the matter of tempo modification and of nuance, and, likewise, for the richness and changing beauty of its orchestral coloring. Brahms's orchestration, so precisely fitted to the expression of his musical idea, does not, like the dashing instrumental brilliancy that can be learned nowadays by every conservatory pupil, play itself. It is the task of the accomplished conductor so to adjust his instrumental values as to secure the nicety of balance, the fusion of color effects from his players that he shall present the work in its true light. Then the orchestration of Brahms becomes as luminous as rich, as suggestive of living beauty as the chiaroscuro of Rembrandt.

Mme. Teresa Carreno was the soloist, reappearing for the first time in New York after an absence of a couple of seasons. She made a mighty break in the hard and fast traditional line of concerted pieces that form the pianistic repertory, and played Weber's "Concertstueck." She played it brilliantly, with much of its somewhat flamboyant sweep of line, and without that excess of power that has marked some of her performances in the past. The work, it must be confessed, sounds a little old-fashioned to-day; some of its heroics are only mock heroics, and it flounders ostentatiously with the true Weber flourish. But it is more worth hearing that some of the other pieces that still remain in the pianistic repertory, and its performance was much enjoyed.

Mr. Mahler repeated the suite he has compounded from two of Bach's orchestral suites, he himself playing the "Bach Clavier" to represent the harpsichord that was an invariable member of the orchestra of Bach's time. It made a deep impression on the audience. The Clavier was more clearly heard than in the first performance, and its significance apparently better understood. It was all brilliant and rhythmically incisive. At the same time the justification for dismembering two of Bach's suites and reassembling the fragments appears to be no more sufficient now than it did when the movements were first played at the beginning of the Philharmonic's historical cycle.

The amusing musical prank of Paul Dukas, which has been heard here several times in recent years, made a light-hearted end for this concert.

ADOLFO MULLER-URY RETURNS

Painted Portrait of German Emperor for Metropolitan Art Museum.

Adolfo Muller-Ury, the artist, who went abroad some time ago to paint a portrait of the German Emperor for the Metropolitan Museum of Art, arrived here yesterday on the North German Lloyd Line steamship Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm from Bremen. The canvas, which has been completed, will be shipped to this country within the next few days.

Mr. Muller-Ury was entertained by the Kaiser. He remained a week longer in Germany to inspect the celebrated castle of Marienburg, in East Prussia, as the guest of the Emperor.

GIVES DINNER TO NEWSBOYS.

Mrs. F. W. Vanderbilt Cheered at Her Thanksgiving Repast.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 25.—Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt gathered all the messengers and newsboys in Masonic Hall this afternoon and gave them a bountiful Thanksgiving dinner, marking the sixteenth affair of the kind. The dinner was served under the direction of Miss Amelia Tanner, assisted by the members of the King's Daughters, in which Mrs. Vanderbilt is a leading spirit.

The Rev. Edward A. Johnson delivered a short address, and at the mention of their hostess's name the boys cheered lustily. An orchestra played the popular songs of the day and the four hundred or more voices joined in chorus. As each boy left the hall he received a box of candy.

Mrs. French Vanderbilt, who is closing her stay Sunday night and going to New York with her son, Master William Henry Vanderbilt, sailing for Berlin on Dec. 1, distributed gifts in her automobile during the day, and this evening entertained at dinner.

MISS LOWENSTEIN A BRIDE.

Wedded to Arthur Wallace of Brookline, Mass., at the St. Regis Hotel.

Miss Loretta Lowenstein, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Lowenstein, of 5 East Ninety-third Street, was married to Arthur Wallace of Brookline, Mass., in the Louis XVI. Room of the St. Regis Hotel, at 6:30 o'clock last evening. The Rev. Dr. J. L. Magnes of Temple Emanu-El officiated.

The bride wore a white satin empire dress, trimmed with old point lace, and carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley. Her sisters, the Misses Emma and Carrie Lowenstein, were bridesmaids. They wore blue chiffon over blue satin. Mrs. Arthur Barkhouse, a sister of the bridegroom, was the matron of honor. The ushers were Messrs. Moe Hoffman and Arthur Barkhouse. Leo Lowenstein, a brother of the bride, was master of ceremonies. The wedding ceremony was held under a canopy of chrysanthemums, lilies, and palms, and at dinner after the reception in the marble banquet room the bride sat at a heart-shaped table strewn with white roses.

More than one hundred guests were present, among them Mr. and Mrs. L. Wallace of Brookline, parents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Simon Vorenberg of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Barkhouse of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Herbert, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hynman, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fleischman, Dr. and Mrs. Katzenburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Schiff.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace will spend their honeymoon in the South, and thereafter will make their home in Brookline.

COOK—VAN NEST.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., Nov. 25.—Miss Rose Van Nest, daughter of Judge Levi Van Nest, of Oceanic, was married late this afternoon to Benjamin P. Cook, of Monmouth Beach. The ceremony was performed at the bride's home by the Rev. F. H. Diehl, of the Presbyterian Church. The parlors were decorated with palms and cut flowers. A large number of guests was present. The bride was dresed in a princess dress of white satin trimmed with drawn lace. The bridesmaid was Miss Grace Van Nest, a sister of the bride. She wore a white satin dress trimmed with duchess lace. The best man was Percy Hicks, of Oceanic. The couple left for New Britain, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. George Edgar Godward gave a dance yesterday in their apartments at the Manhasset for their daughter, Miss Alice Mildred Godward. The guests were received by Mrs. Godward, assisted by Mrs. J. Brewster Coe and Mrs. Charles H. Randall. Among the guests were Miss Eleanor Purdy, Miss Sarah Howard, Miss Margaret Fanning, Miss Beryl Barnes, Miss Helen Watson, Miss Anna Moore, Miss Elizabeth Chapin, Arthur McAnerney, Paul Stinson, Arthur Fling, and Leslie Momand.

HELLER—HAYMAN.

E. L. Heller of 12 East Seventy-seventh Street has announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Heller, to Siegfried Hayman.

Social Notes.

Mrs. Artemas H. Holmes is giving a reception this afternoon for her debutante daughter, Miss Hilda Holmes.

Miss Elizabeth Bruce will make her debut this afternoon at a tea given by her uncle, James Donald, at 27 West Seventy-fourth Street.

Mrs. French Vanderbilt will arrive in town from Newport to-morrow before sailing for Europe on Dec. 1.

The Count and Countess de Beaufort have returned from their visit to Chicago and are stopping at the St. Regis for a week before sailing for London.

Richard Mortimer of Tuxedo is in New York for a few days. Mr. Mortimer is leaving shortly for Virginia Hot Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian H. Barclay, who spent the Summer and Fall abroad, have taken apartments at the Hotel Wolcott for the Winter.

Mrs. Gardner Williams and Miss Gertrude and Miss Dorothy Williams of Washington are in town after spending the last few months in Africa.

August Belmont, Jr., who has been ill with typhoid fever for two weeks, is improving steadily.

Miss Virginia Livingston Hunt, who went to Morristown to attend the Assembly Ball, is the guest there of Mrs. Edward H. Clarke.

Hardship of Being a Tax Commissioner

Judgments recorded on Wednesday and printed in the list in yesterday's TIMES as against "Hugh Hastings et al." were really against the city, as represented by the Department of Taxes and Assessments, and had not the least connection with Mr. Hastings personally. He is a Tax Commissioner and as such was named in the judgments, the "et al." being the members of the Board.

CHICAGO PREMIERES FOR FROHMAN PLAYS

Manager to Make Western City a Producing Centre, Beginning with "The Fires of Fate."

THE NEW JACKSON THEATRE

To be Devoted to Productions of Unusual Plays—Group of English Playwrights to Attend Inauguration.

Charles Frohman will leave for Chicago next Thursday to put into operation his plan to make that city a theatrical producing centre. Some time ago he made the statement that Chicago was destined to become a producing centre of almost if not fully as great importance as New York, and pointed out that that city's geographical position gave it an advantage from the standpoint of transportation over New York or any Eastern city. He is now ready to prove his faith in the town.

The first production he will make there will be Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's play, "The Fires of Fate," that is to be presented on Dec. 6 at the Illinois Theatre. This will be the beginning of a series of Chicago first nights under Mr. Frohman's direction. Conan Doyle will be present, in company with William Gillette, and it is and it is expected that several of Mr. Frohman's friends will go from New York.

Mr. Frohman's other productions made in Chicago will be housed in the new Jackson Theatre, now in the course of construction, and the Illinois will be open to the plays of other syndicate managers, as heretofore. It is planned to make the new Jackson a theatre devoted to special features and a home for the principal Frohman stars during their Chicago season. The special features, according to Mr. Frohman's announcement, will be productions of unusual plays, without consideration of their usefulness in other cities. At its inaugurtaion Mr. Frohman expects to have present the group of playwrights who are to be associated with him in his London repertoire theatre, as well as many of the best-known American playwrights. The date of this occasion has not been announced.

"THE NEXT OF KIN" STAGED.

Klein's Play Deals with Menace of Present Methods of Legal Procedure.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 25.—"The Next of Kin," Charles Klein's new play, was given its initial presentation at the Apollo Theatre in this city this afternoon.

Mr. Klein has based his drama on what he considers to be a contemporary menace—present day methods of legal procedure, which permit of seemingly endless litigation through political control and improper manipulation of the courts, and on attempts to defraud a parentless girl out of a large inheritance.

Miss Hedwig Reicher appeared in the leading role, and the cast included Frank Sheridan, Wallace Eddinger, Frederick Perry, Harry Davenport, Grant Mitchell, Maggie Fielding, and Anita Rothe.

AUGUSTE P. MONTANT DEAD.

Well-Known Yachtsman and One of Founders of Racquet Club.

Auguste P. Montant of the firm of Stockton & Montant, commission merchants of 79 Fifth Avenue, better known as a yachtsman, who served in the State militia for nineteen years, and once was a member of the Board of Education, died very suddenly at his house, 31 West Fiftieth Street, yesterday of heart disease. He was 63 years old.

Mr. Montant was born in Paris of a French family, but with his parents, at the age of 4, he came to this country, and here received practically all his education. He was successful in business, and held a high social position. He was one of the founders of the Tennis and Racquet Club, belonged to the Union Club, the Nassau Country Club, the Merchants' Club downtown, and the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club. He was interested in a number of charities, was a member of Gen. Fitzgerald's staff during part of his militia service, and was on the Directorate of the Bowery Savings Bank.

His widow was Miss Hanna M. Townsend before marrriage. He left also two children, Mrs. Huntington Norton and Louis T. Montant. His funeral will take place Saturday at 10 o'clock from the Church of St. Vincent de Paul.

MAJOR H. D. BULKLEY DEAD.

Controller of Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company for Many Years.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 25.—Major Henry Deming Bulkley, for many years Controller of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, and one of the most widely known railroad men in the East, died here to-day. He had been ill for several months.

Major Bulkley was born in 1831 in Charleston, S. C., and came from distinguished New England ancestry, one of his forefathers having been the Rev. Peter Bulkley, one of the founders of Concord.

In 1834 Major Bulkley's family moved North, and he was educated in New York. He entered the Southern Army at the outbreak of the civil war, and was attached to the staff of his brother-in-law, Gen. Anderson. In 1889 he was made Controller of the Baltimore & Ohio.

Rev. Dr. John Brainard.

SYRACUSE, Nov. 25.—The Rev. Dr. John Brainard, one of the best known Episcopal clergymen in Central New York, died to-night at his home in Auburn after a lingering illness. He was rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church. Dr. Brainard was at one time President of the diocese of Central New York.

Obituary Notes.

CHARLES M. BRINKERHOFF, 55 years old, for the last twenty years employed in the office of a Custom House broker, died in St. Vincent's Hospital yesterday afternoon, shortly after his admission there, supposedly of gangrene of the stomach. Mr. Brinkerhoff had lived at 231 West Eleventh Street for the last fifteen years. He was not married. He originally came from Nyack. He had been ill for two weeks.

WILLIAM LIVINGSTON, a retired business man, died yesterday at his residence, 130 West Ninety-first Street. He was in his 77th year. For thirty-two years Mr. Livingston was a member of the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen of New York City. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. L. Helen Livingston.

Mrs. CHARLOTTE HARRISON MORRIS, widow of John J. Morris, died yesterday at her residence, 1 West Eighty-first Street. She was in her 80th year.

Mrs. MARY H. REQUA, widow of the late Rev. Schuyler T. Requa, died yesterday at Rockville Centre, L. I.

"Black" Opal Scarf Pins for Men

A Gift Suggestion by Marcus & Co., Jewelers, 5th Ave. at 45th St.

A BLACK OPAL SCARFPIN—Throughout the wide variety of jewelry to which the black opal lends its rare beauty in none is it more attractive than when applied to Scarfpins. It must be understood that the Black Opal is not black, but a dark Opal, that shows with every changing angle of light a kaleidoscope of color—iridescent flames of greens, blues, crimsons and yellows—a veritable riot of color.

This gem, with its strength and virility, is most excellently adapted to men's wear, and a man must be dead to beauty who would not joyfully add a Black Opal Scarfpin to his collection.

The prices for Scarfpins range from $300 for large specimen stones down to $25, or even less for smaller gems.

Aside from its charm as a beautiful gem the Black Opal must always remain unique and unusual. It can never become commonplace, because of its very limited production. Marcus & Co. have on exhibit the last of this year's mining from the now famous Lightning Ridge Mine of New South Wales.

The public are cordially invited to view this exhibit, which consists of uncut gems as well as simple and elaborate articles of jewelry.

CAPT. EDWARD P. ALLEN DEAD.

Democratic Congressman from Ypsilanti, Mich., for Two Terms.

YPSILANTI, Mich., Nov. 25.—Capt. Edward P. Allen, Democratic Congressman from the Second Michigan District from 1886 to 1889, died suddenly to-day of apoplexy.

Edward P. Allen was born at Sharon, Washtenaw County, Mich., on Oct. 28, 1839. He was graduated from the State Normal School in March, 1864, and then obtained a position as tutor at the Union School at Vassar, Mich. He served in this capacity only three months when the civil war started, and he enlisted and helped to raise a company for the Twenty-ninth Michigan Infantry Regiment. He was commissioned First Lieutenant in that regiment, and at the close of the war was mustered out of service with the rank of Captain.

Mr. Allen returned to his native State after the close of the war and entered the law department of the Ann Arbor University, graduating in March, 1867. He soon afterward formed a partnership with S. M. Cutcheon, who was afterward to become his colleague in Congress. Mr. Cutcheon moved to Detroit in 1875 and Mr. Allen continued his practice in Ypsilanti. He became Mayor and prosecuting attorney, and was elected to the lower branch of the State Legislature in 1876. He was re-elected for three successive terms. In 1882 he was appointed United States Indan Agent for Michigan, which office he held until 1885, when he resigned to enter the Fiftieth Congress. He was re-elected to the Fifty-first Congress.

BRUMMER DIES FROM WORRY.

Coney Island Hotel Proprietor Became Despondent After Wife's Death.

Christopher Brummer, proprietor of the Sagamore Hotel, at Coney Island, died on Wednesday at his home, 2,834 West Second Street, Coney Island, from worry over the death of his wife, which occurred seven weeks ago. Brummer was married three years ago and was deeply devoted to his wife. About a year ago Richard Garms, proprietor of the Sagamore Hotel, decided to retire, and he gave the hotel to Brummer as a reward for nineteen years of faithful service. Brummer and his wife ran the hotel together and were supremely happy over their good fortune.

When Brummer's wife became ill two months ago, Brummer sat up with her night after night and got little sleep. At her death he became despondent, and a week ago he suffered an attack of heart failure and grew rapidly worse. Hemorrhages finally brought about the end. Brummer left a daughter 2 years old.

GOLFERS PLAY WITH RED BALLS IN SNOW

Albert Seckel of Princeton Best in Qualifying Round on Lakewood Links.

TRIPLE TIE FOR SECOND

Shanley, Travis, and Herreshoff Play the Round in 91 Strokes Each—Travers Does 18 Holes in 93.

Snow rules were in order on the links of the Country Club of Lakewood yesterday, and the conditions were more trying than on the previous day. Of the original 110 entries more than seventy started in the eighteen-hole qualifying round of the open tournament, and the prize for low score went to Albert Seckel, of Princeton, the intercollegiate champion. Seckel went round in 90.

Closely pressing the collegian were three well-known performers, Walter J. Travis and Fred Herreshoff of Garden City, and J. F. Shanley, Jr., the Deal record holder, all with scores of 91. Then followed Findlay S. Douglas of Nassau at 92, while Jerome D. Travers of Montclair tied with two others at 93.

With an inch of snow on the ground the contestants early decided that red balls would be safer, as the regulation white could not be found so easily. As a result of this decision, Will Norton, the club's "pro," was kept busy painting the balls. Travis began with a red ball, but after the first hole went back to the white.

Never in their long experience of competitive golf have the Lakewood officials been confronted with such bad first-day weather, so, under the circumstances, they decided on liberal rules. In other words, it was made permissible to place the ball on the top of the snow, which helped some.

In getting his score of 90, Seckel developed a commendable steadiness. His 7 at the second hole, where he got into difficulties, was his only bad hole, going out, and he reached the turn in 48. The swept greens, entirely surrounded by snow, necessitated a lofted approach, and as this is Seckel's favorite style, he experienced little difficulty.

His drive from the last tee left the ball imbedded in a bunker, and it required a vigorous lunge with a niblick to get out. That was directly responsible for his taking 7 for the hole. His card read as follows:

Out	6	7	5	5	4	5	5	6	5—48
In	4	4	5	4	4	4	5	5	7—42—90

Travers got a bad start, taking 53 to get out, but a 40 for the short nine helped him to finish among the leaders, and Herreshoff and Travis both went out in 49 and back in 42. The scores follow:

	Out.	In.	Total.
Albert Seckel, Princeton	48	42	90
Fred Herreshoff, Garden City	49	42	91
J. F. Shanley, Jr., Deal	52	39	91

Norwood Golfers Postpone Matches.

The Norwood Country Club announced yesterday that owing to the storm and the accumulation of sleet and snow on the links the golf handicap for the J. D. Archbold Cup would not be played until Saturday, Dec. 4.

DR. KEYES FIRST IN SHOOTS.

Crescent Clubman Takes Three Prizes In Succession at Bay Ridge.

Shooting under adverse weather conditions has always been a strong point with the trap shooters of the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn; in fact, the colder the weather, in a snow or rain storm, or with the wind blowing a gale, some of the cleverest work of the New Moon gunners has been shown. Yesterday, however, the Brooklyn clubmen balked at the severe northeaster, and only seven "stalwarts" faced the traps. The result was that Dr. J. J. Keyes carried off the major portion of the prizes, including a Thanksgiving trophy.

A. E. Hendrickson started off the day's sport, with a strong westerly wind playing havoc with the targets, by winning a fifteen-bird competition after a shoot-off with W. W. Peabody. Then Dr. Keyes annexed three prizes in succession, but the advent of Champion Frank B. Stephenson and his brother, George, Jr., upset all calculations in a subsequent twenty-five-target match, Frank Stephenson leading with 21, while A. E. Hendrickson and Dr. Keyes tied at 20. Dr. Keyes's performance of breaking forty-seven out of fifty targets for the Thanksgiving trophy was considered an exceptional one, considering the conditions. The scores:

Greiff and Kuchler Make Clean Scores In Spite of Severe Handicap.

Gus Greiff and George W. Kuchler covered themselves with glory at the traps of the New York Athletic Club at Travers Island yesterday. With a fierce wind blowing directly in the faces of the shooters, and in spite of rain and sleet, Messrs. Greiff and Kuchler broke twenty-five straight targets, the former taking the leg for the Haslin trophy, and the latter leading for the Wesley Richards Cup. G. M. Thomson won the feature event of the day, a handsome holiday cup, and also led in the competition for the November prize. With a strong field opposed to him, G. T. Corbett captured the leg on the Frank Hall Cup, with a score of twenty-five, aided by a three-target handicap. The scores:

SUTTON MAKES HIGH RUN AND AVERAGE

Former Champion Gives Brilliant Exhibition and Makes 235 in Billiard Tournament.

DEMAREST AGAIN A SURPRISE

Youngster Defeats Cline in Long-Drawn-Out Contest—Slosson Takes the Measure of Cassignol.

STANDING OF THE PLAYERS.

A. Cutler	0	3	.000

Three gamesg were played yesterday in the 14.2 inch balk-line billiard tournament for the world's championship at Madison Square Garden Concert Hall. Although the general averages were somewhat below the average, that of George Sutton, in his match with Albert Cutler, was the redeeming feature. Sutton not only secured the bigest average of the tourney, but he also made the record run. Sutton's average was 31 4-16, while his highest single contribution was 235. He defeated Cutler with ease by the score of 500 to 138. Harry Cline of Philadelphia threw away the morning game to Calvin Demorest after having it practically secure. The former amateur champion made a strong finish and won by the score of 500 to 449. The evening game was a long drawn out one, both George Slosson and Firmin Cassignol, the contetants, playing with painful deliberation. The contest lasted twenty-nine innings, Sutton winning by 219 points, the final totals being:

On account of the absence of an afternoon game on Monday, Maurice Daly, the Chairman of the Tournament Committee, wa scompelled to arrange for Slosson and Cassignal to play to-day. The former will be Cutler's opponent in the afternoon, while the Frenchman will measure cues with Demarest this evening. The results of yesterday's games leaves Cline and Demarest tied for first place with two victories and one defeat each, with Slosson and Cassignol on even terms for fourth place.

After the first five innings of the Slosson-Cassignol contest there was little doubt as to the ultimate results. Slosson scored 105 points in three turns at the table, while the Frenchman's best effort netted but 19. In the thirteenth inning Slosson contributed a cluster of 95, losing his hand on a miscue. Cassignol improved his position somewhat in the six teenth and nineteenth innings, which added 68 points to his string. Meanwhile Slosson was very busy, and in the twentieth inning he led by the score of 309 to 145. Cassignol hung on to Slosson for several innings, replying to the New Yorker's every run, and gaining some ground thereby. Slosson passed his fourth century with a run of 73, missing his shot on a short fallow. Several short runs followed, but it was not until the twenty-ninth inning that Slosson was able to reach his points. The score:

Slosson—1 1 3 3 20 36 49 2 9 2 0 2 95 0 37 15 1 24 0 19 36 1 16 0 73 11 28 1 25. Total—500. Average—17 4-29. High runs—95, 73, 49, 37.

Cassignol—4 8 14 1 3 6 19 0 0 2 6 0 0 0 10 28 1 2 40 1 32 37 0 20 7 24 2 6. Total—281. Average—9 20-29. High runs—40 37 32 28.

Harry Cline and Calvin Demarest were the contenders in the morning game. The Philadelphian had an unbeaten record, having defeated Slosson and Sutton, the strongest players in the tourney. Both contestants had played spectacular billiards and a good crowd was on hand in expectation of witnessing another good contest. In this the spectators were disappointed as neither man showed the form he is capable of. Cline was ill at ease at the table and unable to keep the balls together. In the tenth inning the players were tied at 148. They then alternated in the lead up to the twenty-ninth inning, when Demarest took a brace and in a brilliant exhibition put together 62 points, bringing him within 21 of the goal. Cline's score at this point was 449. He missed his next shot, and Demarest ran out with an unfinished 21. At times the two young players put up a clever exhibition, but these were only flashes of their true form, as subsequent innings would show them to a disadvantage. The score:

Demarest—22 0 40 16 4 4 0 59 3 0 0 12 3 1 0 0 0 1 65 23 59 4 6 27 67 0 1 0 62 21. Total, 500; average, 16 20-30; high runs, 67, 65, 62, 59, 59.

Cline—0 16 0 16 11 11 7 0 43 44 1 1 28 2 0 0 48 19 1 77 18 44 6 13 6 0 21 16 0. Total, 449; average, 14 29-30; high runs, 77, 48, 44, 44, 43.

George Sutton gave a magnificent display of balk-line billiards in the afternoon game, when he defeated Albert Cutler by the score of 500 to 138. The contest was decided in the fourteenth inning, when Sutton showed real championship form and ran 235, the high run of the tournament. It was a fast game, and Sutton had his share of luck to help along his clever cue work. He scored from almost every angle, and proved himself a wizard in his manipulation of the ivories. His nursing was particularly effective, and he frequently scored with hardly a perceptible touch. This run was preceded by a pretty contribution of 91 buttons in the fourth inning. Cutler showed a disposition to drive the ivories too hard, and repeatedly lost his position. The score:

Sutton—4 2 0 91 1 36 1 4 0 33 5 2 16 235 33 37. Total—500. Average—31 4-16. High runs—235, 91, 37, 36.

Cutler—0 2 0 2 1 13 0 16 7 3 9 1 2 20 51 11. Total—138. Average—8 10-16. High runs—51 20 16 13.

Foot Leads Golfers at Pinehurst.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 25.—A tie at 85 between J. D. Foot, the Apawamis veteran, and F. T. Keating, one of the best-known of the Lenox golfers, gave zest to the qualification round of the sixth annual golf tournament to-day, the opening event in the Country Club's big schedule, which will continue through to April. In the play-off Foot won with a score of 79 to 85 for Keating. One division qualified with the following scores, and match play will continue through Saturday. J. D. Foot, Apawamis, 85; F. T. Keating, Lenox, 85; F. A. Moore, Apawamis, 93; John R. Goodam, St. Louis Field, 96; C. B. Hudson, Rochester Country, 96; L. C. Cummings, Hyannis Port, 97; P. G. Lighthourne, St. George's, Bermuda, 98; E. A. Guthrie, St. Augustine, 100; H. M. Dunwoodie, Dunwoodie, 101; H. T. Knight, Merion, 105; A. C. Fowler, St. Louis Field, 107; W. F. Kenny, Alston, 107; C. A. King, Agawan Hunt, 113; Robert Sheppard, Springhaven, 115; Ashley Sparks, Baltusrol, 117; L. C. Hopkins, Crescent A. C., 117.

PLAY FOR DAVIS TENNIS CUP.

American Boys Begin Matches Against Australians at Sydney To-day.

Maurice E. McLoughlin and Melville H. Long, America's challenging lawn tennis team for the Davis International Cup, begin their matches to-day for the world famous trophy. They meet the defending Australasians, Norman E. Brookes of Victoria, Anthony F. Wilding, New Zealand; A. Walter Dunlop, Victoria, and Dr. Sharp, New South Wales, who won the cup from Great Britain in 1907. The matches will be played upon the Double Bay courts, at Sydney, beginning to-day and continuing to-morrow and Monday, under the direction of the South Wales Tennis Club.

The two Californians who represent the United States to-day are the youngest in years ever sent in quest of the trophy. Long has just reached his twentieth birthday, while McLoughlin is 19. The former is a medical student at the University of California, which McLoughlin enters as freshman next year. Both are superbly built for the sport, possessing vigorous physical strength. Long stands 6 feet ½ inch, while McLoughlin is but an inch shorter. Their amazing command of the court is due to their spread of reach, Long measuring with hands extended 72½ inches, while McLoughlin is nearly an inch better. At the time of their leaving this country for Australia, McLoughlin weighed 159 pounds and Long 164.

McLoughlin and Long are unquestionably the fastest men in action ever sent in quest of the cup. Their hard hitting is certain to puzzle the defenders. McLoughlin's various serves, should they all be working well, and he use his twist and straight balls effectively, should prove of wonderful advantage. Endurance and tenacity, coupled with ability to keep up a racing pace through five sets, may result in the two youngsters bringing back the cup. If they are to be criticised adversely at all, it may be set down to overaggressiveness, a tendency to be slightly erratic, and not ripe enough experience in the strategy of the game.

From the arrangements that have been made, the programme was for the Australasians to play Brooks, Wilding, and Dunlop, holding Dr. Sharp as reserve. Brookes and Wilding are to engage in the singles to-day, the doubles to-morrow promising to show the pairing of Brookes with Dunlop, the latter having shown exceptional form. The two young Americans, from all letters and accounts which have reached this country, have been playing well in practice.

HILL TOP BEATS JACK ATKIN.

Jacksonville Racing Opens with New York Horses Chief Winners.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 25.—Close to seven thousand persons attended the opening of Moncrief Park racing this afternoon, and every indication pointed to one of the most successful Winter meets in the history of the racing game.

The feature race was the Thanksgiving Handicap, in which some of the best thoroughbreds in the Moncrief stables were entered. Jack Atkin was the favorite at 1 to 2, and led for a good part of the race, but the weight of 135 pounds appeared to get the better of the big horse and he finished third. Summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Six furlongs. Besom, (Page,) 6 to 5, won; Emperor William, (Musgrave,) 6 to 1, second; Lady Irma, (Howard,) 6 to 1, third. Time—1:15 3-5. Sir Cleges, Woodlane, and Jacobite also ran.

SECOND RACE.—Five and one-half furlongs; purse. Sir Ormondo, (Hammond,) 4 to 1, won; Polig, (Howard,) 3 to 1, second; Banives, (G. Burns,) 3 to 1, third. Time—1:09. Sou, Cindy, and O. K. Herndon also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Selling; six furlongs. Bat Masterson, (Kirby,) 7 to 2, won; Silverine, (B. Burns,) 3 to 1, second; Flarney, (Obert,) 15 to 1, third. Time—1:16 2-5. Nattie Bumppo, Rubia Granda, Jack Baker, Bosom Friend, El Oro, Irrigator, Lady Caroline, Roseburg II., and M. J. Whalen also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—Thanksgiving Handicap; one mile. Hill Top, (J. Reid,) 7 to 1, won; Arondack, (Page,) 5 to 1, second; Jack Atkin, (C. Grand,) 1 to 2, third. Time—1:42 2-5. Takahira and Running Account also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—Selling; six furlongs. Tom McGrath, (Gilbert,) 5 to 1, won; King Avondale, (J. Reid,) 6 to 1, second; Ethon, (C. Grand,) 3 to 2, third. Time—1:16 1-5. Riela, Merry Gift, Edgely, May Amelia, John A. Munro, Royal Captive, and Select II. also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—Selling; mile and a sixteenth. Rostrum, (J. Reid,) 6 to 5, won; Campaigner, (Page,) 8 to 1, second; Oberon, (J. Hogg,) 15 to 1, third. Time—1:50 2-5. Heart of Hyacinth, Golconda, The Minks, Point Lace, and Camel also ran.

Lens Takes Handicap at Tampa.

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 25.—Tampa's 100-day race meeting opened here to-day most auspiciously, 5,000 persons watching the running of an exceptionally good card for the opening day. The weather was propitious and ten books accepted bets. Lens, little favored in the betting, won the feature, the Thanksgiving Handicap, at 4 to 1. Kid made the pace all the way to the head of the stretch, where Lens made his bid for the lead, and finished handily with plenty in reserve. Osorine was the only winning favorite.

Oral Betting Lively at Oakland.

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 25.—Fine weather and a good card drew a large holiday crowd to Emeryville race track to-day. Speculation went on at a lively rate, fourteen layers operating the oral system. Long shots were much in evidence in the heavy going. The Thanksgiving Handicap resulted in a victory for Silver Knight at 12 to 1. The weight told on Follie L., the favorite, and she was beaten for the place by John Louis.

George Odom's Sprinter Captures Feature of Lotonia's Getaway Card.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 25.—George Odom's Nimbus, coupled in the betting with Prince Gal, at 1 to 4, won the Thanksgiving Handicap at Latonia to-day by a length and a half from Lawrence P. Daley, with Prince Gal, his stable mate, a good third.

It was getaway day, and the largest crowd of the meeting was in attendance. Most of the horses brought here to the Fall meeting, which closed to-day, have already been shipped to Jacksonville and Tampa, Fla., and a few went to the Pacific coast tracks.

1909 Compared with Average for 1906-7-8

We have prepared a comparison of the results from operating the Northern Pacific Railway Company for the fiscal year ending 1909 with the average for the fiscal years 1906-7-8.

This comparison covers the following features:

Traffic density per mile
Earnings and expenses per mile of road
Units of maintenance
Units of efficiency.

These figures also show the percentage earned on market price of the stock.

The above statistics are arranged on a card convenient for filing, reference, and comparison.

Women's Trimmed Hats Placed on a Lower Duty Schedule in Some Instances

The Board of United States General Appraisers has disposed of a large number of importers' protests relating to the classification of women's trimmed hats. Some of the hats were trimmed with silk, feathers, fur, or metal ornaments, but in nearly all instances Collector Loeb returned the hats for duty at 60 per cent. as "silk wearing apparel." Objection was taken by the importers to this return, and lower duty was asked according to the component material of chief value.

After an examination of the merchandise General Appraiser Howell has handed down decisions for the board, some of which uphold the contentions of the importers, while other conclusions are in favor of the Government. The General Appraiser finds that some of the hats fall properly under the tariff provision for silk wearing apparel, and must, therefore, stand the high rate. On the other hand, many of the hats are found to be composed in chief either of metal or fur. In the case of the hats in chief value of metal, duty at the rate of 45 per cent. is granted, while those composed principally of fur are entered according to their value per dozen.

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

American Securities Quiet on Account of the Holiday.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Money was scarce and dear, but discount rates were quiet to-day. The difference between discounts in the open market and the Bank rate, together with the improved Bank reserve, caused some to anticipate a reduction of the Bank rate, bu the Directors evidently are adopting a cautious attitude in view of the uncertainty as to the Government's action regarding the budget after the discussion in the House of Lords and a probable foreign gold demand.

The Stock Exchange generally was cheerful but dull, with home rails and gilt-edge securities steady on the good Bank return. Kaffirs benefitted by purchases.

American securities were quiet owing to the holiday. They opened a fraction above parity and further advanced later. Canadian Pacific and the copper shares were strong and advanced 1⅛ above yesterday's New York closing. The rest of the list ranged from unchanged to half a point higher at the close.

Bar silver steady, 23⅜d per ounce.

Money, 4@5 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 4¼ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 4 per cent.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

The Mechanics' National Bank of the City of New York,

33 WALL STREET.

Notice of Special Meeting of Stockholders.

New York, November 22, 1909.

A special meeting of the stockholders of The Mechanics' National Bank of the City of New York, is hereby called to be held at its banking office, No. 33 Wall Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 23d day of December, 1909, at 12 o'clock noon, for the following purposes:

1. To vote upon resolutions authorizing and approving of the purchase by this Bank of the assets and business of the National Copper Bank, as the same shall appear upon the books of the said Bank at the time of the merger, which shall be at least equal to the assets and business of the said The Mechanics' National Bank of the City of New York, at the time of such merger.

2. To authorize the increase of the capital stock of The Mechanics' National Bank of the City of New York from three million dollars ($3,000,000) to six million dollars, ($6,000,000,) by the issue of thirty thousand (30,000) additional shares, each of the par value of one hundred dollars ($100), which said increased capital shall be used for the purpose of acquiring the said assets and business of the National Copper Bank, to the end that the said National Copper Bank may be consolidated and merged with this Bank; and to confirm the action of the Board of Directors in declaring a dividend of 21 per cent., contingent upon the consolidation of this Bank with the National Copper Bank becoming effective.

3. To provide that the Articles of Association of this Bank be amended so that the name of the Bank shall be changed to The Mechanics' and Metals National Bank of the City of New York, so that the Board of Directors shall consist of not less than twenty-five nor more than forty Directors, as from time to time the by-laws may prescribe, so as to provide for additional officers, so as to provide that a number of Directors less than a majority as determined by the by-laws of the Bank shall constitute a quorum, and in the event that the Articles of Association shall be so amended and the Board of Directors increased, then to elect a Board of Directors in accordance with such amendments.

4. In the event that the capital stock shall finally be increased to $6,000,000 by the addition of 30,000 shares, each of the par value of $100, then to waive the right to subscribe for such shares and to authorize the use of such additional shares in acquiring the assets and business of the said National Copper Bank.

And generally to vote upon any and all propositions in connection with the proposed merger and consolidation and the increase in the capitalization, the amendment in the Articles of Association and the issue of the proposed capital stock and the waiver and use thereof, as shall be necessary in order to carry into effect the proposed merger and consolidation and the acquisition by this Bank of the assets and business of the National Copper Bank.

The transfer books of this Bank shall be closed from 12 M., December 11, 1909, to 10 A. M., December 24, 1909.

This meeting is duly authorized and called and this notice is duly given by order of the Board of Directors.

FRANK O. ROE, Cashier.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT A meeting of the stockholders of the RANDOLPH COMPANY will be held at the office of that company in the offices of the Central Trust Company of New York, No. 54 Wall Street, New York City, N. Y., on December 1st, 1909, at 3 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of electing three Trustees for the ensuing year, and two Inspectors of Election to serve at the next annual meeting, and in addition thereto to consider the future policy of the company and the conduct of its business, and especially to consider and act on the giving of authority to the Board of Trustees to sell or otherwise dispose of or mortgage all the property of the company, and also to consider an amendment to the certificate of incorporation of the company so that it may clearly appear therefrom that the real estate of the company may be employed not only for residential purposes, but for general business purposes, and also for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

The polls will remain open for one hour.

The transfer books will be closed from November 26th, 1909, to December 2d, 1909.

Dated New York, November 9, 1909.

Florida Land.

We strongly urge full investigation of Florida lands offered for sale by the Tampa Bay Land Company through us. The land is very fertile, prices low and terms very easy. No taxes for four years and no interest. Amount of land limited, and growing less daily.

We can show where a good income can be made at a very moderate initial expense, which is soon returned through cultivation of the land. To any one interested in agriculture this is a splendid opportunity, also as an investment it is of the best. It is well worth the time of any one to either call upon us or send a letter or postal and our representative will call. We will give fullest particulars in regard to this land and its productiveness, also prices, terms, &c.

LAKEWOOD CONFERS ON PREVENTORIUM

Friends of the New Children's Home Meet a Committee of the Resort's Citizens.

INSPECTION OF IT INVITED

And Proof Offered That Tuberculous Children Are Not Admitted—Unwarranted Scare, Mr. Marks Says.

The Directors of the Tuberculosis Preventorium for Children, which has been in operation since July 2 at the Cleveland Cottage in Lakewood, hope that as a result of a conference, held on Wednesday with a committee of Lakewood citizens at the City Club the opposition to that institution will end. They are convinced that the agitation against the Preventorium has been begun under a misapprehension and that once the real scope of the work is understood, it will be recognized as worthy of everybody's support.

Nothing has been given out with regard to the conference, but it is understood that the Lakewood residents have feared that if the idea became currrent tnat a large institution for the treatment of tuberculosis was established there, the number of visitors to the resort would fall off. As a matter of fact, it was pointed out yesterday by one of the friends of the Preventorium, not a single tuberculous child has yet been admitted to the home or will be admitted there, and the only connection of the institution with tuberculosis is that the children sent there are in so weak a condition of health from their home surroundings that they may possibly fall a prey to the disease if they do not receive such an outing as the home can provide.

The directors consider the Preventorium as in some way a memorial to the late Grover Cleveland. It is situated in his cottage. Mrs. Cleveland took the greatest interest in its establishment and is a member of the Board of Management. The Cleveland cottage has the great advantage of being practically separated from any of the homes of Lakewood. It is a quarter of a mile from the nearest habitation, the Lakewood Hotel, and the hotel at present is unoccupied. It is not yet certain whether the Preventorium will occupy the hotel. It may possibly dispose of the property and use the proceeds to erect the large number of cottages and office necessary for the care of the children who will be sent there.

The experts of the Preventorium, Dr. Abraham Jacobi, Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, Dr. James Alexander Miller and Dr. Alfred F. Hess, who have world-wide reputations as tuberculosis specialists, will be pleased to meet the representative doctors of the resort and go through the institution with them. They believe that the local medical men will be easilly convinced that they ought to give the establishment a clean bill of health, and will be brought to see that, far from hurting the reputation of Lakewood, the existence there of an institution, the only object of which is to build up debilitated children, will be one of the best testimonials to its value the place can receive.

It is pointed out by the friends of the home that it is sure to be widely known, as many scientific men throughout the country are watching with a great deal of interest this novel and radical experiment in preventive medicine. Its success, the promoters of the institution believe, will do much to help in the fight against the white plague, while its failure would do incalculable harm to the fight against tuberculosis.

There is, however, no intention of stopping the work. In the last few days a number of subscriptions have been received, ranging from $2 to $100, from those who have learned of what is being done for the poor children. Marcus M. Marks, President of the Preventorium, spoke yesterday with a great deal of feeling about the value of the institution, which has been proved by its five months of successful operation. He could not discuss the conference with the Lakewood committee, but said:

"We deeply regret the agitation. It is based entirely on an unwarranted scare. If such opposition is aroused by the proposal to take healthy children into better surroundings for a short time what hope is there for the general fight against tuberculosis?

"Some one kindly offered us 100 acres of land in the woods somewhere, but it is not land we want, but buildings and a home for children who would probably become victims of disease if left in their own surroundings.

"Really I can only compare the attitude of the Lakewood residents to that of people, who come suddenly to the owner of a valuable dog in perfect health and tell him it has hydrophobia and must be killed. Surely the owner would not obey them, but would tell them the dog was absolutely healthy, as he could prove by a veterinarian examination. That is our position. We know the work is excellent. We have the highest medical authority that it is absolutely without danger to those who live near the Preventorium, and we shall not give it up. But we will willingly do everything to convince those who criticise us that they have been misled by their fears."

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Nov. 25.—The case of Dr. Sherburn Wheelwright, Superintendent of the Tuberculosis Preventorium for Children, who was arrested here last Monday on the charge of violating the State law in bringing dependent children into the State without a permit from State Commissioner of Charities Wight of Trenton, and was held in $2,500 bail for trial to-morrow, was postponed to-day till next Wednesday afternoon at the request of Wheelwright's counsel, who is also one of the Trustees of the Preventorium.

Henry S. Kearney, Chairman of the Lakewood Citizens' Committee and a member of the Intermediary Committee that met the representatives of the Preventorium on Wednesday afternoon at the City Club in New York, said to-day that he could not reveal what took place there or what was proposed, both sides having been pledged to secrecy.

Mr. Kearney said, in regard to the attitude of George J. Gould toward the opposition to the Preventorium, that Mr. Gould had asked to take the place of his son, Kingdon Gould, on the Citizens' Committee, Mr. Gould saying that he was with the people of Lakewood in their effort to prevent the establishment of the Preventorium here.

PRIEST PRAISES STRAUS.

Chaplain Reaney Extols His Work Against the White Plague.

The Hebrew Veterans of the War with Spain had their tenth annual dinner and ball in Palm Garden, Lexington Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, last night. Nathan Straus was the guest of honor and made a short speech in which he referred to the difficulties that he had to overcome in his efforts to stamp out tuberculosis through the agency of pasteurized milk. Mr. Straus said that he had been threatened, but he was in the fight to the end, and would continue, even if it cost him his life and his last dollar.

The Rev. Father W. H. I. Reaney, U. S. N., Chaplain of the battleship Mississippi, known to the Filipinos as the "good father," and who was with Dewey at Manila; William Strauss, Isadore Fried, and N. Taylor Phillips also spoke.

Mr. Fried, who is the commander of the Hebrew Veterans, was the first speaker and also the master of ceremonies. He said that the organization was formed to refute the "ancient and often repeated libel" that the Jew will not fight for his country. He said that 5,000 Jews had volunteered in the Spanish war, and that the reason they had organized was because of pride in the Jewish record in that struggle.

Father Reaney followed Mr. Phillips, concluding his talk with a tribute to Mr. Straus, who, he said, was waging one of the noblest wars in the history of mankind—the war to stamp out the white plague—and deserved the support of every person in America. As Father Reaney sat down Mr. Straus jumped up, and grasped him by the hand.

"This is a time," said Mr. Straus, "when you feel like talking, but the remarks of my brother about my work make me dumb. I have had opposition in my work, and you would hardly believe me if I told you about it. There are 40,000 children in this city who have the seeds of consumption in them, and as long as I have a dollar, as long as I live, I shall carry on this work. I have been threatened, and an agent of mine has been arrested, but I shall be victorious, and words like those of Father Reaney give me courage."

TO GET GRESSER MORE PAY.

A Committee from Queens to See the Charter Revisers.

Three thousand members of the different civic associations have entered into an agreement to help along an increase in the salary of the Borough President of Queens. One of the reasons advanced is that the present salary of $5,000 a year is not commensurate with the duties of the office. It is contended that a man with executive ability sufficient to properly administer the affairs of Queens is capable of earning a salary of $25,000 a year in the business world.

In comparing salaries of various officials in that borough it is found that the County Clerk, whose work is done mostly by subordinates, collects about $45,000 a year in fees. For the first time in its history the office of Sheriff will be run under a salary after the first of the incoming year, and it is understood the pay will be $8,000 a year.

It is proposed by the United Civic Associations of Queens that the borough shall be run on a business basis, and with this end in view President Grosser has begun the work of revision in each department. Every department is to be worked on a chart system, so that every man on the pay rolls will be required to give a full day's work for a day's pay.

A committee from Queens will wait upon the Charter Revision Committee in the matter of increasing the salary of the President. It will urge that the salary be fixed at $10,000 a year.

BURNED OUT, SECOND TIME.

Photographer Hallen's Thanksgiving Day Has an Exciting Finish.

A burst of flame shot skyward from the roof of the Bristol Building at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street at 10 o'clock last night, and people who saw it from down in the street stopped to see what a big seven-story building burning up looked like. Ten minutes later the fire was out.

But in those few minutes several things happened. The horses of Engine 63 ran away, destroying a line of hose and a section of standpipe which was acting as a sort of anchor and cable, and Charles Hallen, a photographer, lost most of the contents of his studio, including some valuable negatives.

The horses were frightened by a shower of sparks from the engine's funnel, driven by the strong wind over their heads. One of them reared and lunged forward. His fellow became panic stricken and bolted. There was a rending of rubber and canvas as the hose parted, and at the same instant the standpipe gave way. A shower of water streamed out on the pavement, and the engine started away like a street sprinkler in full action. The engine horses raced scarcely a hundred feet along Forty-second Street, before the crew of a fire truck just ahead grasped the bridles and brought them to a stop.

It was the second fire in the Hallen studio this year. On April 3 Mr. Hallen nearly lost his life, and his bull terrier Dix was burned to death. The studio was wrecked. A defective electric wire did that.

Mr. Hallen spent most of yesterday in the restored studio, applying shellac to the floor. He had just finished the floor and had gone across the street to a drug store to purchase some ammonia to clean some of his apparatus, when the people in Forty-second Street saw flames start through the studio skylight. Then came the firemen, and seven minutes later there was no more fire.

"It was about the quickest bit of work we ever did," said Deputy Chief Langford. "But it's lucky this building has water pipes up to the top floor."

The damage was estimated at $2,000. Among the negatives destroyed last night were those of Sir Thomas Lipton, Sir Thomas Barlow, King Edward's physician; Prof. Munsterberg of Harvard, Prince Wilhelm of Sweden, most all of the United States Ambassadors, Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, John Redmond, and other notables.

Broker Kilroy's Home Burned.

The cottage of Arthur Kilroy, a Wall Street broker, on Emerson Hill, Concord, Staten Island, was destroyed by fire early to-day. Mrs. Kilroy and her sixteen-year-old daughter, who were the only persons in the house at the time, escaped. The cottage was a frame structure, two stories and a half high. The fire started in the basement, near the furnace.

Fire Drives Owner from His Store.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the stock in Alexander Crum's electrical supply shop at 363 East 146th Street yesterday, and also damaged the building, a one-story structure. Crum was sitting at his desk looking over some accounts when he saw smoke issuing through a partition, and upon opening the door leading to the rear room he encountered a burst of flame.

WOMAN ACCUSES POLICEMAN M'NALLY

Mrs. Englehardt Says Patrolman Knocked Her Down with His Club Without Cause.

CHILDREN HER WITNESSES

Woman Complains That She Was Struck When Trying to Prevent Arrest of Masquerading Boy.

In the Tremont Police Station last night Mrs. Elsie Englehardt of 1,985 Webster Avenue, the Bronx, picked out of a line of thirty policemen Patrolman Francis McNally as the policeman who knocked her senseless with his club yesterday, without provocation, she asserted. She was instructed to call on Inspector Flood at the Tremont Station to-day if she wanted to make a complaint.

Mrs. Englehardt, who is the wife of a tailor and the mother of eleven children, has three of her children and twelve-year-old Harry Nachman of 1,983 Webster Avenue to corroborate her story. She asserts that many of her neighbors witnessed the attack on her, and says she will have them to prove what she says.

Young Harry Nachman was parading through Webster Avenue last night when, according to his story and that of the woman, Policeman McNally caught the lad and said he was under arrest under a "new law which prohibits boys masquerading on Thanksgiving Day." The boy was trying to represent himself as an Indian.

Mrs. Englehardt says she put her hand on the boy's shoulder and remonstrated with the policeman for arresting him, whereupon McNally grabbed her and struck her on the head. She fell unconscious in the snow at the foot of the steps leading to her house and had to be helped to her feet by one of her daughters.

The policeman fled, she says, but his hat fell into a puddle of water, and 14-year-old Jennie Englehardt, daughter of the woman, picked it up and looked at the number. It was 3,489. This is Patrolman McNally's number. He returned, she says, and seeing the hat in the girl's hand struck her across the face with his gloves and then ran away.

WIFE TRIES TO STARVE.

Deserted by Husband and Forced to Put Children in Orphans' Home.

Mrs. Bessie Brandel, who lived at 172 Harrison Avenue, Williamsburg, tried to starve herself because after her husband's disappearance she was obliged to place her four small children in an orphan asylum. This became known yesterday when an ambulance was called from the Eastern District Hospital.

In July the woman's husband, who had been out of work, set out early one morning to make one last effort to get a job. He never came back, and Mrs. Brandel has had no tidings from him. To support herself and children Mrs. Brandel took in washing. She was unable to get along, and her children were put in an asylum. After they were taken from her she became afflicted with melancholia.

A neighbor who heard her moaning yesterday made an investigation and found the woman in a weakened condition. Dr. Leibovici, who came from the Eastern District Hospital, attended the woman. She tried to resist him, declaring that she was starving herself, as she had no wish to live, now that her husband and children were gone from her. The woman refused to go to the hospital, and a neighbor took her in charge.

SAYS STUDENTS CAUSED RIOT.

Mrs. Pankhurst Blames Them for Outbreak at Suffragette Meeting.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—When Mrs. Pankhurst, the English suffragette leader, arrived in Chicago to-day she was told that her daughter, Miss Christabel Pankhurst, was prevented from making an address at Colston Hall, in Bristol, Wednesday night by rioting students.

"My daughter," said Mrs. Pankhurst, "had nothing to do with the riot, I am sure. Students from colleges and other institutions make all the trouble for our movement in England. Some of our leaders have gone to jail in the cause because of violence precipitated by students. The leaders of the suffrage movement do not believe in disorder. The impression that we favor violence does our cause an injutice."

ST. LOUIS THE CHRISTMAS SHIP

Last Liner Leaving This Side That Will Get Across Before the Holiday.

The American liner St. Louis will be the Christmas ship this year. The American line announced yesterday that in accordance with the request of the Post Office Department in Washington the sailing time of the St. Louis had been changed from Saturday, Dec. 18, to 10 A. M., Friday, Dec. 17.

She will sail for Soutnampton taking the bulk of the Christmas mail and hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of presents and money oredrs. She will be the last steamship to leave this side by which mails can reach Great Britain and the Continent before Christmas Day. The St. Louis is due at Plymouth, Cherbourg and Southampton on Dec. 24.

STRANGER DEAD IN SUBWAY.

Found on the Tracks by a Motorman at Fourteenth Street.

As a southbound local Subway train was leaving the Fourteenth Street station yesterday morning, the motorman noticed what appeared to be the body of a man on the tracks, and shut off the power. He jumped down from the car and ran up to where the object lay, to find that it was the body of a white man. The face was unrecognizable, the clothing torn to shreds, and the trunk almost cut in two.

The motorman went back to the station, and had the dispatcher notify the company, and a message was sent to Police Headquarters. The Mercer Street police gathered up the body and sent it to the Morgue.

The description that could be gathered of the man for the purpose of making a rsport to the Coroner was very meagre, it being stated that the clothing consisted of a black sack suit and white striped underwear. A broken penknife, and a purse containing about a dollar in silver coins that had been ground up by the wheels of preceding trains, were found in the pockets.

Howard Seaman, motorman of the train that passed through the station ahead of the one whose motorman discovered the body, was arrested, and sent to the Coroner. He said he was sure that no one had been struck by his train.

"Mr. Frank" Self Shot in a Hotel.

A man who registered only as "Mr. Frank," shot himself in the right temple in a room in Magee's Hotel, 55 Whitehall Street, yesterday, dying instantly. He was found last night by the manager of the hotel, who broke open his door. The man who had stopped at the hotel several times before, was a Swedish engineer. On a slip of paper were the words "The Gulf Refining Company, Beverly, Mass. SS. 'Liljenle' H."

More than a Motor Coat

Copyright 1909 by Hart Schaffner & Marx
WE call them motor coats, but they are motor coats in name only, for while no better coat for motoring is made, Hart, Schaffner & Marx have produced in our "Motor Coat" a splendid all-around overcoat for winter.
52 inches long—too long for any cold to come creeping up your legs.
Big, roomy; altogether comfortable. High military collar, and a perfection of drape and fit that only master tailors can bestow.
Wonderful value for $22.50, $25 & $28
A New Model
AMONG our Overcoats is one model that we want you young men to see. We call it a One Seamer from the broad seam in back. It's an extreme English box coat—three buttons—buttons through. New style cuff and big patch pockets. Altogether the smartest coat we have ever seen—$25 and $30.
Furnishings
BATH ROBES made of wool blankets and Terry cloth. Roomy, comfortable garments these, the kind that make lounging in your own room more of a luxury than ever it was before. $3.50 to $10.00.
Pajamas. Prices begin with some extraordinary values at $1.50—and value shows in every price to $5.00.
